

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

NOTES IN SEASON.

CASSELL & Co. will publish this month another of the Byrnes-Hawthorne series, entitled "Another's Crime."

E. & J. B. YOUNG & Co. will publish shortly "The Last Journals of Bishop Hannington." The volume will be somewhat a continuation of the "Memoirs of Bishop Hannington," though, of course, treating altogether of the later years of his life and of his work in Africa.

D. APPLETON & Co. will next week add to their carefully selected Town and Country Library "A Virginia Inheritance," by Edmund Pendleton, author of "A Conventional Bohemian;" and "Ninette: an idyl of Provence" by the author of "Vera" and "Hotel du Petit St. Jean," both of which made successes.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will issue shortly a very charming novel, entitled "In Hot Haste." The plot turns upon the marriage of a Count von Weide in order to secure to himself an inheritance. "In Hot Haste" is said to be written with great feeling and to contain peculiar interesting descriptions of German life.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation "Omitted Chapters of History Disclosed in the Life and Papers of Edmund Randolph, Governor of Virginia, First Attorney-General United States, Secretary of State, etc.," by Moncure D. Conway. The volume will contain copies of a large number of unpublished documents from the British and French Foreign Offices.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS will publish shortly "The Handy Reference Atlas of the World," by John Bartholomew, containing 100 maps and plans, a complete index, and geographical statistics. Their latest additions to Morley's Universal Library are Michael Wodhull's translation into English verse of "Hecuba" and other plays by Euripides; and "Sequel to Pantagruel," books 3-5 of Rabelais' "Gargantua," forming respectively volumes 61 and 62 of that series.

THE BALTIMORE PUBLISHING CO., Baltimore, Md., will publish on the 10th an entirely new edition of Father Ryan's Poems. It is printed from new plates and otherwise improved in style, and contains a memoir, many beautiful songs which have not heretofore been printed, and many new and fine illustrations. This compliment to the poet-priest will no doubt be appreciated by the many admirers of the "sweetest voice that ever was raised in behalf of the faith and clime he loved so well."

D. C. HEATH & Co. have ready a collection of twenty-five models and twenty-five photographs by N. S. Shaler, Wm. M. Davis, and T. W. Harris, Instructors in Geology in Harvard College, designed to show the principal features in the structure of the superficial aspects of the earth's crust, with extensive text descriptive of each figure, prepared for the use of beginners in geology. This collection is now in use in the laboratory of Harvard College, by the Boston School of Natural History, and a dozen other schools of various grades.

HARPER & BROS. have just issued a handsomely illustrated work, entitled "The Capitals of Spanish America," by W. E. Curtis, in which all the great cities in the central and southern parts of this Western continent are described at length, and their ancient history retold in a vivacious and lucid style. The dedication is to President Arthur, and with it is printed his letter accepting the compliment. This letter was the last thing Mr. Arthur wrote, but the signing being delayed for a day, death stepped in, and it was never signed. They have also just ready "House-keeping Made Easy," by Mrs. Christine Terhune Herrick. As its title indicates, the book is intended for women who are ambitious to conduct the business of their households in a business-like, successful way. Good sense and experience mark what the authoress says; and if the book does not accomplish all that the title promises, it is simply because nothing can really make house-keeping easy. The range of the volume is from renting the house to entertaining "Benedick" at home.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. 4to: under 30 cm.; O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights

Bachelor's (A) wedding trip; by himself. Phil., The Pen Publishing Co., 1888. c. 6+214 p.

D. cl., $1.50; pap., 50 c.

Starting from Philadelphia, the newly-wedded couple take the cars for New York; from here they invade Boston, Portland, make a stay at Fabyan's in the White Mountains, ascend Mount Washington, visit the Glen House, thence to Montreal, Quebec, etc. With descriptions of the journey are many loving conversations between the "bachelor" and his bride, and some original poems and stories. The book seems designed as an advertisement of a New York insurance company.

*Ballantyne, R. M. Chit chat series. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1888. 4 v. S. bds., per set, $1.40.

Booth, Mrs. Otto, ["Rita," pseud.] Vivienne. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 352 p. D. (Lovell's lib., no. 1153.) pap., 20 c.

Brown, L. Q. C. Kenneth Cameron. Phil., T. B. Peterson & Bros., [1888.] c. 18-349 p. sq. S. cl., $1.25; pap., 75 c.

Opens in the "fifties," before the war had abolished slavery, the scene being laid on the two great Louisiana plantations of Lagrange and Emerald, and in New Orleans. The plot is not at all complex, dealing entirely with Kenneth Cameron's manly struggle to pay off his dead father's debts, and his troubled courtship of the beautiful Hortense Gaston, the belle of New Orleans. Many typical southern people are introduced and the negroes photographed to the life. There is a capital description of the Mardi-Gras festivities, and of the great race between the rival houses Lexington and Lecomte.

Camp, C. C. Labor, capital, and money; their just relations. Bradford, Pa., C. C. Camp, 1888. c. '87. 6+250 p. S. cl., 65 c.

A note on the title-page gives the key to this volume. The author says, "This inquiry discloses the fact that 'Ricardo's law of rent' (so-called) is founded in error, and consequently overthrows all theories and conclusions based upon it."

Herrick, Christine Terhune. Housekeeping made easy. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 7+313 p. S. cl., $1.

In a series of chapters which first appeared as separate weekly papers in Harper's Bazar, the young housekeeper is offered minute directions for the various branches of housework, beginning with directions for renting, furnishing, and settling the house, and engaging a maid. After this the routine for each day of the week is given, suggestions for the care of "closets and cubbies," the cellar, kitchen and pantry; for gathering up the fragments; marketing, house-cleaning, the family dressmaker, etc.

Heywood, Philip D. An ocean tramp. Bost.,

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 3-233 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

This is not a story in the general acceptance of the term, but a plain matter-of-fact narrative of the experiences of a country boy of seventeen, who ran away from home to go to sea, and who after an adventurous life of a dozen years came back to find his parents dead, the remainder of the family scattered, and the old homestead in ruins. One cannot help feeling that it is a record of genuine experience, so naturally do the incidents follow one another, and so skilfully are they wrought together.

*Hope, Lady. Loving work in the highways and byways. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1888. 234 p. D. cl., $1.

*India pictorial and descriptive; by the author of "The Mediterranean illustrated." N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1888. 271 p. il. O. cl., $4.

*Jeans, H. W. Handbook for the stars; containing rules for finding the names and positions of all stars of the first and second magnitude. 4th ed., rev. by W. R. Martin. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1888. 8+56 p. pl. O. cl., $1.50.

*K., (pseud.) When to trust Jesus. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1888. 32 p. obl. S. pap., 50 c.

Malet, Lucas, [pseud. for Mrs. Harrison.] A counsel of perfection. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 2+324 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 4.) pap., 50 c.

That there may be no doubt of "Lucas Malet's" identity, this novel is dedicated "to my very dear friend and brother-in-law, Clifford Stanley Harrison." It is a character-study like "Mrs. Lorimer" and "Colonel Enderby's wife" betraying keen observation, knowledge of the world, and a most graceful wit. Lydia Casteen, an unmarried woman of almost forty years, who is a Latin and Greek scholar, and who has for years been the right hand of her father, Dr. Casteen, the great authority in church history, is charmingly portrayed. Her visit to Switzerland and her meeting with Anthony Hammond, and the effect he has upon her life and character, form an exceptionally interesting tale.

*Mayhew, Athol. The Emperor of Germany, William I.: a life sketch; il. by R. Caton Woodville. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1888. 146 p. D. cl., 60 c.

Painter, C. C. The condition of affairs in Indian Territory and California: a report. Phil., Office of the Indian Rights Assoc., 1888. 114 p. O. pap., 25 c.

Represents the results of the personal investigation by Prof. Painter, agent of the Indian Rights Association, into the present condition of the Indians in Indian Territory and California.

Patmore, Coventry. The victories of love, and other poems. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] 4-192 p. T. (Cassell's national lib., v. 3, no. 127.) pap., 10 c.

Payn, Ja. The mystery of Mirbridge: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 221 p. il. O. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 623.) pap., 50 c.

Mirbridge is the familiar country town in character and surroundings that the English novel has made us so well acquainted with. The return of Sir Richard Trevor to Trevor Court after twenty-five years' absence with an unknown wife and grown son, has set all the gossips talking in the early chapters. This wife and son are the heart of the mystery, which is unravelled with much dexterity.

*Pictures at play; by two art critics; il. by Harry Furniss. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1888. 128 p. S. pap., 35 c.

Pure (A) souled liar. Chic., C: H. Kerr & Co., 1888. c. 191 p. D. pap., 50 c.

This remarkable title characterizes a foolish young girl, who is held up as worthy of example, because she assumes the consequence of her friend's sin, and ruins her own character in the eyes of the world, through a Quixotic estimate of the requirements of friendship. The scene is laid in Boston. The two girls who are the heroines are art students. The unconventionality of student-life develops their Bohemian instincts, and in the author's opinion makes them weak in temptation.

Rand, McNally & Co.'s indexed county and railroad pocket map and shippers' guide to Massachusetts. Chic. & N. Y., Rand, McNally & Co., [1888.] c. 54 p. folded map, S. pap., 25 c.

Rice, J. H. Mexico: our neighbor. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] c. 124 p. D. (Lovell's lib., no. 1177.) pap., 25 c.

A succinct account of the people and government of Mexico; its political and social divisions; its business and material resources; its present condition and probable future, as gathered from notes and observations, during a prolonged sojourn by the author in her capital city, in 1882, and again in the summer of 1886.

*Salis, Mrs. Harriet A. de. Dressed vegetables à la mode. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1888. 86 p. S. bds., 60 c.

Shepard, E. M. Martin Van Buren. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 6+398 p. S. (American statesmen ser.) cl., $1.25.

A careful and scholarly study, not only of the life of Martin Van Buren (b. 1782, d. 1862), but of his political period. Van Buren was successively State Senator and Attorney-General in New York, U. S. Senator, Governor of New York, which office he resigned in two months to become Secretary of State in Jackson's cabinet, Minister to England, Vice-President, and seventh President, 1837-41. He was a disciple of Jefferson, the friend and successor of Jackson, and held to the political theory that government is "a mere instrument" to an end, to be tested and measured by its practical service to popular rights and needs. The author's discussions of the crisis of 1837, of the Democratic idea of government, and of the development of the nation, make this book particularly timely and by far the most thoughtful and best book on Van Buren, whom he places with Madison and the younger Adams in "the second rank of American Presidents." Full index.

*Tuoker, Mrs. C., ["A. L. O. E.," pseud.] [and others.] Rosebud series. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1888. 12 v. S. cl., per set, $1.80.

Ulbach, L: For fifteen years; a sequel to "The steel hammer;" from the French by E. W. Latimer. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 229 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 3.) pap., 50 c.

Gabrielle de Monterey forces the widow and child of Jean Mortier, unjustly accused of the murder of Pierre Mortier, to take up their abode in her house. The motives which lead her to this seemingly uncalled-for piece of generosity, and which lead Mme. Mortier to accept her kindness, are brought out by the story. For fifteen years these two women live under the same roof, and their children learn to love each other. It is this love which leads to the detection of the real murderer. Roger de Monterey is forbidden to marry the daughter of a murderer. Believing in Jean Mortier's innocence, his efforts to clear his name for the daughter's sake bring about some startling revelations.

United States. Treasury Department. Bureau of Statistics. Statistical abstract of the United States, 1887, 10th number; finance, coinage, commerce, immigration, shipping, the postal service, population, railroads, agriculture, etc. Prepared by the Bureau of Statistics under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury. Wash., D.C., Government Printing Office, 1888. 9+254 p. O. cl.

Walworth, Mrs. J. H. The silent witness. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 4+208 p. D. (Cassell's rainbow ser., v. 1, no. 25.) pap., 50 c.; cl., $1.

The murder of Dr. Whitehurst in his office during office hours is the leading incident. A young deaf and dumb girl who has never been taught to communicate with others, is the only person known to have been near the room at the time. Whether she witnessed the murder, or saw the person who did it, is for a long time in doubt. When at length she is able to tell her story, her testimony mixes things even more, throwing suspicion on an entirely innocent person. Although the novel is full of the usual detective business, it is strong and interesting, having a novel love-story.

BUSINESS NOTES.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Phelps Publishing Co., of Springfield, Mass., we understand, has completed arrangements by which it has secured control of the capital stock of the Judd Co. The officers of the Phelps Co., as already announced, are President and Treasurer, Edward H. Phelps, First Vice-President and Business Manager, George S. Graves, Second Vice-President, James D. Safford; Trustees, E. H. Phelps, G. S. Graves, J. D. Safford, Charles H. Post, and Howard Mansfield, of New York. The by-laws of the company require a majority of the trustees to live in this city and Vice-President Graves has therefore made New York his legal residence and will divide his time between the two companies of which he is business manager. Mr. Samuel Burnham who has for twenty years been the secretary of the Judd Co., is retained by the new management, as is also Dr. F. M. Hexamer as principal working editor.

NEW YORK CITY.—Edward Goodenough and H. Frank Woglom, comprising the firm of Goodenough & Woglom dealers in books and Sunday-school supplies, at 122 Nassau Street, made an assignment, June 29, to William A. Jones, Jr., giving two preferences for $3457. Mr. Goodenough has been in the business thirty years and is known all over the country. Years ago his place was the down-town branch of the Methodist Book Concern. Mr. Goodenough also made an individual assignment to Mr. Jones, as he was also interested in other enterprises. He was President of the Palmer Chemical Company, at 32 Frankfort Street, of which his son in law, William Harris, is Treasurer. The capital stock of this company, it is reported, was two months ago reduced from $100,000 to $50,000. About a year ago Goodenough, Harris, and Woglom started the publication of a monthly magazine called Woman, and this business was conducted under the name of the Woman Publishing Company. A week ago this company was incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000. It is said that the corporation did not assume the liabilities of the firm which it succeeded. The assignment is attributed to accommodation indorsements, principally in connection with the publication of Woman. Mr. Harris, Mr. Goodenough's son-in-law, also made an assignment as a partner in the Woman Publishing Company, to John H. Pine, giving preferences.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Athenaeum in its issue for July 7 publishes a series of articles on the literature of continental Europe during the last twelve months. Among the articles are Belgium, by M. É. de Lavleye and Prof. Frederiq; Denmark, by M. V. Petersen; France, by M. Jules Levallois; Germany, by Hofrath Zimmermann; Holland, by Miss Van Campen; Hungary, by Prof. Vámbéry; Italy, by Commendatore Bonghi; Norway, by M. Jaeger; Spain, by Don Juan Riano; and Sweden, by Dr. Ahnfelt.

The American Magazine for July contains letters from J. T. Trowbridge, E. E. Hale, Edgar Fawcett, T. W. Higginson, Joel Benton, Rev. J. W. Chadwick, R. W. Gilder, Rev. Lyman Abbott, Dr. Hammond, Judge Tourgee, Eugene Field, D. H. Harryman, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Henry George, Maurice Thompson, Sidney Luska, Admiral Porter, Anna Katherine Green, and Mary Agnes Tincker, in favor of the Chace Copyright Bill. Edith M. Thomas has a poetical contribution on the subject in the same issue.

The St. Louis Herald, a monthly journal just started by Charles A. Mantz, of the Phoenix Book and Stationery Co., 625 Locust St., promises, in addition to other matter, to "lend its aid and assist in promoting the sale of good books the erection of additional libraries for the public, the purchasing of private libraries, and a more general distribution of healthy, vigorous, and substantial literature in book-form among the people." We wish our new contemporary success, but fear that he has undertaken too large a contract.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. ARTHUR H. SCRIBNER, of Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons, returned from Europe last week, Friday, via the North German Lloyd steamer Lahn.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 7, 1888.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive maintenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE TRADE LIST ANNUAL, 1888.

THE great "book of the season," beyond all doubt, is the little pocket volume annually issued from this office under the title of the "Publishers' Trade List Annual." It has grown, naturally, with the growth of the book-trade, and is, in fact, a monumental record of that growth. Looking back to the days before Mr. Leypoldt put this useful plan into operation, and recalling the jumble of catalogues of all sorts and sizes, gathered higgledy-piggledy together in the drawer or on the shelf, it is easier to estimate the real service done to the trade by this work.

The leading publishers now, almost without exception, come into the "Trade List Annual" as a matter of course. They have found by experience that the live booksellers, who are their chief customers, use the "Annual" as the most important tool of the trade every day and every hour. But there is still much difficulty in obtaining the catalogues of the smaller publishers, although it is really most important to their own interests that they, of all people, should be represented, since the retail trade is less familiar with their publications than with those of the more famous houses. We trust any of our friends who have realized the advantages of the "Annual" will cooperate with us toward getting it as complete as possible.

We have, from time to time, various suggestions from individual members of the trade for the modification of the "Trade List Annual." One of them suggests, for instance, that we might publish yearly a compilation of the new books, and issue the "Annual" proper with a full index every five years. The most practical answer to that suggestion would be to leave it to our friendly critic to see how his balance-sheet would stand with such an arrangement, and how many months or years after his book should be published it would be actually ready. Mr. Whitaker's chief difficulty with his useful "English Reference List" has been the possibility of preparing such an index in time to issue promptly the book which it accompanies. In fact, after a great deal of experimenting, we have settled down to the belief that the five-yearly "American Catalogue," with the "Annual Catalogue" at the beginning of the year, and the "Trade List Annual," binding together publishers' catalogues for fall use, constitute, on the whole, the most practicable trade bibliography that can be devised. Such a system must be more or less expensive to make, and must cost something to booksellers; but we believe that it is proved, by the experience of the best booksellers, that there is no better investment than in a set of tools of this sort.

One of the chief difficulties heretofore in the "Trade List Annual" has been that publishers who took pains to send in their catalogues in good time put themselves at a disadvantage alongside of publishers who sent in after the proper time, and took more or less advantage of the delay to get in later books than their rivals. The result of this was to knock to pieces our arrangements for binding, difficult at the best, and to throw the whole machinery out of gear. We remedied that last year by making an absolute date, after which catalogues would positively not be received, except by special previous arrangement and on a payment of an extra charge. To that arrangement we adhered last year, and we intend to adhere to it as positively this year also. We trust, therefore, that our publishing friends may be prompt in sending their catalogues on the certainty that every one will be fairly and equally treated in the matter, and that the "Annual" will be issued with such promptness as to give them the full benefit of its use.

ONE of the most important of Government publications for the information of the people is the "Statistical Abstract of the United States," of which the tenth number for 1887 is but just out. It is prepared by the Bureau of Statistics of the Treasury Department, under charge of Col. Wm. F. Switzler, and is one of the most valuable compilation of facts issued anywhere in the world. The usefulness of such a compilation depends largely upon the promptness with which it is issued, and it is much to be regretted that the lack of permanent appropriation for such a work as this should delay its issue as has been the case this year. The document was transmitted to Congress in January, but because of dilatory appropriations it could not appear until June, so that almost half its value is lost by the half year's delay. There is no better illustration than this document of the importance of devising some scheme of Government publication by which work shall be done promptly and a price put on publications so that they may be furnished to the public through the ordinary channels of the book-trade. There are thousands of people who would be glad to have such a compilation of facts, especially in the coming campaign, who do not know that such a work is published anywhere in the country.

ONE of the most amusing features of the present copyright movement—and there are not a few—is the agitation that has worked the “bone and sinew” of the British Isles into a fever heat, which to the more cool-headed must cause positive alarm. The “British workman,” that is the “printers, printers' engineers, engravers, book-sellers, compositors, pressmen, machinemen, machineboys, printers' devils, paper-makers, paper-makers' engineers, paper-stockmen, publishers, bookbinders, type-founders, ink-makers, lithographers, etc.,”—to quote a list displayed in large type down the columns of the British Printer—have combined to protest against the Chace Bill for no other reason than that they object to having the “headquarters of literature transferred, either gradually or suddenly, from England to America.” Their great fear seems to be that “America is likely to become sole manufacturer of the best English books,” and “the London houses would become mere branches of the American ones.” Among other alarmists, the Paper Trade Review seriously considers this “a question of extreme gravity concerning alike the vital necessities of the printing and auxiliary trades, and there is a danger of its being merged into a question of general commercial policy. That must not be! We feel that it is no fiscal question whatever. Free trade and protection have nothing to do with the matter.” Truly, the “Dutch are going to take Holland.” The interests of English authors, by the way, are quite overlooked by these gentlemen.

COMMUNICATIONS.

“A BUNCH OF ROESES” AGAIN.

CHICAGO, June 30, 1888.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

DEAR SIR: In your issue of the 23d we notice a leading editorial, entitled “A Bunch of Roeses,” in which you take very justifiable exceptions to the apparent attempt of some publishers to sell the book of one author under the name and fame of another.

We published Col. E. R. Roe's “Gray and Blue” in 1884, but you will see by the title-page of the book sent herewith, as well as by the stamp on the back, that we have not attempted to make use of the reputation of Col. Roe's cousin in selling his book. We have another novel by Col. Roe ready for publication, which we shall issue under the Colonel's full name. We have been annoyed, once or twice, by errors arising from the popular belief that there can be but one author of a name; for instance, we recently received an anonymous communication from Canada, in which the writer boldly accused us of having forged a name, and in which he assured us that there was but one writer named Roe. You know the error into which you also fell in cataloguing the book some time since. Col. Roe is an old writer, and his scientific work is well known among specialists. It remains to be seen whether his novels will reach great popularity; but, in any case, those published by us must attain fame, if at all, under his own name.

Yours truly,

RAND, McNALLY & Co.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

ENGLISH OPPOSITION TO THE CHACE BILL.

ON June 15, the Edinburgh Chamber of Commerce held a meeting to consider what action should be taken in connection with the American Copyright Bill. Mr. J. Tod presided, and having introduced the matter, said there was a good deal of the cloven foot in it; and it was believed that if it passed it would strike a blow at the printing and publishing interest in Great Britain.

Mr. Turnbull, of Turnbull & Speirs, said he had been requested to submit the following resolution:

“In view of the present movement in the United States in favor of an international copyright law, the directors are requested to memorialize Her Majesty's Government to enter into communication with the American Government so as to bring about an international arrangement on an equitable basis, by which the rights of literary property will be duly recognized without preference to the industrial interests connected therewith of either country.”

He explained he was induced to make this motion, first, that as bookmaking was a staple industry in Edinburgh, any measure affecting the printing trade adversely or otherwise would be widely felt in the community in which they lived, and secondly, that “the bill now before the House of Representatives in America, and consideration of which was the immediate cause of their meeting that day, was not an international bill. He did not find that it was even called an international bill.”

Mr. John Grant deprecated the chamber passing the resolution.

Mr. W. G. Blaikie, of Messrs. Constable, said the Chace Bill was “the most extraordinarily clever bid he had seen, under the guise of justice, to transfer the centre of the literary industry from this country to America; and though the bill might not take full effect in five years or in ten, or during the business life of most of them, it would induce a steady movement in that direction. Mr. Grant he listened to with intense interest, for nothing could appeal more strongly to their side of the question. He said that the Americans were looking after the interest of their own people; that was what the British people intended to do. Mr. Grant thought that very few books would be set up twice, and that there would be a counter current, some being printed here and some in America. Well, that was what would not happen. If there was not money to set them up in both countries, the compositors' trade must go to America. They might take, for example, one of the greatest productions of Edinburgh—the 'Encyclopædia Britannica.' How could Mr. Black afford to print the 'Encyclopædia Britannica' in this country, as well as in America, supposing a new edition came out? If the publishers and authors, upon seeing that a great new market was open to them, deserted their old allies, the printers and paper-makers of this country, they might be certain that these authors would not escape scot free in the long run. London would ultimately become simply a branch publishing office, instead of being at the head of the trade." What he strongly urged their workmen to do was that they should endeavor to get a similar clause inserted in the British Copyright Bill. The motion was then adopted.

GLADSTONE AND THE EDINBURGH PRINTERS AGAINST THE CHACE BILL.

At a meeting of printers, held in Edinburgh on the 29th of June, it was decided to petition the [English] Government to endeavor to secure the withdrawal from the Copyright Bill of the clause providing that type set for copyright books must be set in America.

Mr. Gladstone, in a letter to the Edinburgh printing and allied trades, says he supports their agitation against the American Copyright Bill, but his "public meddling, as a politician, at the present stage, might tend to stimulate the jealousies and susceptibilities of American protectionism, thus injuring those who fight the battle of justice and good sense. Let us, as politicians, leave the case in the hands of the great American people. Agitators can make the case fully known, and possibly they will find the Government disposed to mediate."

WEED OUT THE BEATS.

From the Western Stationer.

STATIONERS, booksellers, printers, paper dealers, everybody should look out sharp for that class of customers who claim to be buying exactly that same grade of goods from some other manufacturer or dealer at a much lower price. There are more liars, we fear, of this class afloat in the community than a few. They aim to break prices, to cut the life out of trade by stirring up an unnatural competition, and they reap their reward by getting goods at a lower figure than the goods should be sold for. This class of customers are exceedingly undesirable. They ought to be weeded out. They hurt the legitimate trade, and are a positive injury to every line of business. The trouble is that men are too ready to lend them a willing ear—too ready to believe almost anything that is told them about their competitor. If manufacturers and dealers had the backbone to say they didn't care what other people were getting, and stick to a fair price, their lying customers would be made to pay an honest price for their goods. We commend this subject to the careful consideration of every manufacturer, jobber, and dealer.

ANCIENT MATERIALS FOR PAPER-MAKING.

DR. JULIUS WIRSSNER, from a microscopical examination of the paper from El-Fajjûne, preserved in the Austrian museum at Vienna, in the collection known as "Papyrus Erzherzog Rainer," has conclusively proved that linen rags were used in the manufacture of paper as early as the eighth and ninth centuries. The fibre is chiefly linen, but there are also traces of cotton, hemp, and animal fibres present. The manufacture of paper out of rags is, therefore, an Eastern, and not a German or an Italian invention, as has hitherto been supposed. Out of 500 Oriental and Eastern specimens, not a single one was a raw cotton paper. All those that were examined had likewise been "clayed" like modern papers. The material used for this purpose was starch paste, manufactured from wheat, and in some cases buckwheat. Animal substances do not appear to have been employed for "claying" before the fourteenth or fifteenth century.

OBITUARY.

FRANK BELLEW.

FRANCIS HENRY TEMPLE BELLEW, OF, as he was commonly known, Frank Bellew, died on the 29th June, at the home of his daughter, on Long Island. He was born in Calcutta, India, in 1827, and was a scion of the well-known Temple family. He received an education in France, and put out his sign as an architect in London when he was about twenty-two years old. Visiting Scotland the next year, he wrote a series of illustrated sketches that were put in book-form, called "A Cockney in the Highlands." In 1853 he came to this country and embarked with John Brougham in the publication of the Lantern. He joined Thomas Strong in founding Yankee Notions, an issue of the same character. He went to Chicago about 1854, but soon returned here and joined William Levison in the Picayune. About this time he wrote and drew sketches for Harper's Magazine and Harper's Weekly, and afterward he founded various papers, among them John Denky and Vanity Fair. He returned to England in 1860, where, with George Augustus Sala and Blanchard Jerrold, he founded Temple Bar, and also drew sketches for Punch and American scenes for the Illustrated London News. He came to New York again in 1861, resuming work for the Harpers and for other publishers. Of late years his sketches and writings have appeared in Harper's Magazine, Harper's Young Folks, St. Nicholas, Texas Siftings, and other publications. He started a daily called Dawn three years ago, which was but short-lived.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

M. TAINK's many admirers in this country will be pleased to learn that his health has so much improved as to permit of his resuming work at the "History of the French Revolution." He is now treating the period during which Bonaparte governed France, and impressed upon it that centralized administration which has continued to the present day.

MRS. H. P. BLAVATSKY is engaged upon a work, entitled "The Secret Doctrine: the synthesis of science, religion, and philosophy." The object of the work is to explain so much of the "Hidden Wisdom"—that is, the existence of the fact that a divine degree of knowledge is possible to human beings under certain conditions—as it is thought expedient to make known at present to men in general. In her earlier work, "Isis Unveiled," the author dealt with science and theology from a critical standpoint. But little of the positive esoteric teaching of the Secret Wisdom was there brought forward, though many hints and suggestions were thrown out. These, it is announced, will find a fuller explanation in the present volumes. The work is to be published in October next in two octavo volumes at $7.50. Orders may be sent to Wm. Q. Judge, P. O. box 2659, New York City.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE announcement that the home of the late Louisa M. Alcott, at Concord, Mass., is to be sold, leads to the suggestion that it be bought by subscription and appropriately converted into a home for poor children as a memorial to the author—so well beloved by young readers.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will publish very soon an "Illustrated Primer," by Sarah Fuller, Principal of the Horace Mann School for the Deaf, Boston. The aim of this little book is to familiarize the deaf children with the printed forms of words and sentences which they have learned to speak. To associate these with the objects, there are introduced many simple cuts of common objects with which the pupils are acquainted.

MONDAY, June 25, in the afternoon, while several customers were in the store of William Evans Benjamin, 6 Astor Place, and the clerks at the rear, a respectably appearing person took from the shelf a copy of the large-paper edition in two volumes of the "Book of the Sonnet," by Leigh Hunt, finely bound in half brown crushed levant morocco, gilt tops, uncut. Price, $12.50. The thief afterwards offered the books to J. Shea, of 75 Nassau St., who refused to buy at the price asked, $5. The trade are requested to detain any person offering the books until an officer can be called. Mr. Benjamin expresses his intention of prosecuting if the thief is caught. It is a singular fact that, owing to mutual good feeling and familiar knowledge of one another, the book-trade has of late years succeeded in apprehending and convicting all the thieves who have attempted to dispose of their booty.

THE volume of short stories, "The Septameron," announced by David McKay, of Philadelphia, will contain the following: "Boscobel," "A Symphony," "Hazard," "The Lost Elxir," "Parthenope's Love," "Villa Vielle's One Mystery," and "An Old Town Tale." Each of these has a distinct author, and the names of the seven, we believe, are Messrs. Francis Howard Williams, Harrison S. Morris, Samuel W. Cooper, Charles Henry Lüders, Colin Campbell Cooper, Jr., Felix E. Schelling, and Wm. Henry Fox, all Philadelphians, known more or less by literary work which has gained acceptance. "Their seven stories of varied conception and interest," says the American, "will doubtless awaken readers to the fact that Philadelphia has a literary circle which can produce the American short story in a perfection which demands applause and approval." The stories have never before been printed, and show an ideal tendency rather than one toward such realism as is coloring the fiction of the day.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address, in each issue. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price.

It is desirable to receive copy in shape ready for the printer, viz. first, headline—name and address—then, titles in separate lines (see below), all written on a separate sheet, or at the bottom of letter, or on postal card. Compliance with this request will secure accurate and prompt insertion.

PARIS EXHIBITION, 1889

MR. EM. TERQUEM, late representative of the American Publishers in the Paris Exposition, 1878, begs to inform the trade that it is his intention to represent the American Publishers at the coming Paris Universal Exposition, on the same principles as at the last one. He has already received some applications from publishers, and he hopes to obtain the same success in 1889 that he did in 1878.

MR. EM. TERQUEM will be in New York in September next, and will remain for some time in the U. S. especially for that purpose.

The very convenient offices in the centre of the American quarter Mr. Em. Terquem has now in Paris, which will be enlarged during 1889, will enable publishers who desire to visit Paris next year to find offices for their private business use.

For further information please address

EM. TERQUEM,

Political Essays.

By JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL. 1 vol., 12mo, gilt top, $1.50.

CONTENTS: The American Tract Society; The Election in November; E Pluribus Unum; The Pickens-and-Stealin's Rebellion; General McClellan's Report; The Rebellion: its Causes and Consequences; Reconstruction; McClellan on Lincoln; Scotch the Snake, or Kill it? The President on the Stump; The Seward-Johnson Reaction; The Place of the Independent in Politics.

For thirty years or more, Mr. Lowell has occasionally written articles on the political questions which have most prominently engaged public attention. Most of these articles appeared in The Atlantic Monthly and The North American Review. Some of them relate to questions which preceded the war, many of them to questions which the war emphasized if it did not create. These articles were always written from profound conviction and exerted a marked influence upon public opinion. Of course, those who entirely agreed with Mr. Lowell found them extremely satisfactory. Even those who most dissented from his views could not help being delighted with the clearness, the force, the peculiarly effective illustration, the abundant humor, and the unfailing literary charm of his essays. He has now collected these various papers into a volume, in which he includes, also, the remarkable address given in New York by him.

A Treatise on Liens.

Common Law, Statutory, Equitable, and Maritime. By LEONARD A. JONES, Esq. In two volumes. 8vo, $13.00, net.

This work includes Common Law, Equitable, Statutory, and Maritime Liens; Liens upon Personal Property and upon Real Property. Among the particular liens treated are those of Attorneys, Bankers, Carriers, Corporations, Factors, Finders, Innkeepers, Laborers, Landlords, Livery Stable Keepers, Lumbermen, Mechanics, Vendors of Real Property, Vendors of Personal Property, Stoppage in Transitu, Warehousemen, etc., etc.

Mr. Jones is so favorably known by his works on Mortgages, Pledges, Railroad Securities, etc., that this work will be warmly welcomed by the profession. The thoroughness, care, and lucidity which characterize all of Mr. Jones's books render them specially valuable and justly popular.

The English Dramatists.

Edited, with notes, by A. H. BULLEN, of the British Museum. THE WORKS OF GEORGE PEELE. In two volumes, 8vo. The set, cloth, $6.00; Large-Paper Edition, $8.00, net.

The previous issues in this edition, including the works of Marlowe in three volumes, Middleton in eight, and Marston in three, have been welcomed with great favor by those competent to judge of the quality of Mr. Bullen's work as editor. His introductions and notes prove his learning, judgment, and taste ample for the delicate task.

The Lamplighter.

By MARIA S. CUMMINS. New Popular Edition. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 25 cents.

"The Lamplighter" is probably, next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the most popular story ever written by an American author. To bring it within the reach of a still larger number of readers, this authorized edition is issued in an attractive form and at popular prices.

FOURTH EDITION.

John Ward, Preacher.

By MARGARET DELAND, author of "The Old Garden and Other Poems." 12mo, $1.50.

"In this powerful novel is presented a deeply interesting study of the effects of religious belief upon love and happiness. . . . It is a story of strong and absorbing interest, finely conceived, and written throughout with uncommon ability."—New York Tribune.

"No story has been published for a long time which stands out so prominently above the average of novels as this. It is remarkable in an unusual degree both for its delicacy and vigor as a piece of literary work and as a study of types of personal character."—The Congregationalist, Boston.

"That [its] readers will be many it needs no prophet to foretell."—Boston Advertiser.

"Very charmingly written."—Chicago Times.

NOTES IN SEASON.

P. BLAKISTON, SON & Co., Philadelphia, will shortly publish a translation of Winckel's "Text-Book of Obstetrics." Also, a work on "Diseases of the Skin," by Dr. Crocker, which will contain numerous illustrations.

ROBERTS BROTHERS have just ready "Harvard Vespers," a collection of the sermons preached to the students by Phillips Brooks, E. E. Hale, A. P. Peabody, and Dr. Gordon, of the Old South, Boston.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will publish shortly some selected poems from Lamartine's "Premières et Nouvelles Meditations." They will be edited, with biographical sketch and notes, by George O. Curme, Prof. of German and French, Cornell College, Mt. Vernon Iowa.

THE UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING Co. will hereafter publish Prof. A. Knoflach's works on "German Simplified" and "Spanish Simplified." These works, heretofore published by the author, have had a fair sale, which it is hoped will be extended by the transfer to an enterprising firm like the University Publishing Co.

FUNK & WAGNALLS have just ready a life of the late John B. Finch, widely known through his connection with the temperance movement all over the world, prepared by his widow and Frank J. Sibley, who have been assisted by a number of contributors; also "Nobody Knows," by A. Nobody, which deals with what the author calls "social wrongs" in a thoroughly earnest and convincing manner.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS have just issued Alphonse Daudet's delightful book "Thirty Years of Paris and of My Literary Life," translated by Laura Ensor, who has very happily caught every shade of this delightful author's style and manner. The book is issued in the same exquisite and artistic form as the author's "Tartarin," etc., published by them last year. Bieler, Montégut, Myrbach, Picard, and Rossi have furnished the illustrations.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. announce for next week a book of "Political Essays," by James Russell Lowell, which will doubtless attract remarkable attention, both on account of their literary and historical interest and because Mr. Lowell's recent utterances on political questions have elicited the heartiest praise and the most violent opposition. Most of the essays date back to the time of the war and the reconstruction which followed; the closing paper is his New York address in April last on "The Place of the Independent in Politics."

HARPER & BROS. have just ready another volume of short stories by Miss Amélie Rives, which will take its title from the most important, "Virginia of Virginia," the pretty story with two heroines, the girl Virginia and the mare Bon-nibel, which appeared in Harper's Magazine for January. The house has also issued "The Names and Portraits of Birds which Interest Gunners," containing descriptions of birds generally shot in the eastern portion of the United States and giving the different names by which they are commonly known in other parts of the country. The ornithological information is exact, and though the work is principally intended for sportsmen, it will prove of interest to scientific men also. There are ninety portraits of birds.

BRENTANO'S announce a series of Romantic Tales, to be issued uniform with "Tales Before Supper," issued by them last year. The new series will embrace the best books of the day by foreign writers, which have not yet been translated into English. Their character will be such that they can be recommended to all classes of readers. The translation will be in the hands of competent parties. No. 1, to be ready about August 15, contains stories by Balzac, Feral, and Sardou, making a volume of about 225 pages. No. 2, to be ready at the same date, will contain a marvellous and powerful story, that will, it is claimed, far surpass Gaboriau and Du Boisgobey, the title of which is not yet determined upon. On July 16 they will issue a handsome paper edition of George Moore's latest sensation, "The Confessions of a Young Man." It has met with great success in London, having received the highest praise from all the critics as one of the brightest and wittiest books of the day. It will contain an etched portrait of the author.

Argles, Mrs. Marg., ["The Duchess," pseud.] The Honorable Mrs. Vereker. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. 298 p. S. (Lippincott's ser. of sel. novels, no. 87.) pap., 25 c.

A bright, beautiful girl of twenty has become the "Hon. Mrs. Vereker" to save her father from ruin. The man to whom she is sold is a drunken brute, who disgraces and ill-treats her constantly. The story plays during a short season in a beautiful English country-place whose owner has just returned after ten years' absence. This owner, his sister and cousin play important parts in the life of Mrs. Vereker. Horrors are used unsparingly, and the final happy ending rests upon the crime of murder.

Bullard, Asa. Incidents in a busy life: an autobiography. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1888.] c. 4-235 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

Rev. Asa Bullard, long known as "Father Bullard," has been prominently before Sunday-school people for over half century. His name is associated with that period of the Sunday-school cause when it began to take strong hold. He had much to do with pushing it forward and giving it the place it now occupies. His autobiography is an autobiography—not an attempt to crown himself with honors by a consideration of the Sunday-school movement and his own part in it. He tells the story of his life with charming simplicity, just as though he were relating it to a select circle of friends. Contains an introduction by Rev. Alexander McKenzie, D.D., and an in memoriam chapter by M. C. Hazard.

Civil (The) service question-book. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1888. c. 4+282 p. S. cl., $1.50.

Contains questions in arithmetic, geography, book-keeping, letter-writing, English syntax, United States history and civil government; with historical and other tables, and the declaration of independence, and the constitution of the United States; intended to be a sufficient review in all the subjects upon which questions are asked in civil service examinations; with full answers and directions as to applications for examinations and positions.

Oragin, Belle S. Saint Peter and Tom; or, two unlikely heroes. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1888.] c. 3-196 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.

Peter and Tom were indeed "unlikely heroes"—particularly in the direction of Christian heroism.

Neither would have been selected as affording the requisite material for a saint; for Peter was too fiery-tempered and Tom was too dull. But the author shows how Pete became a veritable Saint Peter, with all his sprightliness retained; and how Tom, by his dogged persistence in obeying the command of his dying mother, achieved a place for himself in the good opinions and in the hearts of his townspeople that many a naturally brighter boy failed to win. A capital book for boys.

The name of John B. Finch is universally known and honored in all temperance circles. He held the office of Right Worthy Grand Templar of the I. O. G. T. of the World, was Chairman of the Prohibition National Committee, and his personal influence was felt in all branches of temperance work. The story of his life is one that should interest old and young alike. Some of his famous speeches, which exhibit the qualities that gained for him his great reputation, are given in full.

Johonnot, Ja., comp. Stories of other lands. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 232 p. il. D. (Historical ser., Book 3, pt. 2.) bds., 47 c.

Designed as a supplementary reader. The stories are grouped as "Stories of Spain," "Stories of France," "Stories of Central Europe," "Stories of Britain," "Stories of artists," "Stories of science and industry," "Miscellaneous stories." The stories of the different lands are well-known historical sketches. In addition are sketches of Raffaele and Michael Angelo, and of Sir Isaac Newton, William Caxton, George Stephenson, and "the Blackburn farmer."

Juliand, Anna M. Brief views of United States history for the use of high schools and academies. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1888. c. 68 p. S. leatherette, 35 c.

The work is arranged for the use of advanced classes. It is not in itself a sufficient source of information, but, as history is best and most systematically taught by topics, it is intended to be placed in the hands of pupils, requiring them to fill out the story from the study of some of the histories now in use.

*Kansas. Supreme court. Reports of cases; A. M. F. Randolph, rep. V. 31, July term, 1883-Jan. term, 1884. 2d ed., annotated. Topeka, G. W. Crane & Co., [1888.] c. 8+595 p. O. shp., $3.50.

*Lansing, W. Forms of procedure in state proceedings, under the statutes of New York, outside of the Code of civil procedure, with notes and citations. N. Y. and Alb., Banks and Bros., 1888. c. 46+775 p. O. shp., $6.

Libbey, Laura Jean. Miss Middleton's lover; or, parted on their bridal tour: a novel. N. Y., American News Co., 1888. c. 212 p. por. D. pap., 25 c.

The writer is the author of a number of novels that have had a popular success, such as "Flora Temple," "The heiress of Cameron Hall," etc. The chief event of the present novel is a mysterious murder and robbery. "Miss Middleton" is the unconscious agent in the robbery. She is a somnambulist, and in her sleep walks to the shop of a well-known safe and lock company on Oxford St., London, and brings back the clerk to unlock her uncle's safe, on the plea that the combination has been forgotten. From this results the robbery and a number of sensational incidents.

Lippitt, Francis J. Physical proofs of another life given in letters to the Seybert Commission. Washington, D. C., A. S. Witherbee & Co., 1888. c. 65 p. O. pap., 25 c.

The Seybert Commission, it will be remembered, was appointed by the University of Pennsylvania, and owed its existence to the fact that the late Mr. Henry Seybert, an enthusiastic believer in modern spiritualism, shortly before his death presented the University a sum of money sufficient to found a chair of philosophy and added to the gift a condition that the University should appoint a commission to investigate "all systems of morals, religion, or philosophy which assume to represent the truth and particularly of modern spiritualism." In 1886 a committee was appointed to investigate slate writings, rappings, etc. In the report published by the Lippincott Co., in 1887, they declare that in all they found fraud of the grossest kind. The letters in this work purport to refute the report of the commission.

Macfarlane, Margaret Russell. Odds against her. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 249 p. S. (Cassell's sunshine ser., no. 9.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Begins in Paris, but plays mostly in a mountain-region of Germany. The odds are against the hero's sister-in-law, who though in love with him cannot resign the hope of winning the family fortune as well as its most popular member. A beautiful hand has a guiding influence on the hero's fate. He sees it on several most opportune occasions. The owner of this hand has played, is playing and is to play an important rôle in his checkered career. All comes out right, but the details of the plot are intricate and sometimes there is a hitch in the parts and the setting.

*Mitchell, J. A manual of practical assaying; ed. by W. Crookes. 6th ed., partly rewritten and enl. N. Y., J. Wiley & Sons, 1888. 1000 p. il. O. cl., $10.

Nevada Ned., (pseud.) The king of gold; the mystery of the lost mine: a story of mistakes and deception. Chic., The Eagle Pub. Co., 1888. c. 212 p. D. (Globe detective ser., no. 6.) pap., 25 c.

*New England reporter, v. 5. All cases determined in the courts of last resort: Me., N. H., Vt., Mass., R. I., Conn.; Jas. E. Briggs, ed. [1887-8.] Rochester, N. Y., The Lawyers' Coöperative Pub. Co., 1888. c. 2+989 p. O. shp., $5.

Newsby, Mrs. Peleg, [pseud. for Mrs. A. A. Evans.] Aunt Nabby. Bost., Rand Avery Co., 1888. c. 9+274 p. il. S. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Under this title Mrs. A. A. Evans collects her letters that have appeared from time to time in the columns of the Boston Commonwealth and other newspapers into a neat little illustrated volume. The quaint diction and irresistible humor of these missives serves as an effective medium for the good-humored satire and comment upon measures and men for which "Aunt Nabby" is especially distinguished.

Nobody knows; or, facts that are not fictions in the life of an unknown; by a nobody. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1888. c. 2-290 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The name is not given of the subject of this biography; he figures as the "Unknown" throughout. He is apparently a real personage, who dedicated his life to righting the miseries of the poor and oppressed. A number of original poems intersperse the text.

Ober, F. A. Montezuma's gold mines; with 12 il. by Hy. Sandham. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 4-191 p. D. cl., $1.

The author bases his story—the third he has written of Mexican life and adventure—on the popular belief that gold mines of great value have existed in Mexico since the days of Cortez. The hero is a young naturalist, who goes to Mexico in the employ of the United States government, to make a collection of bird specimens. He is regarded with suspicion by some of the Indians, who finally seize him, burn his notes, books, and specimens, and carry him to a distant point, with the warning never to return. He makes the acquaintance of one of his captors, a young Indian named Juanito, who helps him to escape, and after they are safely away they form a plan to go in search of Montezuma's gold mines.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 14, 1888.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

AN ATTEMPT TO PREVENT UNDER-SELLING.

IN connection with the sketch of the Booksellers' House in Leipzig, given elsewhere in this issue, it may be mentioned here that the most important business transacted by the Börsenverein in its new quarters was the ratification of the measures passed at a general meeting of the Verein at Frankfurt to prevent "schleudern" or underselling. The main object of these measures was to put an end to this evil by a system of boycotting all such booksellers as refuse to comply with the demands of the Börsenverein.

It must be borne in mind that the German book-trade is, in one respect, differently constituted from that of other countries. Owing to the existence of trading à condition—that is, on sale or return—the smallest bookseller is enabled to lay before his customers for inspection the latest books in their respective branches. This "literary system of irrigation," the German claims, must be preserved in the interests of education and culture, as well as in behalf of publishers and their agents, both of whom are dependent upon the retailer for their existence. The provincial or country trade can exist only so long as the selling price fixed by the publisher is adhered to. But, with the introduction of mailing facilities and Gewerbefreiheit (freedom of trading), several firms, especially in Leipzig and Berlin, endeavored to obtain customers all over Germany by offering books at less than published prices. The country booksellers at first tried a similar reduction of price, but saw themselves compelled to form local unions and demand protection from the publishers. On agitation, headed by B. G. Teubner, in 1880, the majority of publishers prohibited the public offer of their books with discount, and fixed 10 per cent. as the utmost discount that was to be allowed. Complete victory was not attained until the Börsenverein took up the matter and induced the publishers to refuse to supply the "schleuderer" (undersellers) and the Leipzig Union to refuse them the use of the order-house. No trade without such a solid organization as the Börsenverein could hope to carry such a rule into effect, and it yet remains to be seen whether it will be able to enforce its rules without restrictions or limitations. From personal experience in Germany, we should judge that there is more than one bookseller who still "contrives to get his books by some kind of 'underground railroad'" and sell them at large discounts. But in its endeavor to prevent the spread of a reckless system of underselling, which can only end in everybody cutting everybody else's throat and his own in the end, the Börsenverein will be watched with interest by booksellers all over the world.

M. PAPAFARA, an Italian author, recently published a work on international copyright, the most important part of which is the bibliography. This, however, M. Papafara copied from Mr. Solberg's list in our work on Literary Property without credit or without so much as saying "By your leave." As Mr. Solberg spent years of labor in the preparation of this list, it is rather aggravating to read in European journals tributes to the "bibliographical industry and learning" of this shameless pirate.

THE CENTURY'S FIRE.

ON the 7th inst., at about one o'clock in the morning, fire was discovered in Alexander's bindery, occupying the top floor of the six-story building commonly called "The Century Building," which embraces Nos. 38 to 46 E. 18th St., New York City, and, running through to Union Square, covers the site of the old Moffat Mansion, occupied about twenty years ago as the headquarters of the Fenian Brotherhood. When the firemen reached the house the entire floor occupied by Mr. Alexander was in flames; the fire was eating its way through the roof and burning a hole into the floor below, which was occupied by the Century Company. By heroic efforts the firemen succeeded in confining the fire to the top floor. But the damage caused by the water was most disheartening.

The loss in George W. Alexander's bookbindery was believed to be about $100,000. Most of the stock in the place belonged to publishing firms who have made a practice of sending printed paper in bulk and having books bound as rapidly as the editions were wanted in the trade. Among the losers by the fire Mr. Alexander's manager reported Charles L. Webster & Co., George R. Lockwood, G. W. Dillingham, Dodd, Mead & Co., Putnam & Sons, Clark & Maynard, E. B. Treat, and John Wiley & Sons. It was believed that they had their stock in the bookbindery fully insured.

The loss in the Century Company's office is not so serious as was at first feared. All the manuscripts and wood-cut blocks are stored in safes or in the De Vinne press building on Lafayette Place, and thus the greatest loss that could have befallen the company was averted. The private room of Mr. Richard W. Gilder, editor-in-chief of the Century Magazine, with its library, works of art, elaborate carvings, and collection of manuscript in the "L" of the fifth story, was entirely burned out. The handsome furniture, desks, carpets, etc., were blackened by the fire and for the greater part ruined completely. The worst damage, however, was done by water, which soaked everything—even the decorative hangings, framed pictures, and some of the books and magazines in the rooms. The loss is estimated at about $20,000. The fire will in no way interfere with any of the publications issued by this house.

Thomas Nelson & Sons, who have been occupying the third floor for a couple of months, sustain a damage by water and smoke that is estimated at about $10,000. The fire, as is announced elsewhere, will not interfere with Messrs. Nelson & Sons' business.

TWO CENTS A MILE FOR DRUMMERS.

At the regular monthly meeting of the New York City branch of the National Travellers' Protective Association held at the Morton House, N. Y., July 9, George F. Corbierre, Vice-President of the State division, who was a delegate to the National Convention held at Minneapolis in June, submitted his report. He said that S. A. Haines, of this city, was appointed Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, the objects of which are to place the association on a more substantial basis and to devise means for securing the coöperation of the railroads that favor giving special rates for commercial travellers. He also informed the meeting that the Lake Shore Railroad had agreed to issue to them 5000-mile tickets good over fourteen other lines for $100. Several Western railroads had made the same concession, and it was generally understood that the rate would be general after the next meeting of the trunk line passenger agents.

The association is promised the aid of leading merchants, who expect, through the Chamber of Commerce and other influential bodies, to secure the advantages so much desired.

COMMUNICATIONS.

ANOTHER ROEISEN ADDED TO THE BUNCH.

NEW YORK, July 10, 1888.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

SIR: It would not be out of place for you to point out that neither E. R. Roe nor E. P. Roe is the original Roe. Thirty years ago the novels of A. S. Roe were very popular, and they are still published, I believe, by Dillingham & Co., the successors of Carleton & Co. I have met not a few persons who, remembering "A Long Look Ahead," "True to the Last," and other novels by A. S. Roe, imagined that E. P. Roe was the author.

Yours truly, O. B. B.

THE NEW BOOKSELLERS' HOUSE IN LEIPZIG.

WHEN, half a century ago, a German Booksellers' Union was organized at Leipzig, it was an event that was of interest far beyond the German frontier. Before this the German book-trade had had its chief headquarters and held its annual fair at Frankfort-on-the-Main. The Leipzig booksellers, however, began to be recognized as the leaders in their trade, and about half a century ago it was clearly seen by all that the great and growing book-trade needed an exchange as well as all other great mercantile organizations, and Leipzig was its natural centre. The "Börsenverein" was then organized, and an appropriate building erected, in which it had its home until now. During the last fifty years its business has so increased that its managers have recognized the need of larger, more commodious, and more representative quarters. In 1884 the needs of the organization were laid before the proper authorities, and in 1885 the necessary ground, valued at 400,000 marks ($100,000), was presented to the Union as a free gift from the city of Leipzig. A building committee was immediately organized and five architects submitted plans for consideration. For some time they hesitated between the plans submitted by Eisenlohe & Weigle, of Stuttgart, of a monumental building in the style of the Italian Renaissance, and those of Kaiser & Grossheim, of Berlin, which followed the style of the Low German Guild and Courthouses of the latter part of the 16th century. The latter was finally chosen. The corner-stone was laid on May 23, 1886, and the fact was celebrated with great festivities, as described in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of June 19, 1886. The Leipzig firm, Bauer & Rosbach, obtained the building contract and have now finished this beautiful piece of architecture at a cost of 680,000 marks ($170,000).

On Sunday, April 29, the new building was formally opened amid great festivities. The occasion was one of interest beyond the immediate circle of bookmen. Not only did the trade appear at last before the public in an edifice of corresponding proportions to the magnitude of the interests it represents, but the town of Leipzig, whose prosperity is due in no small measure to its position as the centre of the book-trade, saw in the erection of the new house an assurance that that prosperity would not be diverted, as some had feared, to its powerful rival, Berlin. Indeed the entire kingdom of Saxony observed with interest an event which conferred an additional distinction on the state. No wonder, therefore, that a group of distinguished guests added brilliancy to the ceremony, chief among them the King of Saxony.

In the forenoon, the old Booksellers' Exchange was closed forever and the entire company passed in procession along the streets to the new house. Here they awaited the arrival of His Majesty, immediately after which the keys of the new building were solemnly handed by the President of the Booksellers' Union, Mr. A. Kröner, of Stuttgart, to the Chairman of the Committee of Management, Mr. K. F. Kochler. Then followed various presentations to the Union from related bodies. Mr. Kröner was presented with the freedom of the city of Leipzig, a rare distinction which testified the high respect of the Town Council for the book-trade.

The new house received a present of a magnificent banner from the women of Germany, on which is worked the coat-of-arms of the German booksellers. The booksellers of Leiden, Stuttgart, and other book centres, and the representatives of the allied branches of the trade, all of whom are represented in the accommodations provided in the new building, presented the central organization with busts of eminent booksellers, stained glass windows, and innumerable other objects of interest and value. After all these offerings had been received and acknowledged with appropriate speeches, the King of Saxony, and the invited guests, viewed the exhibition, to which the leading firms of publishers, bookbinders, paper-makers, etc., had liberally contributed, and at four in the afternoon the proceedings closed with a great banquet.

It is impossible, in the space available, for us to give a detailed description of the great house of which the German trade is so justly proud. The building is situated at the corner of Plato and Hospitalstrasse, with its front on the Hospitalstrasse, and covers an area of 2650 square metres. It consists of an imposing central building, in the old German style, flanked on either side by spacious wings. The material used is red brick with white sandstone trimmings. Over the entrance is an allegorical figure of the book-trade in white sandstone, after a design by Prof. Melchior Zustrassen, of Leipzig, which is set between busts of Gutenberg and Dürer. The building is topped off with innumerable gables and a cupola. The chief attraction of the building is the great hall, which properly occupies the first floor of the central portion of the edifice. It covers 500 square metres and is 16 metres high. The ceilings are artistically decorated with allegorical paintings illustrating the relation of the book-trade to the arts and sciences. These paintings, which are masterpieces, were executed by and under the direction of Max Koch, of Berlin, who also designed the coats-of-arms that decorate the various niches in the hall, and are symbolical of Basel, Frankfurt, Mainz, Nürnberg, Vienna, and Berlin. One of the principal attractions of this beautiful hall is the middle window facing the garden. It is a memorial of the services rendered by Friedrich Fleischer, of Leipzig, to the book-trade, and the gift of his firm, Fr. Karl Fleischer. The window was designed by H. Schaper, of Hannover, and represents in allegorical groups the five leading cities of the book-trade in Germany. In the middle panel is a figure of Leipzig holding in her left hand Mercury's wand and with her right pointing to her field of work. At her feet to the right sits Frankfurt, once the ruler in the realm of the book-trade, and to her left Vienna, who holds in her hand a document with the imperial seal, which signifies the fact that much of the development of the German book-trade was owing to the imperial privileges granted to this city. In the panel to the right is Stuttgart and to the left Berlin. In these panels are also placed groups the faces of which are portraits of leading men in the book-trade. At the base of the window is given the date (1681) when the firm whose gift this window is was founded. In the niches in the hall are placed busts of the late Emperor William, of Bismarck, Moltke, and J. F. v. Cotta, and one is promised of King Albert of Saxony.

Under the roof of this Booksellers' House will be united with the head offices of the book-trade the Bestellanstalt or order-house, founded in 1842. This institution operates as follows: Each bookseller sends regularly all his order blanks, duly filled in, to his agent, who transmits them daily, or hourly if necessary, in bulk, to the order-house. In this the orders are distributed, and each agent receives back the goods for all the publishers for whom he acts. The transmission of the orders to the publishers, the distribution of the books and their despatch to the individual retailers is managed among the agents. At present the Bestellanstalt distributes annually nearly twenty-four million orders. It is proposed to add to this Bestellanstalt a Packetanstalt or Parcel-house. The idea has heretofore been defeated because several of the larger agencies believed that their own business sufficiently covered this ground; but the movement seems to be gradually taking shape, the more so as, in addition to the obvious advantages of such a house, the want of a kind of clearing-house to facilitate the settlement of accounts is becoming more and more apparent. As it is, the agencies have already formed a society for the especial purpose of improving the present system.

In convenient quarters are placed the editorial rooms of the Börsenblatt and its printing-office. The left wing is occupied principally by the Library of the Börsenverein. This was founded in 1843, but did not command much attention until Dr. A. Kirchhoff became librarian in 1861. In 1875 Dr. Kirchhoff presented the library with his own valuable collection of more than 1000 volumes. In addition to the library of books the society has a large and extremely valuable collection of portraits, autographs, seals, samples of paper, binding, and many other curiosities illustrating the history and process of book manufacture. The basis of these collections are those of H. Lempertz, of Cologne, and F. A. Butch, of Augsburg. The magnificent collection of early printed works formed by the late H. Klemm, of Dresden, and committed by the Government of Saxony to the care of the society is also housed in the rooms of the library.

A description of the contents of the building would probably be incomplete without a mention of the restaurant—the Gutenberg Keller. This occupies the vaults of the centre of the building, and is tastefully decorated with appropriate legends. The host of this cellar furnishes the members and visitors of this bookseller's home with good cheer for a small consideration. The comfort of the members is considered in all things, and while ample provisions are made for business, pleasure has also had its fair share in the arrangements of the building. There is an ample bowling and shooting gallery, and rooms have been set apart for games and amusements of all sorts.

We sincerely hope to see the day when, with the same unanimity of purpose, the book-trade of America will have its interests represented in a manner worthy of so great a calling. A. G.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Ocean, the bright and breezy fortnightly journal published by John H. Gould, 280 Broadway, N. Y., announced in our columns some months back, continues "the herald of news and information for all who traverse the raging main," to present "the most accurate and reliable knowledge of paramount value and interest to every passenger who sails from or enters an American port." Nor does the journal confine itself to subjects of interest and instruction to the tourist, traveller, and mariner, but in "a reasonable domain of pleasantry and pure wit it will bring mirth and good feelings to all readers." The paper is neatly printed and handsomely illustrated. The portrait of a noted captain or ocean steamer is given in every issue as a frontispiece.

THE July number of Belford's Magazine offers a good supply of reading-matter, not too deep for the summer season, and yet full of interesting information. Politics receive a fair share of attention, and the short stories and poems are very readable. Donn Piatt's literary reviews are especially well done. With witty cleverness and thorough good nature he criticises Ignatius Donnelly's "Great Cryptogram;" Amelie Rives' "The Quick or the Dead;" and Edgar Saltus' "The Truth about Tristram Varick," and contrives to say something new about these much reviewed books. The editorial department is unusually strong and well written.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. H. H. BANCROFT is travelling in Oregon, Montana, Idaho, and Washington Territory, taking notes for his forthcoming volume on that part of the country.

MISS EMMA M. CONNELLY, whose novel, "Tilting at Windmills: a story of the Blue Grass country," is pronounced "a grand hit," was formerly for some time on the reportorial staff of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

MR. WILLIAM HENRY HURLBERT, some years ago the accomplished editor of the N. Y. World, is about to publish a work entitled "Ireland Under Coercion." The work will be published by David Douglas, of Edinburgh.

THE author of that clever book, "My Wonder Story," which is in effect a child's physiology, is Mrs. Anne K. Benedict, daughter of Dr. Kendrick, well known for his valuable labors in the University at Rochester, N. Y., and also as a member of the committee for the revision of the Bible. Mary Towle Palmer, the author of "The Doctor of Deane," is the wife of a rector near Philadelphia, and the sister of George Makepeace Towle, the well-known writer and lecturer. She is also the sister-in-law of Prof. George Palmer, of Harvard, who married the gifted principal of Wellesley, Alice Freeman. The Palmer Brothers are to be congratulated upon their matrimonial ventures.

MR. E. P. ROE says of his new book, which Dodd, Mead & Co. are soon to bring out: "The novel, 'Miss Lou,' first took form in my mind as a short story, quite different in character from its present and completed aspect. It is my rule never to permit an arbitrary will to assert itself in the construction of a narrative, thus eliminating the elements of spontaneity and naturalness. My heroine declined to be dismissed summarily. Almost before I was aware of it she began to take a strong hold on my interest and sympathy, and I saw in her and her experiences larger possibilities than I had at first suspected." "Miss Lou" is a novel of Southern life.

WE call attention to Brentano's advertisement elsewhere in this issue. Publishers and booksellers who deal in works on China will feel particularly interested.

TELEGRAPHIC CODE.

[Note—1888. The Telegraph Company has a rule under which any combination of letters not forming a dictionary word is subject to rating at the price of a word for each letter. This rule, when enforced, is prohibitory against all codes in use for the present purpose. As it has not been uniformly enforced we must advise that inquiry be made at the telegraph office before sending any code despatches.—ED.]

This code is based on the name of publisher, name of author, and designation of individual book (sometimes by initials and sometimes necessarily arbitrary)—a natural system, giving more opportunity to catch possible errors than where hap-hazard words or signs are associated arbitrarily with each book. This method also allows code-signs for new books to be interpolated in future catalogues without breaking down the system.

Each book is designated by six letters, the first and second being the first two letters of the author's or series' name, so as to preserve an approximately alphabetical arrangement, corresponding nearly to the arrangement of the books; the third and fourth the designation of the book by that author or in that series; the fifth and sixth the abbreviation of the publisher. Thus, Adelfco would mean Addick's Elementary French, published by Charles Collins.

The name of the publisher, as designated by the two letters (fifth and sixth) is placed in SMALL CAPITALS, so as to be readily caught by the eye. Where two or more publishers issue the same book, either separate code-words are given, or the code-word is formed by adding to the four letters the two letters designating the publisher preferred. Thus, in the case of the Standard Supplementary Readers, issued in identical editions by four houses under mutual arrangement, the first of that series would be ordered as StsaAP, or StsABA, or StsaIV, or StsAVA, according as the dealer preferred Appletons', or Barnes', or Ivison's, or Van Antwerp's issue. If he has no choice, the sign xx may be used to designate any publisher; thus, Stsaxx would mean Standard Supplementary 1st Reader, any edition.

In writing a despatch treat the small capitals as ordinary lower-case letters, using a capital only at the beginning of each code-word to separate it from the previous code-word.

In the case of a series, as Rightmyer's Penmanship, having but one code-sign, the first, second, etc., of a series may be ordered by affixing to the six letters a seventh, or seventh and eighth, designating the ordinal numbers, to wit: m-1st, n-2d, o-3d, p-4th, q-5th, r-6th, s-7th, t-8th, u-9th, v-10 or o. Thus, RipeBEM would order Rightmyer's Penmanship, no. 1; RipeBEQ, same, no. 5; RipeBEV, same, no. 10; RipeBEMO, same, no. 13. In the case of special State editions of geographies, etc., the name of the State must be added as a separate word.

The number ordered is designated by the last letters of the code-word, to wit: a-1, b-2, c-3, d-4, e-5, f-6, g-7, h-8, i-9, j-10, k-100, l-1000. Thus, six letters only mean one copy; b as a last letter means 2 copies; ab, 12 copies; bj, 20 copies; ak, 100 copies; abe, 125 copies; al, 1000 copies.

In using this code, preface the despatch with the abbreviation for shipping directions, with the letters PW added, to wit: Sendpw. Mailpw. Exprpw. Frgrpw. Fastpw. Boatpw. Enclpw, mean respectively, Send in any way, Send by mail, Send by express, Send by freight, Send by fast freight, Send by boat, Enclose to usual agent—the following books, for interpretation of which see PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY code.

When a dispatch is received it is to be interpreted as follows: The first word is shipping directions. Each additional word is an order for a line of books (unless in the case of an explanatory word, like the name of a State, which follows the code-word of the book to which it refers). In each of those words the first and second letters are the first and second letters of the name of the author or series, under which it is alphabeted in the EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE. This reduces the search to a few lines, when the third and fourth letters, or the fifth and sixth letters, give an easy cue. The only difficulty will be in the case of long series like the Ahn books, where the arbitrary signs necessarily used may give some slight trouble. If there are only six letters, one copy of the book is required. Additional letters mean, if in the first part of the alphabet, the number of copies wanted; if in the last part, the number in a series which has but one code-sign.

Thus: Exprpw Ahhist, Stsaxxab, Stsbbad. Ripeben, Ripebesab, Ripebemnbd, Krasapsadd, Krpsapbd, Anlkhmb, reads,

Express, using PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY code:

- 1 Ahn-Henn First French Reader, with notes, half roan.
- 12 Standard Supplementary Reader, No. 1, any edition.
- 4 " " " " 2, Barnes' edition.
- 1 Rightmyer's Penmanship, No. 2.
- 12 " " " " 7.
- 24 " " " " 12.
- 144 Krusi's Drawing-Books, Analytic Series, No. 7.
- 24 " " " " Perspective Series, Nos. 9-12.
- 2 Keys to Andrews' Latin Exercises.

The difficult cases above cited will not often occur, and after a little practice the code will be easily worked, either in making up or filling orders. The compiler will be greatly obliged, however, for any suggestions for correction or improvement suggested by actual use. The saving, both in cost of telegraphing and in manual labor of writing, will be found to be very considerable.

The growing bulk of the EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE has made it impracticable to include maps, charts, dialogues, supplementary reading, individual numbers of literature series, teacher's aids or in general, books not ordered in quantity for class use, but singly for individual use. If the demand justifies, it is proposed to issue a separate catalogue of such books.

READY SEPT. 1:

A History of the United States

AND ITS PEOPLE

For the Use of Schools.

BY DR. EDWARD EGGLESTON.

Dr. Eggleston's new History of the United States, which will be ready Sept. 1, will be one of the most interesting and attractive school-books ever issued. The author possesses some special qualifications not often combined in the writer of a school history. He has used his art as a story-teller, and his experience as a writer, to make American history something living, human, and real, and therefore delightful. The illustrations, also, are the result of long years of investigation, and in all cases original sources have been sought to secure the greatest historical accuracy. The list of artists and engravers engaged upon the work includes some of the most noted and expert in this country.

New Text-Books in Geography.

Longmans' School Geography. By GEORGE G. CHISHOLM, M.A., B.Sc., F.R.G.S., etc. With 61 illustrations and diagrams. Crown 8vo, $1.05.

*.* In this book an attempt is made at a new departure in the teaching of geography by providing a text-book which is founded on the results and methods following from the great advance which has taken place in geographical science and teaching on the Continent, and especially in Germany. The aim of the author has been to exclude from the book almost all details which pupils cannot be expected to keep permanently in mind, but to take care that what the book does contain should consist of what is most effective as discipline and of most importance to know.

Longmans' Junior School Geography. By GEORGE G. CHISHOLM, M.A., B.Sc., F.R.G.S., etc. With 31 maps. Small 4to, boards, 45 cents; cloth, 60 cents.

RICHTER'S INORGANIC CHEMISTRY. A Text-Book for Students, by Prof. VICTOR VON RICHTER, University of Breslau. Translated by EDGAR F. SMITH, M.A., Ph.D., Professor of Chemistry in Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio; formerly in the laboratories of the University of Pennsylvania; Member of the Chemical Societies of Berlin and Paris, etc. Second American from the Fourth German Edition. 89 wood-cuts and colored plate of Spectra. 12mo, 400 pages, cloth, $2.00. Examination price, postpaid, $1.50.

In this work the theory and facts of the science are brought close together and their intimate relation clearly shown. The descriptions of the various inorganic substances are full and embody the latest results and discoveries. The book has reached five editions in both Germany and Russia and has been translated in Holland and Italy. This, the second American edition, has been recommended at a number of prominent schools and colleges throughout the country.

RICHTER'S ORGANIC CHEMISTRY, OR CHEMISTRY OF THE CARBON COMPOUNDS. By same author and translator as above. Illustrated. 12mo, 710 pages, cloth, $3.00; leather, $3.50. Examination price, postpaid, $2.00.

This volume contains a full description of the Carbon Derivatives. The treatment of the various classes of bodies is comprehensive, the most recent and interesting results of chemical research being given with special fulness.

Richter's Organic Chemistry is used as a text-book in those schools that devote the necessary time to this branch; for those, however, who must use smaller or more elementary books it will be found extremely valuable as a work of reference.

STAMMER'S CHEMICAL PROBLEMS. Translated from the Second German Edition, with the explanations and answers added by Prof. W. S. HOSKINSON, A.M., Wittenberg College. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents. Examination price, postpaid, 50 cents.

"Stammer's work is highly practical, and for that reason I have a preference for it. Professor Hoskinson has performed his work well, and deserves the thanks of teachers of the science."—Prof. EDGAR F. SMITH, Translator of Richter's Chemistries.

BLOXAM'S CHEMISTRY: Inorganic and Organic. Sixth edition. With Experiments. Over 300 engravings. Cloth, $4.50; leather, $5.50.

This edition contains a large amount of new material and most of the book has been rewritten to give a more comprehensive view of the chemistry of the day.

BLOXAM'S LABORATORY TEACHING. Progressive Exercises in Practical Chemistry. Fourth edition. 89 engravings. Cloth, $1.75.

YEO'S MANUAL OF PHYSIOLOGY. Third edition. A Text-Book for Students. Carefully printed illustrations and a complete glossary. Cloth, $3.00; leather, $3.50.

WILSON'S TEXT-BOOK OF DOMESTIC HYGIENE AND SANITARY INFORMATION. A Guide to Personal and Domestic Hygiene. By GEORGE WILSON, M.D., edited by JOE G. RICHARDSON, M.D., Prof. of Hygiene at the Univ. of Penna. 314 pages, 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

— An excellent Text-Book for Schools and Colleges. Including articles on The Effects of Intemperance; The Human Body; Digestion and Nutrition; The Causes of Disease; Food and Diet; Cleanliness and Clothing; Exercise, Recreation and Training; The Home and Its Surroundings; The Prevention of Infectious Diseases; etc.

PARKES' HYGIENE. A Practical Manual. Edited by F. S. B. FRANÇOIS DE CHAUMONT, M.D., F.R.S. Seventh edition. Illustrated with plates and wood-cuts. 786 pages, 8vo, cloth, $4.50.

WILSON'S HANDBOOK OF HYGIENE AND SANITARY SCIENCE. By GEORGE WILSON, M.A., M.D. Sixth edition. Illustrated. 552 pages, 12mo, cloth, $2.75.

TIDY'S HANDBOOK OF MODERN CHEMISTRY, Inorganic and Organic. For the use of students. Second edition, revised and enlarged. 8vo, cloth, 910 pages, $5.50.

DAVIS' TEXT-BOOK OF BIOLOGY. Comprising Vegetable and Animal Morphology and Physiology. Designed more especially to meet the requirements of the intermediate science and preliminary scientific examinations of the London University. By J. R. AINSWORTH DAVIS, B.A., Trinity College, Cambridge. With numerous illustrations, glossary, and examination questions. 12mo, cloth, 478 pages, $4.00.

HADDON'S INTRODUCTION TO THE STUDY OF EMBRYOLOGY. By ALFRED C. HADDON, M.A., Professor of Zoölogy in the Royal College of Science, Dublin. With nearly 200 illustrations. 8vo, cloth, 366 pages, $6.00.

KIRKES' HANDBOOK OF PHYSIOLOGY. By W. MORRANT BAKER, F.R.C.S., and VINCENT DORMER HARRIS, M.D. Eleventh edition, with nearly five hundred illustrations. 916 pages, 12mo, cloth, $4.00; sheep, $5.00.

STIRLING'S OUTLINES OF PRACTICAL PHYSIOLOGY. Being a Manual for the Physiological Laboratory, including Chemical and Experimental Physiology, with reference to Practical Medicine. With 142 illustrations. 326 pages, 12mo, cloth, $2.25.

BRUBAKER'S COMPEND OF HUMAN PHYSIOLOGY. Especially adapted for the use of Medical Students. By ALBERT B. BRUBAKER, M.D. Fourth edition, revised and enlarged. With illustrations, and a Table of Physiological Constants. 12mo, cloth, 174 pages, $1.00; interleaved, for taking notes, $1.25.

ARITHMETIC IN TWO BOOKS.

Warren Colburn's First Lessons, 35 Cents.

H. N. Wheeler's Second Lessons. [In Press.]

FIRST LESSONS.

A Revised and Enlarged Edition of WARREN COLBURN'S First Lessons (Intellectual Arithmetic upon the Inductive Method of Instruction) was published in 1884; descriptive circulars containing sample pages and recommendations—from which the following have been selected—will be sent to any address on application.

"It is the only English text-book upon arithmetic that I can unhesitatingly recommend."—Col. F. W. PARKER.

"It has never had a superior, and we think not an equal. . . ."—WILLIAM H. PAYNE, A.M., Professor of the Science and Art of Teaching, University of Michigan.

"Were I a business man, the training that I would exact from my accountants would be that obtained from Warren Colburn's book."—ALFRED S. ROE, Principal of High School, Worcester.

"The alterations and additions in this edition are improvements in what was previously the best, and by far the best, manual of mental arithmetic that I have ever seen."—THOMAS HILL, Ex-President of Harvard University.

"I will guarantee the success in higher mathematics of any one who, while young, has mastered this book."—J. H. BRAYTON, Principal of Webster School, Chicago, Ill.

SECOND LESSONS.

WHEELER'S Second Lessons (in press), although complete in itself, has been prepared to follow Colburn's First Lessons. Its brevity, the emphasis that it places on fundamental principles and their applications, and the omission of useless subjects, will make it acceptable, it is hoped, to those teachers and business men throughout the United States who demand that the essentials of arithmetic shall be better taught than now, and in less time, and that the non-essentials shall be omitted.

These two books form a complete course in arithmetic, which is characterized throughout by a careful application of the Inductive Method of Instruction by the aid of which the pupil is led to regard a new word as a labor-saving device for the expression of an idea, a definition as a brief statement of the net result of personal observation and thought, and a rule as a brief statement of how he has done something.

The Second Lessons will be published in August, 1888. A descriptive circular, including sample pages, will be ready soon.

IN PRESS.

A NEW AND REVISED EDITION OF

Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar.

By HENRY PREBLE, Assistant Professor of Greek and Latin at Harvard University.

We take pleasure in announcing that we shall publish shortly a new and carefully revised edition of the widely famous Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar. While this edition retains the valuable features of the old edition, it embodies the results of modern scholarship, and is designed to be the best possible combination of practicability and scientific accuracy. The favor with which the new edition [in manuscript] has already been received by teachers in preparatory schools and by professors in colleges warrants us in assuring all teachers of Latin that they will find it well worthy of their careful examination. We hope to have the work ready by August 1, 1888.

RAND, McNALLY & CO.'S

New Series of Educational Maps,

ESPECIALLY DESIGNED AND ENGRAVED FOR USE IN SCHOOLS.

Most Complete, Handsome, and Substantial School Maps ever Published.

These maps are distinguished by several new and useful features, being beautifully bold in outline, free from unimportant names, and so distinct that no difficulty is experienced in reading any name. They show the latest geographical discoveries and political changes in every part of the world. They are handsomely and artistically colored, so that the political boundaries can be readily distinguished at a distance. The names of towns are engraved in clear, bold type, and are also indicated by large black dots, so that the series can, if preferred, be used for "outline" maps. The lengths of the principal rivers and the altitudes of the highest mountains are engraved on the maps.

The maps are mounted on heavy cloth, with rollers, and varnished.

The Handy Reference Atlas of the World.

By JOHN BARTHOLOMEW, F.R.G.S., etc. With one hundred maps and plans, full geographical statistics and a complete index. 12mo, cloth, $3.00; half mor., $4.00; Persian mor., $5.00.

The maps (strongly mounted on guards) are made from the latest surveys and give not only the most recent geographical and political information, but also the principal physical and commercial features of the world. Nearly fifty pages of the volume are devoted to closely (yet clearly) printed statistics, and a copious index ingeniously indicates both the map and exact spot on it where any given place can be found.

Its 12mo size enables the reader to readily consult it in his hand without recourse to stand or table, and permits of its being shelved with other library volumes.

THE American Educational Catalogue

For 1888 [Nineteenth Year].

THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its nineteenth year, claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue was entirely remade last year, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and it will add this year all new books (ready or to be ready for the fall) in their proper alphabetical place.

The page of explanations of the Telegraphic Code will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered.

The Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5.00 ; per 1000, $40.00.

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page ; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5.00, or $1.00 if plate is sent.

* * Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1.00, postpaid.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE TRUTH-SEEKER CO., N. Y., have just published a unique novel, entitled "Love Ventures," a lively narrative of adventures in a country of Arcadian simplicity and general delightfulness. It contains sixteen illustrations and is neatly bound in an ornamented paper cover.

LEE & SHEPARD have in preparation "Chips from Educational Workshops of Europe," by Prof. L. R. Klemm; "Excellent Quotations," by Julia B. Hoitt; "A Modern Adam and Eve in a Garden," a new novel by Amanda Douglas; "Zoölogy Teaching for Beginners," by W. P. Manton; "Chapters from Jane Austen," for use of schools, by Oscar Fay Adams; and "Readings from Waverley Novels," edited by Dr. Blaisdell.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready two interesting books for the student of political economy and history. The first of these is entitled "The Tariff History of the United States," consisting of various essays by F. W. Taussig, which have already appeared in magazines or in book-form, and thus united present an almost complete history of tariff legislation from 1789 to 1887. The other is "Industrial Liberty," by John M. Bonham, who aims to keep in view the principles rather than the statistics of his subject, and makes an analysis of the salient political and industrial evils of our time.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. have in press a literary novelty, entitled "Run Down," by George D. Cox, of Philadelphia. The author, says the Press of that city, "is well known in theatrical and journalistic circles. His novel is on the same lines as Robert Louis Stevenson's 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde,' but the subjects of double identity and the tendency of a really good man to commit evil deeds are treated in a radically different manner, with entire probability and pronounced human interest. The hero is Father Fano, a highly gifted Catholic priest of the Order of Jesuits. Most of his seeming sins take an artistic turn, but he is also involved in a love-scape and figures in several gambling episodes."

THE WORTHINGTON CO. will publish at once "Studies in Criticism," a volume of seven essays by Florence Trail. The essays are entitled Pools Filled with Water, Glimpses into French Literature, Genius and Religion, Genius and Morality, History in Literature, Skepticism of the Heart, The Decline in Art. It is said to be a very remarkable book written by a new writer of great power. It makes enjoyable reading by its clearly defined ideas, the originality revealed in the unexpected relationship of certain ideas; the daring yet dogmatic expression of opinion, the vivid impression produced by an extraordinary command of the English language, and above all the author's inexhaustible enthusiasm and delight in study.

LITTLE, BROWN & CO. have now ready "Leech's Pictures from Punch," an entirely new issue of John Leech's "Pictures of Life and Character, from the Collection of Mr. Punch," comprising altogether nearly 4000 sketches, illustrating every phase of social life, 1842-1864, printed on fine-surfaced paper, from new electrotypes of the original wood blocks, and issued in three handsome cloth bound quarto volumes, with gilt edges; "The Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection, or, the preservation of favored races in the struggle for life," by Charles Darwin, sixth edition, in new large type with additions and corrections; "The Laws and Principles of Whist stated and explained, and its practice illustrated on the original system, by means of hands played completely through," by "Cavendish," the seventeenth edition (English), with the "hands" beautifully printed in colors; "Whist Developments: American leads and the plain-suit echo," by "Cavendish." In the Badminton Library of Sports they have a new volume on "Cricket," by W. Yardley; and in the Mermaid Series of the Old Dramatists, they have just ready "The Complete Plays of Wm. Wycherley," edited with an introduction and notes by W. C. Ward; "The Best Plays of Webster and Tourneur," with introduction and notes by John Addington Symonds; and "The Best Plays of John Ford," edited by Havelock Ellis.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); O. 4to: under 30 cm.; O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Ps. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights

Arnold, Edwin Lester. England as she seems; being selections from the notes of an Arab hadji. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1888. 128 p. S. pap., 35 c.

The author is the son of Edwin Arnold, who wrote "The light of Asia." The style of the sheik is grave and simple and his words show observation, learning, and a child-like simplicity in his descriptions of the city of London, Windsor Castle, town life, and country life in England. The last chapter, given to the reflections of the Hadji, is full of wise thoughts on the political and social history of England, all told in the picturesque language of the East.

"The various methods for the analysis of iron and steel, as well as the descriptions of special apparatus to facilitate the performance of the analytical work, are so widely distributed through transactions of societies, journals, reviews, periodicals, and works on general analytical chemistry, that only the possessor of a chemical library can command the literature of the subject. It is my object in the following pages to bring within the compass of a single volume, as nearly as possible, all the methods of real value to the iron analyst, and in doing this to give the credit of originality for the different methods and improvements to the proper persons."—Author's Preface.

Although the characters in this novel are numerous the interest centres in a trio, who seem to have been created into the world of fiction for the purpose of verifying the doctrine of predestination. They pass through scenes varied and shifting, are surrounded by exciting incidents, and become the chief figures in a plot that embraces several weddings, a death under suspicious circumstances, and a mystery that envelopes their lives, and demonstrates the idea that, strive as they may, there are people born who cannot avert their fates.

Crawford, F. Marion. With the immortals. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1888. c. 4+300 p. D. cl., $2.

A rich young nobleman, devoted to experiments in electricity takes his wife, her mother, and his sister to spend a happy summer on the shores of the beautiful bay of Sorrento. Owing to some experiment, described in wonderful detail, the conditions of the atmosphere become so changed that "immortals" can exist in them. Heine, Chopin, Leonardo da Vinci, Samuel Johnson, Julius Cæsar, Pascal, and Francis I. appear as sociable guests in the family reunions. Their conversations introduce ideas on literature, art, science, education, government, religion, love, etc., that enable the author to show the rare information, versatility, and industry which in one year could create "Sarcinacca," "Marzio's Crucifix," and "Paul Patoff."

Daudet, Alphonse. Thirty years of Paris and of my literary life; il. by Bieler, Montégut, Myrbach, Picard, and Rossi; tr. by Laura Ensor. N. Y., G. Routledge & Sons, 1888. c. tr. 348 p. D. pap., $1.50; hf. leath., $2.25.

A charming collection of autobiographical sketches in which Alphonse Daudet narrates the story of his life in Paris with its many interesting incidents. In several chapters, entitled "The story of my books," he tells of the writing and the causes which prompted the writing of "Little What's his name," "Jack," "Tartarin de Tarascon," "Letters from my windmill," and "Fro-mont jeune et Risler aîné." There are also reminiscences of Henri Rochefort, Henry Mounier, and Tourgueneff. The book is gotten up uniform with the previous volumes issued by this firm profusely illustrated through the text, and in a pretty paper cover with a vignette in colors.

A mother and three daughters, of whom one is a comfortable invalid, leave their home in Western New York and go to spend three months at Nassau, the leading seaport of the Bahama Islands. In a series of letters written to the many friends left behind the several members describe the manners, customs, scenery, food, shipping, schools, churches, colored labor, etc., in a bright, spicy manner, and give much useful information about a place where people's ideas of time, duty, and usefulness seem to be very vague.

A handbook on the animal life of the much-frequented Jersey coast and Long Island sea-coast by the Curator of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences. Divided into chapters as follows: 1. The shell-fish of the coast; 2. Squirts, polyps, and jelly-fishes; 3. Star-fishes, sea-urchins, and sea-cucumbers; 4. Our carcinological friends; 5. Worms, moss-polyps, sponges, etc.; 6. Some coastwise fishes.

Hullah, Mary E. In hot haste. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1888. 3+296 p. S. (Leisure hour ser., no. 217.) cl., $1; pap., 30 c.

Although coming from an English source, this novel is so German in thought and setting that it might be a translation. It opens in a small German village during the Franco-Prussian war, and though we get scarcely a scene from the campaign, the story is colored by its events. Sabine von Vogelheim, the heroine, is the one who gives the title to the book. Her marriage "in hot haste" to Kurt von Weide, of Pomerania, is originally conceived and daringly carried out. The motive for the marriage is the mystery of the book, held back to the last page. Sabine is always the central figure. First her home life is charmingly described with its German surroundings; then she is a governess in an English family outside of London and finally a society belle as Kurt's wife.

This little book is an attempt to reconstruct Cæsar's army so as to give a clear idea of its composition and evolutions. The author hopes that students of Cæsar's writings and students of military science alike may find interest in such a study.

*Lawson, T. W. The krank: his language and what it means; il. by Sears Gallagher. Bost., Rand Avery Co., [1888.] Fe. pap., 25 c.

Lear, E. Nonsense songs and stories. 6th ed. N. Y., F. Warne & Co., 1888. 8+125 p. Q. cl., $1.50.

The recent death of Mr. Lear has once more called attention to these songs and rhymes, which on their first appearance convulsed old and young and were quoted and parodied by everybody. Two letters of the author are given that add value to this edition. Very neatly and appropriately bound.

*Lindley, Nathaniel. A treatise on the law of partnership. Reprinted from 5th Eng. ed., with American notes by Stewart Rapalje. Jersey City, F. D. Linn & Co. 1888. c. 2 v. 109+578 p.; 579-1337 p. O. shp., $10.

McOlelland, M. G. Madame Silva. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 4+320 p. S. (Sunshine ser., v. 1, no. 11.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Mme. Silva is a "healer" or "adept," who is first met on her way to Staten Island to cure a nervous invalid, who has exhausted almost every form of treatment. The story is told by a young widow of twenty-eight, a friend of the invalid. A fascinating child of three or four plays a conspicuous part in the unravelling of a mysterious plot. The peculiar theories of various systems of healing are introduced and Mme. Silva and her evil genius and co-worker appear in several uncanny scenes. After bringing separated dear ones together the narrator smothers her own heart and retires in solitude. The second story is well told.

Medici, C. de. Two lunatics: a story, written by one of them. [Anon.] N. Y., Theo. Berendsohn, 86 Fulton St., 1888. c. 6+157 p. D. pap., 50 c.

In this story, which is really a series of essays on life, present and future, the author explains that he earned the name of "lunatic" by advocating truths his fellow-men did not care to hear. With mathematical precision he uses his inexhaustible store of words to prove the reality of the life to come. His friend, the other "lunatic," is an infidel, but the part assigned him is a minor one. The book is full of bright sayings and sarcastic criticisms of the various schools of thought, religion, and philosophy that have educated mankind. The description of a visit to Utopia enables the author to formulate his ideas of a world as it should be. Author of "Groundwork of classification (abstract from the commensurational system), with a panorama of evolution and exposition of Darwinism and theology conciliated;" also "Prefatory essay to the new science, mathematical commensuration, preceded by a research in the domain of geometry."

Napoleon Smith. N. Y.; The Judge Pub. Co., 38 Park Row, 1888. c. 202 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The author is said to be "a well-known New Yorker." His hero is an American who has a most remarkable experience. He claims to be an illegitimate descendant of the great Napoleon and to have inherited papers from his grandfather showing where vast treasures are buried, that Napoleon captured in his campaigns. Napoleon Smith after the battle of Gettysburg goes to Paris to hunt up his treasure and take part in the Franco-Prussian war. His adventures there during the Commune are most marvellous.

Parker, Harry. That sister-in-law of mine. N. Y., F: Warner & Co., 1888. 27 p. obl. Q. hf. saten, $1.50.

A series of pictures with almost superfluous explanation tell the story of the surprise of the brother-in-law, who consented to have the heroine stay with her sister during vacation, imagining her a raw young school-girl, when he finds her "a giantess," intensely self-possessed, full of fun and mischief, and bent on changing all his ideas and habits. The author and artist of "The man who would like to marry" and "The girl who wouldn't mind getting married" has made another success. Printed on one side only of heavy paper and attractively bound.

Pendleton, Edmund. A Virginia inheritance: a novel. N. Y., D. Appleton & Co., 1888. c. 303 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 6.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

A successful New York lawyer is employed by a rich man to go south and arrange negotiations for his entrance into his "Virginia inheritance." He finds a most original family living under happy-go-lucky circumstances and also meets his fate in the beautiful elder daughter. New York and Virginia society are admirably contrasted. Two life histories of interesting women are worked into the plot, and the character drawing of the women who lead society, their aims and ambitions, is excellent.

Pendleton, L. Bewitched: a tale. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 3+288 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., v. 1, no. 10.) pap., 50 c. "Bewitched" is a story of Florida. The hero is a hater of mankind; he obtains a grant of land from the Government and buries himself far away from civilization on the southwestern coast of Florida. His solitude is invaded by a strange party of people, who arrive in a yacht and take possession of an empty house. There is an old gentleman and beautiful girl, apparently the prisoners of a dark-browed Spaniard, some colored servants, and a "Voodoo" woman. They all have parts in an exciting tale of love and revenge. Two short stories complete the book, "Ariadne in the wire-glass" and "The story of black Dan."

Rand, McNally & Co.'s indexed sectional map of Ohio, showing the railroads, counties, organized townships, sections, rivers and creeks, together with every post-office, railroad station, village, and town, carefully indexed. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., [1888.] c. 27 p. folded map. S. cl., $1.50.

Reeve, Mrs. Clara. The old English baron: a Gothic story. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] 192 p. T. (Cassell's national lib., v. 3, no. 124.) pap., 10 c.

Rives, Amélie, [now Mrs. J. Armstrong Chanler.] Virginia of Virginia: a story. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 3+222 p. il. D. cl., $1.

The promise displayed in "A brother to dragons" is fully realized in this story. Through it Miss Rives takes a prominent place among our novelists as a delineator of character. Virginia Herrick, the overseer's daughter, is a new study, full of power and pathos. She is evidently drawn from life—herself and her surroundings coming within the range of the young writer's possible experience. The story takes place after the war on a Virginia plantation that a young Englishman has bought for a stud-farm. "Jack Roden" becomes the half-savage young girl's hero and the unconscious arbiter of her fate. Bonibel, a beautiful mare, holds only a secondary interest to Virginia in the story.

*Robert, A. B., (seud.) Ask her, man, ask her. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1888. 381 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Rolfe, W. J., ed. Tales from English history in prose and verse; selected from the works of standard authors; edited with notes by W. J. Rolfe. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 5+168 p. il. (English classics for school reading.) cl., 36 c.

The plan of this book is similar to that of the "Tales of chivalry," the initial volume of the series. "My aim," as the editor said in the former preface, "is to edit certain selections from standard prose and poetry suited either for supplementary reading, as it is called, or for elementary study in English literature. The brief foot-notes under the text are perhaps all that some teachers will regard as necessary for the former purpose, but I believe that the longer notes at the end of the book will be found more or less useful and suggestive for oral instruction in connection with the reading-lessons."

Mr Trumbull has had extensive opportunities for acquiring the information he has condensed in this volume, about upwards of sixty birds. He has selected these because they specially interest gunners, and are therefore widely known to non-scientific people, and are generally talked about. His plan is, first to give a picture of the bird, after this is given the scientific name, then a minute description of the bird in plain English that children can understand. All the bird's peculiarities are stated, and all differences between old and young, male and female. Then follow the various names given the bird by travellers and authors, and the several names popularly given to this particular bird in different localities from Maine to Florida, and westward to the Rocky Mountains.

Ward, Mrs. Humphry. Robert Elsmere. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1888. 4+604 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Robert Elsmere studied for the church at Oxford University in the first days of reaction after the "Oxford movement." During convalescence after an illness brought on by overwork, he meets and marries Catherine, an ardently religious girl of twenty-five, who has for years taken care of her invalid mother and two sisters. He is appointed to a "living" held by a rich squire in Devonshire, who is a recluse, a student, and a writer against orthodox religion. During an epidemic of fever, for which Robert holds the squire responsible, they become friends, and Robert begins to talk with him, read his books, and find his faith in the doctrines he preaches shaken to the foundation. After many torturing days he feels he must give up his parish. His wife suffers terribly, but her love triumphs, and, though never approving, she follows him to the end. He leaves the church, but works untiringly for the bodies and souls of his fellow-men. Mrs. Ward, who is a niece of Matthew Arnold, has written a strong story, which Mr. Gladstone considered worthy of an essay in the Nineteenth Century for May. The opening paper in Blackwood's for July is also on this novel.

The first edition of this geometry was issued about nine years ago. Taking advantage of the necessity for new plates, the author has rewritten the whole work, but has retained all the distinguishing characteristics of the former edition. More than seven hundred exercises have been introduced into this edition.

Wood, Clara W. Topics in ancient history; arranged for use in Mt. Holyoke Seminary and College. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. c. 45 p. D. pap., 20 c.

The object of this little pamphlet is to suggest rather than limit topical study, and was chiefly designed for the convenience of the students for whom it was arranged. The references indicate additional lines of thought, and admit of much variety of use in teaching and study, giving material help in brief lectures. The idea that the best literature is full of condensed philosophy of history is indicated in a series of illustrative quotations.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A BACHELOR'S WEDDING TRIP.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

DEAR SIR: In your review of "A Bachelor's Wedding Trip, by Himself," in your number of the 7th inst. you say: "The book seems designed as an advertisement of a New York Insurance Co." As the book was written without reference to any advertisement whatever, and as it was almost wholly in press before we even thought of obtaining the advertisement which is inserted at the end of the book (which was done, as you are doubtless aware, to decrease cost of publication), and as the book has not the slightest reference in it to that or any other advertisement, we hope that you will kindly correct the above statement in your next issue in ordinary justice to the author. Respectfully yours,
PEN PUB. CO.

THE WALTER SCOTT AGENCY COMPLICATION AGAIN.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, July 3, 1888.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

DEAR SIR: My attention is called to the leaderette in your issue of June 16, headed,

"Some International Misunderstandings," the main portion of which is devoted to the question of the relations of my agents and myself. I need not say that I am very sensible of the kindly nature of your remarks as regards myself; but there is one point on which I should like to say a word. Although near the close of your article you quote my letter informing you that I had not given my exclusive agency in the United States either to Mr. Whittaker or to Messrs. Gage, the tendency of your remarks a little higher in the column is to indicate that Messrs. Gage in seeking returns in the United States were acting without actual authority, and not quite as they ought. Messrs. Gage were mistaken if they supposed that I wished to drive Mr. Whittaker off the field, or vice versa. But it is unfair to assume, as you do, that Messrs. Gage were not my appointed agents in the United States, and hence were acting without warrant. I had no desire to bring about any complication, and I did not anticipate any; and I regret that such should have occurred. I can only hope that in the future I may be able to make such arrangements with the United States that no further unpleasantnesses may occur.

Yours faithfully,
WALTER SCOTT,
D. GORDON, Manager.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 28, 1888.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

THE BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

It must be a matter of great satisfaction to the members of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association to learn that at last the maximum of a thousand members has been reached. It has been a hard struggle, but now that it is realized we trust that those who have the interest of the association at heart will not be content to rest on their oars, but will continue the good work and devise ways and means to render the association of still greater value—not only to the present members, but to others who have until now stood irresolutely by, waiting to see whether the association could live, and what guarantees it might be able to offer in case they should identify themselves with it and risk the payment of a sum of money, however small. Many objections have been raised by these outsiders to the manner in which the association has worked, but as yet there has not been cause either for alarm or for change in the methods of administration. The affairs of the association have been in the hands of men who reasonably may take pride in the work they have accomplished—unselfish as all this work has been, and accompanied with not a little sacrifice of time and money. The officers are for the greater part hard-worked employes who have done all their work for the association in spare moments and overtime. And far from being satisfied to let the association run as it might, the officers, as well as other active members, have given serious consideration to measures to be adopted for the future administration of the society. In good time these plans will be submitted for action, and then we trust that every member will feel it his special duty to be present at the meeting to be called for this purpose and to give to the propositions his intelligent and earnest consideration.

We reprint elsewhere the sketch of the association prepared for Geyer's Stationer, omitting the Constitution, already printed in the WEEKLY, and the list of members. The sketch is interesting and suggestive of what great good can be done by a few earnest men. This work also encourages us to hope that in a few years we may have a suitable headquarters for the trade. The beginning might be made with fifty or a hundred members at either $50 or $25 initiation fee and yearly dues of $12. What with the capital realized in this manner and contributions that would surely be forthcoming from well-wishers of the fraternity, there would seem to be no doubt of the success of such a movement. And what is more, it is bound to be realized. Who will make the beginning?

It is to be hoped that now the House of Representatives has thrown off the burden of the Tariff bill it will proceed to give early attention, among other worthy matters, to the Copyright bill. The greater part of the bills yet before the House are of little importance compared to this measure, which, if any, ought to become a law. It will be a disgrace to the 50th Congress if the bill does not come up in this session.

PRANG'S ART PUBLICATIONS FOR 1888.

L. PRANG & Co. are again ready for the trade to select stock for the approaching gift season from their "things of beauty," old and new. Year by year it would seem almost impossible to get up new ideas in art color books, a field now worked by so many of our leading publishers. Still this house, by forethought, energy, generosity, and good taste, always holds its own in its special line. This year a specially appropriate thought is given to children in a charming book entitled "Louisa May Alcott—the children's friend," giving a biographical sketch of the lamented author by Ednah D. Cheney, with some characteristic poems and illustrations by Lizbeth B. Comins. The frontispiece shows Miss Alcott surrounded by troops of children, a very fine piece of color printing. Miss Comins also shows pretty work in "What the Bird Said to Bertha," a naturally told story of a discontented little girl to whom a bird read a helpful lesson, which is illustrated in monochrome, and gotten up in paper cover with color and gold, and in "The Birds' Christmas," another lovely story written and illustrated by this talented lady. Louis K. Harlow, whose work met with such favor last winter, has been untiring, and six of the new publications are illustrated by his graceful pencil: "The Voice of the Grass," a poem by Sarah Roberts, with six full-page illustrations in color, and seven monochrome plates, offered in paper cover with hand-painted title and also in silk plush and satin; "Mount Desert—autographs," with twelve illustrations and many blank leaves for autographs; "Golden Milestones," poetic selections, with ten monochrome plates; "Flotsam and Jetsam," four plates in color and four in monochrome with appropriate verses, fastened in the form of the mainsail of a yacht, the mast, gaff, and boom being nickel-plated, with a sail of silk with hand-painted title; "Come, Sunshine, Come," a poem from the French, with six full-page illustrations; and "The Home of Shakespeare," containing eight full-page illustrations after water-color sketches painted on the spot, giving charming views of Stratford-on-Avon, appropriately dedicated to all lovers of Shakespeare, and especially to George W. Childs, of Philadelphia. An original and pretty trifle is "Christmas Mince Pie with Shakespearian Spice," giving illustrations in monochrome, designed by Lizzie K. Harlow, of the ingredients of mince pie with fitting selections from Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," fastened in a cover in imitation of upper and lower pie crust, and stamped out in the shape of a generous piece of pie. Mrs. Rose Mueller Sprague furnishes "Old Stories in New Attire," costume pictures in color of characters from "Mother Goose," including Cinderella, Bo-Peep, Little Boy Blue, Mother Hubbard, etc.; and "A Gay Day for Seven," a juvenile story profusely illustrated. Rose Terry Cooke's "Old Garden" has been illustrated by Harriet D. Andrews and Mary K. Talcott. A very handsome publication is "Baby's Lullaby Book—mother songs," by Charles Stuart Pratt, illustrated in water-colors by W. L. Taylor, with music by G. W. Chadwick, in which full justice is done to the touching subject by composer, artist, musician, and publisher. Besides these books there are numbers of etchings prepared, and an array of Christmas and New Year's cards, novelties, and matin art prints of which the cold list of titles would give a most inadequate idea. Every poet, every land, every season, every hour of day and night have found interpretation.

COST OF PUBLISHING IN GERMANY.

THE cost of putting on the market in Germany a strictly scholarly work, of which the number that may be sold will not exceed 500, and assuming the author to be neither unknown nor famous, is: Composition and presswork for an 8vo volume of 320 pages, 500 copies, $175; paper, $41.25; author's compensation, $125; incidental expenses, $33.75; total, $375. Moreover, the author of a work of more popular character, which may be expected to sell 1000 copies, or of a novel which sells 1500 copies, gets no more for his labor; but the compiler of a school-book which is likely to sell 5000 copies gets the fabulous sum of $150.

ALL OPEN TO CRITICISM.

MR. WANASH—Do you admire Miss Rives's literary style, Miss Waldo?

Miss Waldo—Well, to be frank, I must confess that at times it is, perhaps, a trifle imitistical, yet there is an open shrankness or shrank openness, as it were, a plethoric woodlosity or millmerylly, one might say, which captivates in spite of the imitisticality which occasionally betrays itself.—Tid-Bits.

HISTORY OF THE BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

BY J. F. VOGELIUS.*

BEFORE the establishment of our association, every now and then a subscription paper would be circulated among the friends of some deceased member of the book-trade, setting forth that the widow and children were penniless, and that the case was urgent. The appeal, naturally, was presented first to the most prominent members of the trade, who would generally head the list with $5 or $10 each, others following according to ability or inclination. In this way perhaps fifty or a hundred dollars would be collected and given to the family of the deceased.

Under this arrangement it was quite a tax on some few of the trade, while others, who were able to contribute, were not approached. At the best, it was simply a begging affair, and whatever good reputation the deceased might have had while alive, it was certain that the circulation of the petition did not add to the pleasant remembrance of him.

Whenever one of these petitions was circulated, the question arose in my mind, "How is it that the book-trade have not formed some sort of an association for their mutual benefit as other trades have done?" I often put this question to others in the trade, and several agreed with me that it would be a good thing to have an association of this kind, and here the matter usually rested. No one felt inclined to take hold of it and make a start. Some even doubted whether enough of the trade could be got together to lend a helping hand, and whether an organization of booksellers could be made to hold together. A good many of my friends had an idea that the average bookseller was different from other human beings and that he could not be made to work in harmony with his fellows. As an illustration, they would cite the history of the American Book-Trade Association, the Publishers' Board of Trade, and other organizations of the trade that were formed for mutual protection, and had vanished.

This, however, did not discourage me, as the association I had in mind was for an entirely different purpose—for the protection, not of ourselves, but of those we should leave behind us. I was well aware that a large majority of those I wished to enlist could not afford to carry a life insurance in a regular company. The plan haunted me by day and by night. I began to look into the workings of other organizations, procured their constitutions and by-laws, and outlined a general plan as to what I thought met the requirements of the case.

Armed with this plan, I talked the matter over with my most intimate friends in the trade. Whenever an opportunity offered, I broached the subject to others, and even urged such as were in favor of action, and were in a position to help, to take hold. I myself had not the slightest idea of undertaking to start such an organization, as I had no leisure for it. In fact, the talking and urging that I had already done had encroached so much upon my time that I had made up my mind not to do any more of it, and so let the matter drop. Whenever anybody mentioned the subject to me I politely told them to take hold of it themselves, as they were better able to give the matter the attention it deserved and required.

Some little while after this, others in the trade also got the idea that the book-trade ought to have an association of some kind, or felt the necessity of it. They presented their views in the form of communications to the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. The first one of these appeared February 16, 1878, headed as follows:

"A TRADE INSURANCE ORGANIZATION.

"To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

"We wish to suggest to the trade the desirability of the organization of a Booksellers' and Publishers' Mutual Life Insurance Co., to be conducted on a similar plan to the Commercial Travellers' Insurance Co., of Syracuse, which is like several other organizations in this country and Europe. We shall be pleased to see, through the columns of your journal, an expression in regard to this subject. With a proper organization and with the assistance of the trade journals, we believe at least five thousand would gladly avail themselves of the opportunity to become members, and that this number should be the limit.

"Very respectfully yours,

"A. J. BICKNELL & Co."

Several other communications followed, among which was one from Mr. Edward C. Swayne, of E. P. Dutton & Co., advocating Messrs. Bicknell & Co.'s plan, and another from Mr. J. E. Powers, in which he discussed the drawbacks of the regular life insurance companies. The WEEKLY, Geyer's Stationer, and other trade papers also discussed the matter editorially, advocating the formation of an association. Here the matter rested.

On June 29, 1878, the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY in its editorial columns said:

"Some of the gentlemen interested in the scheme for a trade mutual benefit association have been considering the advisability of joining the general 'Mutual Benefit Association of New York' recently incorporated. This association presents certain advantages, but we have not yet had sufficient opportunity to examine into its workings and personnel to express definite opinion on the subject, as we hope to in future."

These communications and editorials in the various papers again put new life into the matter, and my friends in the trade were at me once more to go ahead and perfect plans, promising me their hearty and effective support. All this had the effect of arousing new enthusiasm in me, and I finally consented to take hold of the matter. My first step was to draw up the following:

"We, the undersigned, agree to form an association to be known as the American Book-Trade Provident Association with headquarters at New York City, for the purpose of aiding the widows, children or other legal representatives of our deceased members, by the payment of two dollars and ten cents ($2.10) as initiation fee, and one dollar and ten cents ($1.10) upon the decease of every member. And we further agree to be governed by, and to observe, such articles of association and by-laws as may be enacted hereafter by two-thirds of the members whose signatures are appended to the various lists now in circulation."

In order to see whether enough names could be got to make a fair start, I placed copies of this paper in the hands of the following gentlemen: Charles G. Collins, with the American News Company; Robert Morris, with D. Appleton & Co.; John H. Dingman, with Charles Scribner's Sons; Charles E. Cunningham, with C.

T. Dillingham; and I myself carried a copy with me. These five gentlemen constituted themselves a committee on organization. A copy of the paper was also sent to Mr. E. D. Hardy, with Roberts Bros., Boston, and one to Mr. D. N. Morrison, then with Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger, Phila.

The lists of signatures were closely watched. Whenever we met a man whose name did not appear there, we shoved the paper before him, explained its object, and gave him no rest until he had appended his signature. Messrs. Hardy and Morrison also made a thorough canvass of Boston and Philadelphia.

A signer was not finally committed to action, yet a good many withheld their names on the ground that they wanted to know more about details. It therefore became necessary to put the plan of the proposed association in print. This was done in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of September 14, 1878, and in Geyer's Stationer. The committee now had something to work by, and their labors were considerably reduced.

In March, 1879, the committee on organization of which I had been made secretary, decided to issue a call for a meeting to be held March 3, for the purpose of organizing the association. Up to this time, 283 persons had put their names in the various lists, thus indicating that we were on a fair way to make a start.

The meeting was held at the appointed time, at the trade salesrooms of Messrs. Geo. A. Leavitt & Co. Mr. Arthur E. Welch was made temporary chairman and I was made secretary, pro tem.

A constitution which I had drawn up was submitted to the meeting and adopted, subject to revision by the Board of Trustees. At the meeting a board of trustees, consisting of fifteen members, was elected, which, after filling vacancies caused by resignations, was composed as follows:

To serve for three years: O. M. Dunham, Manager, Cassell, Petter & Galpin; J. B. Brigham, with Baker, Pratt & Co.; J. F. Vogelius, with Henry Holt & Co.; Chas. T. Dillingham; Andrew Geyer, Manager Geyer's Stationer.

To serve for two years: C. E. Cunningham, with C. T. Dillingham; J. T. Ryan, with American News Company; Arthur E. Welch, with Cassell, Petter & Galpin; Robert Norris, with D. Appleton & Co.; J. F. Smith, with A. D. F. Randolph & Co.

To serve for one year: John H. Dingman, with Charles Scribner's Sons; John Briggs, with Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co.; C. E. Hopkins, with Liebenroth, Von Auw & Co.; E. C. Swayne, with E. P. Dutton & Co.; Charles G. Collins, with American News Company.

On April 9, 1879, the board held its first meeting, Mr. O. M. Dunham presiding. Messrs. Boscawen and Chapman, tendered their resignation as trustees, and Messrs. C. T. Dillingham and C. E. Cunningham were elected in their places, making the first Board of Trustees as printed above.

The board then organized permanently by electing the following officers: President, Chas. T. Dillingham; Vice-President, Chas. G. Collins; Treasurer, O. M. Dunham; Secretary, J. F. Vogelius. At a subsequent meeting of the board Mr. C. E. Hopkins was elected second vice-president. The constitution was also taken up and revised, and, in order to relieve the board of all responsibility, the constitution as revised was again submitted to the association, and adopted.

May 1, 1879. On August 30, 1879, the association was incorporated. Since then no revisions or amendments have been made.

The Board of Trustees now set to work in earnest; discussions arose as to the best method of bringing the association before the trade. All sorts of plans were set in motion to swell the membership, the trade papers published our proceedings regularly, but it was up-hill work.

Of the 283 signers on the original papers, but 154 became members of the association. A year later, June 1, 1880, when the first annual meeting was held, our membership numbered but 237. Since then the association has steadily grown year by year.

It soon became impossible for me to give the work the attention that my position as secretary demanded. I had repeatedly stated this to the board, but owing to the difficulty of securing a proper person who could devote the necessary time to the office, I was forced to retain the secretaryship for a much longer period than I had anticipated. Finally, Mr. W. D. Myers, then with Messrs. Harper & Brothers, was secured for the office, August 31, 1881.

Before concluding I must also mention that the association is greatly indebted to our worthy president, Mr. C. T. Dillingham, who has been one of the most active workers from its formation to the present day, and to Mr. B. H. Ticknor, of Boston, Col. J. H. Ammon, now of New York, J. H. May and E. Meeks, of Philadelphia, R. K. Smith, of Chicago, and many other members, for the interest they have taken in bringing the matter to the attention of their friends and thus helping to swell the membership roll.

Mr. Vogelius' narrative takes us only to the formation of the association and leaves us there on the threshold.

The remainder must be written largely from memory.

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees held at the office of Henry Holt & Co., 25 Bond St., on April 9, 1879, Charles T. Dillingham was elected president, Charles G. Collins, vice-president, and J. F. Vogelius, secretary of the association. Slowly but surely the membership of the association grew; starting with 154 members in April, 1879, it had at the Annual meeting on June 2, 1880,	237 members.

" " " " 1, 1881,	283 "
" " " " 7, 1882,	343 "
" " " " 6, 1883,	415 "
" " " " 4, 1884,	835 "
" " " " 3, 1885,	846 "
" " " " 2, 1886,	855 "
" " " " 1, 1887,	920 "
" " " " 6, 1888,	978 "

By the above list it will be seen that while the association gained 420 members in 1884, it did not hold its growth, for it only gained 20 during the next two years. The great gain as noted above was the result of the hard work of John H. May and Edward Meeks, of Philadelphia, who made a Western trip together, and gathered into the association all they could.

B. H. Ticknor and Col. J. A. Ammon, of Boston, worked among the members of the trade in that city with great success.

The result was to put the association solidly upon its feet, and though many of the new members dropped out, there has never been a time since when the officers have not felt sure of reaching the full limit of membership, and that, too, without unseemly effort. The association has been remarkably favored in the health of its members.

The total amount paid out of the death fund of the association since it started to date has been $22,497.00, while the entire cost of starting and running the association to date, including commissions to agents, has been $2327.27.

Mr. Vogelius held the office of Secretary until August 31, 1881, when press of business forced him to resign. Every member of the association owes a debt of gratitude to Jos. F. Vogelius for the hard work he did in getting the association under way. Few members of the trade are busier men than "Joe" Vogelius, and the valuable hours he so freely gave in behalf of the poor and needy of the trade had to be made good by working overtime. No one can sum up the amount of good the association has accomplished. We do not wish to go into details in matters like this, but few, very few of the thirty-five members of the association who have been summoned to the "silent camp" have left one dollar to keep those left behind. Often and often has the President been appealed to by wife or friends to guarantee the funeral expenses of the deceased before the claim had been presented and passed upon by the board.

The association has been a great blessing to many a home. Its great and only object is to relieve the distress of a deceased member's family. No red tape, no standing on technicalities, but help at once has been given. The founder builded better than he knew, and if there is anything in fame, if the good deeds done in the body live after us and take with them a sweet perfume down through the ages yet to come, surely the memory of the founder of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association will have perennial fragrance. May it be many years before we mourn his loss.

W. D. Myers was elected Secretary to succeed Mr. Vogelius, and served until June 27, 1883, when he in turn was succeeded by John A. Holden. Mr. Holden held the office of Secretary one year, and on June 25, 1884, Andrew Geyer was elected his successor and he still holds the position.

The first and only President of the association is Charles T. Dillingham, and the position the association has attained to-day is due in great measure to his fostering care; time, money, his personal influence, the influence of friends, have been freely used to help the association. Mr. Dillingham is known in the book-trade from one end of the country to the other, no man has a greater influence, and in all cases and at all times he has been ready to use it for the good of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association.

O. M. Dunham was elected Treasurer of the association at the first meeting of the board, and he has served in that capacity ever since. No better man for the position could be found, and the Board of Trustees would never listen to any suggestions of a change, and we trust they never will.

Of the present Board of Trustees Messrs. Geyer, Vogelius, Dunham, Dillingham, Cunningham, Ryan, and Morris have served continuously since 1879, while Thomas R. Knox and Daniel Pritchard were elected in 1880. John A. Holden and George J. Leary have served since June, 1883.

The Board of Trustees and officers of the association for 1888-89 are:

Officers: President, Charles T. Dillingham; Vice-President, Thomas R. Knox; Second Vice-President, Robert Morris; Treasurer, O. M. Dunham; Secretary, Andrew Geyer; Medical Examiner, Dr. J. G. Wilbur; Counsel, George F. Duysters, 120 Broadway, New York.

Board of Trustees for 1888-89: Three years.—O. M. Dunham, J. F. Vogelius, C. T. Dillingham, Andrew Geyer, John H. Ammon. Two years.—F. P. Lennon, J. T. Ryan, R. Morris, C. E. Cunningham, J. J. McCarthy. One year.—W. S. Merriam, J. A. Holden, Thos. R. Knox, G. J. Leary, D. Pritchard.

The following are Honorary Vice-Presidents of the Association: B. H. Ticknor, of Ticknor & Co., Boston, Mass.; R. K. Smith, with A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago, Ill.; Edward Meeks, Philadelphia, Pa.; Samuel Carson, San Francisco, Cal.; J. C. Parker, Washington, D. C.; Walter R. Austin, Burrows Bros. Co., Cleveland, O.; Harry Watts, of Harry Watts & Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

President Charles T. Dillingham was born at Bangor, Me., in 1842, and at an early age found employment in the house of Crosby, Nichols & Co., where he made the acquaintance of William Lee, now of Lee & Shepard, the Boston publishers. In 1862 he entered the publishing-house of Oliver S. Felt, and, with the exception of a short interval, remained there till Mr. Felt's death in 1868, after which he founded the firm of Felt & Dillingham in connection with Francis B. Felt. The firm was dissolved in 1870, and the firm of Lee, Shepard & Dillingham formed, with Mr. Dillingham as managing partner in this city. Their house was then at 47 and 49 Greene Street, but in 1875 they moved to 678 Broadway, and in the same year the partnership was dissolved, and Mr. Dillingham, engaged in the jobbing business under his own name. His trade rapidly increased, and in January of this year he moved to a larger store at 718 and 720 Broadway. He is a member of the Seventh Regiment Veteran Corps, of several social and benevolent societies, and has been President of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association since its beginning, in all of which capacities he has been very popular.

Thomas R. Knox, the Vice-President of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association, was born in New York City, December 20, 1842. Educated in the public schools, he, at the age of 14, entered the house of Charles S. Francis & Co., then located at 554 Broadway. This house, which was established in 1826, was succeeded by James Miller in 1860, and Mr. Knox remained in it through the change. About five years ago he succeeded Mr. Miller, organizing the present firm of Thomas R. Knox & Co., located at 817 Broadway. He has been actively connected with the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association since its start, having been elected a trustee at the first election, but resigning in favor of Mr. Vogelius, who was not then elected. At the next election, however, Mr. Knox was elected on the Board of Trustees, which office he has since held, having been the Vice-President of the association for the last eight years.

Andrew Geyer was born in Boston, Nov. 25, 1842, and with the exception of two years spent as a bookkeeper, has been in the stationery trade all his business life, beginning with the house of Henry F. Marsh on Cornhill. Here his ability as a salesman soon placed him on the road, representing the firm first on the New England circuit and later taking the Western route. Coming to New York he joined the stationery department of D. Appleton & Co., and left them to become the resident buyer of several of the largest jobbing houses of the West.

Ever since his pushing out for himself he has been in the front rank of workers for the advancement of the best interests of the stationery trade, and in most cases he has led the movement and held the laboring oar. In 1875 he compiled the Stationers' Price Book, and the same year he devoted his time to the organization of the Stationers' Board of Trade, and was elected its first Secretary. The same year he also organized the Stationers' Exchange, which had the support of the leading houses in the stationery line. In 1877 Geyer's Stationer was started and was at once recognized as the leading journal of the trade.

Mr. Geyer has been Secretary of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association since 1884. His long experience on the road gives him an acquaintance with the trade few men possess, as there is scarcely a town between Bangor, Me., and St. Paul, Minn., or in the larger cities of the South, where he has not personal friends among the trade who recognize him as one of the leading specialists in the trade.

Oscar M. Dunham, the Treasurer of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association, was born in New York City, November 29, 1844, and received his education in the public schools. When about fifteen years of age he got a situation in the book and news business with J. W. Norris in Chicago. He was with this firm for about eighteen months and then went to Charles Macdonald, who is still in the book business in Chicago. Here he only remained six months, coming East with the American News Co., with which he stayed thirteen years. His first position with them was as clerk in the newspaper department, but later on was put in charge of the book department, which position he held until he left them. He then went to Cassell & Co. to take the management of their American branch, and has conducted it successfully for the last twelve years. He was elected Treasurer of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association at its formation and has held that office up to the present time.

Joseph Francis Vogelius was born September 18, 1848, in Brilon, Prussia. He came to the United States in 1852 and went to Trinity School, Philadelphia. He was only thirteen years of age when he left school to take a situation in the foreign book business of F. Leypoldt, Philadelphia, the founder of the present house of Henry Holt & Co. In 1864 Mr. Leypoldt opened a branch house in New York, and it was then that Mr. Vogelius was sent to this city to take charge of the New York house. In 1866 the firm was changed to Leypoldt & Holt, and in 1873 to Henry Holt & Co. At present Mr. Vogelius holds the position of manager and has charge of the manufacturing department. Mr. Vogelius says that for four or five years after he left school he spent his evenings in study and to that he owes his success. Before he was married he lived with his old employer, Mr. Leypoldt, and from him got many valuable examples of business integrity and industry. He has a remarkably retentive memory and can remember a face for years.

OBITUARY.

EDWARD PAYSON ROE.

REV. E. P. ROE, for the last ten years the most widely-read American author, died at his beautiful home at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson, on Thursday, July 19. During a recent visit to Charleston, S. C., Mr. Roe for the first time became aware that he suffered from neuralgia of the heart, and the second attack of the trouble coming on Thursday, he died within a few hours, after enduring very severe pain. Mr. Roe was born at Windsor, N. Y., on the banks of the Hudson, in 1838, and was in the prime of his happy and useful life. He was educated at Williams College, studying for the Presbyterian ministry. After a year at Auburn Theological Seminary, he took the chaplaincy of the 2d New York Cavalry, generally known as the Harris' Light Cavalry. After serving in the field a year or two he was appointed by President Lincoln as chaplain of the Fortress Monroe hospitals. At the close of the war Mr. Roe received a call from the Presbyterian church at Highland Falls, about a mile from West Point. When in October, 1871, the news of the fearful Chicago fire reached New York on that fateful Monday morning, Mr. Roe was irresistibly drawn to visit the scenes which occupied the thoughts and labors of the civilized world. He started West and was deeply impressed by the bravery and courage of the undaunted though almost ruined citizens of Chicago. He spent several days in visiting the different parts of the city, and then returned to his mountain home and shortly after began his "Barriers Burned Away." It appeared as a serial in The Evangelist and was widely read, and when, shortly after, it was issued in book-form by Dodd, Mead & Co., it had a fabulous sale. Encouraged by this totally unforeseen success, the young preacher was seized with the idea that with his pen he could reach a much wider circle than with his voice, and be enabled to do a far greater work in helping his fellow-men and working for the righting of various social wrongs and abuses. With a heart full of love for his fellow-men, a great deal of desultory information, and a deep knowledge of human nature, Mr. Roe began his work. He never wrote a line he could not have preached, but he never preached in his stories, and almost every year he finished a book that was eagerly waited for by the masses, and for several years Mr. Roe received the largest income of any American author. These stories were almost all first published serially. They have had an average sale of over four thousand copies, have all been republished in England and the British Colonies, and many of them have been translated into French and German. As an offset to his sedentary occupation, Mr. Roe rested by working in his garden, and made a specialty of raising small fruits and roses. It was this occupation which furnished the material for "Success with Small Fruits" and the delightful text of "Nature's Serial Story," which first appeared in Harper's Magazine, and provided such charming subjects for the pencils of Hamilton and Gibson. Mr. Roe wrote one story for children for St. Nicholas, called "Driven Back to Eden," which told of city children in the country in a delightful way. Mr. Roe's latest story, entitled "Love," is now running as serial in the Cosmopolitan. His best-known books are: "Barriers Burned Away," "Opening of a Chestnut Burr," "Culture of Small Fruits," "Success with Small Fruits," "Play and Profit in the Garden," "What Can She Do?" "Near to Nature's Heart," "From Jest to Earnest," "A Knight of the Nineteenth Century," "A Face Illumined," "A Day of Fate," "Without a Home," "His Sombre Rivals," "A Young Girl's Wooing," "An Original Belle," "Driven back to Eden," "Nature's Serial Story," and "He Fell in Love with His Wife." A volume of "Birthday Mottoes" has been printed, made up of quotations from his writings. Dodd, Mead & Co. have published all Mr. Roe's writings in very neat shape. Mr. Roe was devoted to his home and family and spent an annual income of $15,000 in making them and his friends happy. Only a few weeks ago he gave a garden-party to the Authors' Club, and on the night he died he spent the evening reading selections from his favorite Hawthorne to a party of guests. Mr. Roe's wife and he had known each other since they were ten years old. The funeral took place on Monday, July 23.

CAPTAIN ROLAND FOLGER COFFIN, author of "The Queen's Cup," "Archibald the Cat," "Old Sailor's Yarns," and other works on nautical matters, and yachting editor of The World and The Spirit of the Times, died suddenly on the evening of the 17th inst., of heart disease, at Shelter Island.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. EDGAR SALTUS' latest volume is entitled "Eden." It is a honeymoon episode on Fifth Avenue.

It is reported that T. C. De Leon is the author of "The Rock or the Rye?" the clever burlesque on Miss Rives' "Quick or the Dead?"

It may not be generally known that the author of "An Irish Knight of the 19th Century," Miss Varina Anne Davis, is the daughter of Jefferson Davis.

DANTE GABRIEL ROSSETTI wrote quantities of letters to Hall Caine, which letters the latter proposes to publish by and by, with elucidatory extracts from his own correspondence.

"STEPNIAK," says the Athenæum, "has almost completed a novel—his first—which is to be called 'The Enthusiasts.' The book, which opens at Geneva, is, of course, a study of revolutionary character and a picture of revolutionary incident and adventure."

GEORGE BANCROFT, the venerable historian, met with a serious accident at Newport, R. I., on the 14th inst. He had just returned from a drive with his daughter-in-law, Mrs. John C. Bancroft, and was about to ascend the steps of his house, when he fell. He was seriously shaken up and considerably bruised. He is feeling better again, but naturally his friends were alarmed because of his age and his decline in health since his wife's death.

MR. EWALD, of the Record Office, has been appointed to calendar the state papers of William and Mary for the series published by the Master of the Rolls. The greater portion of this collection has never yet reached the light, and contains much matter which shows how keen was the personal supervision exercised by the Deliverer not only over the foreign affairs, to which his direction is generally thought to have been limited, but over all the domestic details of government which came before the Council.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE August number of Scribner's Magazine will be a fiction number, containing contributions from Robert Louis Stevenson, Henry James, Sara Orne Jewett, Octave Thanet, F. J. Stimson, and Maria Blunt. It will also contain two richly illustrated descriptive articles, one of them the third in the Railway Series, entitled "American Locomotives and Cars," by M. N. Forney.

THE August Century will be issued on the first day of the month as usual, in spite of the fire which did such serious damage to the editorial and business offices of the magazine. The contents of this issue—the Midsummer Holiday Number—will include an account of Mr. George Kennan's first meeting with political exiles in Siberia. Readers of this series of articles on Siberia will be interested in a biographical sketch of Mr. Kennan (with portrait), in this number, written by Miss Anna Laurens Dawes, a daughter of Senator Dawes, in which will be explained Mr. Kennan's peculiar fitness for his task, his previous knowledge of Russian affairs, etc.

THE August number of the Forum will complete the fifth volume; and during the two years and a half covered by these volumes both sides of every subject of great public concern have been treated in its pages by leaders of opinion. The list of contributors contains the names of more than 250 of the foremost writers in America, England, and France. Beginning with the sixth volume a new feature will be added to the Forum. Every number will contain a signed article of literary criticism, reviewing the most important recent books in the several great departments of thought, and every writer will be a recognized authority in his department.

THE tariff question is not often discussed in a style that combines serious argument with entertaining reading, and so the article of this character, which is promised to open the August Popular Science Monthly, should have a cordial welcome. It is from the pen of David Starr Jordan, President of the University of Indiana, and is a witty allegory, entitled "The Octrol at Isoire, or, a city made rich by taxation." Herbert Spencer is working again, though with difficulty, for he says it took him from the middle of March to the first of June to write the article on "The Ethics of Kant," which he will contribute to the August Popular Science Monthly. Mr. Spencer combats Kant's idea that only right things done in obedience to duty have moral worth, while the same things done from love of the right in and for itself are morally valueless.

THE "July-August" number of The Art Review, published from 31 E. 17th St., New York, begins Vol. III. of the magazine and the new series of bi-monthly issues. The latter mode of publication will not only allow more time and care in the preparation of the 54 "Art Supplements" given annually by the magazine (6 etchings, 6 wood-engravings, and 42 full-page photogravures reproducing American scenery, paintings, statuary, architecture, etc.), but will also be better adapted to the review character of the articles—descriptive and critical accounts of the more important exhibitions in New York and elsewhere. Subscription price has been reduced to $7.50 per year. Encouraged by the cordial reception given to The Art Review, the editor and publisher of the Review (Mr. Geo. Forbes Kelly) will begin in September next a new art periodical, entitled The Art Courier, issued twice a month or 24 times a year. This publication will aim to give the art news of the fortnight, presented in readable style, with brief editorial comments. Each number will have, as its Art Supplement, a photogravure, and these 24 plates will be furnished with the letter-press for the low price of $4 a year.

BUSINESS NOTES.

AVALON, MO.—C. J. Case, bookseller, has removed to Carrollton.

BESSEMER, ALA.—Ellison & Root, booksellers and stationers, have been succeeded by T. B. Ellison.

BOSTON, MASS.—Lindsay & Co., 36 Bromfield Street, general agents for subscription-books, would like to make arrangements with publishers of fine subscription-books.

HONOLULU, SANDWICH ISLANDS.—Thos. G. Thrum has sold out his old-established book business to W. H. Graenhalgh.

NEW YORK CITY.—In consequence of the recent fire at the Century Company's premises, their business offices, including the subscription-book and hymn and tune book departments, have been temporarily removed to the fourth floor of Nos. 27 and 29 West 23d St. The editorial and art departments of The Century and St. Nicholas Magazines are in the De Vinne Press Building, No. 12 Lafayette Place. It is expected that their former quarters at No. 33 East 17th Street, Union Square, will be in condition to receive all their offices early in October.

NEW YORK CITY.—Goodenough & Woglom, booksellers, who failed recently, are offering to compromise at 10 cents on the dollar, and a committee of creditors, consisting of Messrs. Phillips, Drummond, and John R. Anderson, recommended at a meeting of creditors held on the 13th inst. that the proposition be accepted.

NEW YORK CITY.—Thomas R. Knox & Co. who succeeded James Miller, have made an assignment.

PATERSON, N. J.—Wm. H. Barry has succeeded to the right and title of the Aldine Book-Store 91 Van Houten St, through the death of the former proprietor, Mr. James Stothers, which occurred about six weeks ago.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The Eastern creditors of J. W. Roberts, stationer and bookseller, have voted to accept twenty-five cents cash, twelve and a half cents in twelve months, and fifteen cents in five years.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Brentano's have purchased the business of the firm of A. S. Witherbee & Co., 1015 Pa. Ave. (which was formerly owned, it will be remembered, by Brentano Bros). They beg the trade to note that all purchases made subsequent to July 18 are to be charged to the account of Brentano's, of No. 5 Union Square, N. Y., and that all bills or accounts contracted prior to this date will be paid by the late firm of A. S. Witherbee & Co. They also beg to remind the trade that all invoices for Washington purchases are to be sent to the Washington house, but the statements of account to the New York office.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY have nearly ready a bright boys' book, entitled "The Ring in the Cliff," by Frank West Rollins, a talented young lawyer of Concord, N. H.

MRS. DELAND's novel, "John Ward, Preacher," has achieved the specific test of a successful book, namely, it is talked about everywhere. It has reached the fourth edition, and the fifth is coming shortly.

LAIRD & LEE, Chicago, will publish Emile Zola's new novel, "The Dream ("Le Rêve"). The work will be translated by H. de Vermont, who has made arrangements to use the author's manuscript.

WM. R. JENKINS, owing to special arrangements made with Paris publishers for a large edition of Daudet's new novel, "L'Immortel," was enabled to publish the work on July 9, only two days later than its appearance in France.

MISS CUMMINS' story, "The Lamplighter," which ranks perhaps next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" among popular American stories, is now brought out in a new edition by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., in cloth for a dollar, and in paper for 25 cents.

HUBBARD & BROS., Philadelphia, will publish early in August Gen. Lew Wallace's "Biography of Gen. B. Harrison." Gen. Wallace, it is said, at first declined this task, but upon the urgent solicitation of many eminent men of the party, and Gen. Harrison's assurance that everything needful should be placed at his disposal, so as to make it the strictly authentic and only authorized biography, he yielded to the call. They have also under way, to be published simultaneously with the above, a biography of the Hon. Levi P. Morton, by George Alfred Townsend ("Gath").

FREDERICK WARNE & Co., have just ready "That Sister-in-Law of Mine," by Harry Parkes, author of "The Man Who Would Like to Marry" and "The Girl who Wouldn't Mind Getting Married," which is even more full of fun, if that were possible, than his previous books. They have also just ready a handsome edition of Edward Lear's "Nonsense Songs and Stories," which contains a preface never before published; and "England as She Seems, by an Arab Sheik," by Edwin Lester Arnold, of the London Daily Telegraph, and son of the author of "The Light of Asia." They will publish shortly in their Continental Library Balzac's "Cousin Pons," translated by Philip Kent.

D. APPLETON & Co. commenced a suit on the 21st inst. in the U. S. Circuit Court against the Provident Book Company, which is, we believe, part of the J. B. Alden family of "Literary Revolution" fame, asking for an injunction forbidding the publication by the defendant of the volume entitled "The Holy Land and the Bible." The complainants claim that in 1882 they sent out Harry Fenn and John T. Woodward, artists, and paid their expenses and those of their attendants for nine months, on a trip to the scenes of Bible history. The artists gathered illustrations for "Picturesque Palestine, Sinai, and Egypt." The complainants say that 194 of these illustrations were reproduced without authority in the volume published by the Provident Book Company. They do not ask for damages, but want to be paid for actual losses and to enjoin the further sale of the work.

Bowser's Mathematical Series.

NOW READY,
TWO ADDITIONAL VOLUMES.

COLLEGE ALGEBRA. 12mo, 550 Pages. Price, $2.00.

This work is designed as a text-book for academies, colleges, and scientific schools. It begins at the beginning of the subject, and the full treatment of the earlier parts renders it unnecessary that students who use it shall have previously studied a more elementary algebra. Every teacher knows that the note-books with solutions of difficult examples are handed down from one class of students to another till a sort of key is formed, often to the destruction of intellectual discipline.

ACADEMIC ALGEBRA. 12mo, 350 Pages. Price, $1.50.

This work is designed as a text-book for common and high schools and academies, and to prepare students for entering colleges and scientific schools. The book is a complete treatise on algebra up to and through the Progressions, containing thus far precisely the same subjects and the same treatment of them that are found in the College Algebra. For students who have not sufficient time to take the College Algebra, this perhaps is the better book; but those who contemplate entering college, or wish to take a complete course in algebra, may as well begin at once with the larger work.

PARIS EXHIBITION, 1889

MR. EM. TERQUEM, late representative of the American Publishers in the Paris Exposition, 1878, begs to inform the trade that it is his intention to represent the American Publishers at the coming Paris Universal Exposition, on the same principles as at the last one. He has already received some applications from publishers, and he hopes to obtain the same success in 1889 that he did in 1878.

MR. EM. TERQUEM will be in New York in September next, and will remain for some time in the U. S. especially for that purpose.

The very convenient offices in the centre of the American quarter Mr. Em. Terquem has now in Paris, which will be enlarged during 1889, will enable publishers who desire to visit Paris next year to find offices for their private business use.

SOME BEAUTIFUL BOOKS

THAT SELL AT SIGHT.

PANSY'S SUNDAY BOOK FOR 1889. Edited by Mrs. G. R. ALDEN. 4to, boards, $1.25.

Stories to be read in the quiet of the home Sabbath, when the parents and young people meet for the happy interchange of helpful thought to give them inspiration for the week-day work and study.

MY WONDER STORY. By ANNE K. BENEDICT. Illustrated. 4to, boards, $1.50.

A delightful story in which through familiar talks and practical experiments the wonders of physiology are introduced to children. A distinguished professor says of it, "One might well wish himself a little child again, to be charmed with the study of his own body. No 'Dry Bones' here!"

Suitable for school or home use.

MY UNCLE FLORIMOND. By SIDNEY LUSKA. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.00.

An ideal boys' story, as bracing as a clear wind from the northwest, full of dramatic interest but with nothing feverish or sensational. The two Jews with their quaint dialect are inimitable, and the old French nobleman, the inspiration of Gregory's life, is most ingeniously drawn.

HOWLING WOLF AND HIS TRICK PONY. By LIZZIE W. CHAMPNEY. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.25.

No more picturesque and romantic figures ever stood forth in a story than Howling Wolf and his pony, and no adventures more thrilling than the rides and fights alongside Geronimo can be imagined. Western people agree that this is the best Indian story yet written.

MONTEZUMA'S GOLD MINES. By FRED. A. OBER, author of "The Silver City." Illustrated. $1.00.

The story of a search for the lost gold mines of Montezuma. Founded upon fact. Full of thrilling adventures in Mexico. Interwoven with ancient Aztec history and traditions and present Indian belief.

AN OCEAN TRAMP. By PHILIP D. HAYWOOD. Illustrated. $1.25.

Remarkably well written, giving vivid pictures of the stirring adventures, exciting scenes, and many hardships of a life at sea. As realistic as Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast."

A YOUNG PRINCE OF COMMERCE. By SELDEN R. HOPKINS. $1.25.

Many a bright boy longs for some practical knowledge of business before he goes into it; some 'points' in regard to money matters that will show him what to do in various situations and how to set about it. This story of a lad's personal experience "fills the bill."

IN WAR TIMES AT LA ROSE BLANCHE. By M. E. M. DAVIS. Illustrated by Kemble. $1.25.

There have been few more intensely interesting stories of the war than this series of thrilling incidents taken from real life on a Louisiana plantation. The wife of a Southern officer, her children, and her slaves, with the soldiers of both armies coming and going, are the main characters, and the incidents are strictly true.

THE SECRETS AT ROSELADIES. By MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.00.

A story of the Lower Wabash and the Indian Mounds, with the adventures of the boys that explored them, and the trials of their sisters, aunts, and grandfathers. Some of the young heroes and heroines live in the Great House at Roseladies, and some live in a stationary canal-boat.

A STRANGE COMPANY. By C. F. HOLDER. Illustrations by Beard. 12mo, $1.25.

C. F. Holder takes the lead as a popular writer of Natural History. The strange company is made up of fliers, swimmers, stickers, and builders, burrowers, fighters, look-outs, care-takers, frolickers, giants. All animals are wonderful when they are understood.

WIDE AWAKE, VOL. Y. Quarto, cloth, $2.25; boards, $1.75.

In this volume are such delightful serials as Craddock's "Story of Keedon Bluffs," "The Lost Medicine of the Utes," and dozens of shorter stories and poems, and beautiful illustrated articles.

ADVENTURES OF EARLY DISCOVERERS. By Mrs. F. A. HUMPHREY. Illustrated. 4to, cloth, $1.00.

Here are just such bits of history as young readers can digest, and which will give them a taste for stronger and more solid reading farther on.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS AT HOME.

FIRELIGHT STORIES.

OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

STORY TIME.

Four large, beautiful Quartos for young people, with exquisite colored frontispieces. $1.00 each.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CUPPLES & HURD will publish at once a cheap edition of "The Story of an African Farm;" also, an illustrated guide to the Island of Bermuda, by James H. Stark; and the third edition of John E. Curran's popular novel, entitled "Miss Frances Merley."
WM. S. GOTTSBERGER publishes to-day an "Iceland Fisherman" (Pêcheur d'Islande), a story of love on land and sea, by Pierre Loti, author of "Lands of Exile," etc., translated from the French by Clara Cadiot. Pierre Loti is the nom de guerre of M. Louis Marie Julian Viand, a comparatively young man, employed in the French Ministry of the Marine.
FREDERICK A. STOKES & BROTHER announce "The Life of Grover Cleveland," by William O. Stoddard, the author of the other volumes in their series of Lives of the Presidents of the United States. Mr. Stoddard has given the greatest possible care and labor to this work. It will be well illustrated, and is to be published in a variety of editions.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. have just ready new and cheaper editions of Mrs. Emma D. E. N. Southworth's most popular copyright novels, "The Maiden Widow" and "The Family Doom." They also issue cheap editions of Zola's "Nana," "L'Assommoir," "La Terre," and "Nana's Daughter," to sell at twenty-five cents. They have in press "The Dream," by Emile Zola, translated by George D. Cox.

GINN & Co. will publish early next month "Footprints of Travel, or, journeying in many lands," by Maturin M. Ballou, author of "Due West" and other books of travel. The purpose of this work is to furnish a reader for use in the public schools which shall at once interest and instruct the pupil. The author depicts foreign countries and famous cities, describing land and ocean travel all over the world, in a manner calculated to fix geographical and other facts upon the mind of the reader by their pleasant association with charming scenery, historic events, and vivid adventures. The publishers claim that though this book is so comprehensive, still the author writes of no islands, continents, or seas, no remarkable monuments or interesting localities, which he has not personally visited.

TICKNOR & Co. have ready to-day "A Sea Change, or, love's stowaway," by W. D. Howells, a light opera of which the scene is laid on board an ocean steamer that meets an iceberg from which emerge fairies and other strange folk to add to the complications on board ship. This will be brought out in Little Classic style by the Ticknors, and will also be issued with words and music complete, arranged for piano accompaniment, by A. P. Schmidt & Co. "A Mexican Girl," by Frederick Thickstun, a Californian, tells a story of life in the high Sierras, and of the love-making of a Spanish-American senorita and a transplanted New England school-master; "A History of Presidential Elections," by Edward Stanwood, appears in a new and enlarged edition, and Samuel Merrill, of the Boston Globe, issues a handbook for the press, entitled "A Newspaper Libel."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

JOHN S. SHRIVER, of the Baltimore American, has just finished a novel, entitled "Alnust."
A SON of Count von Arnim is seeing through the press what the London World calls an "Anti-Bismarckian volume."
STUART CUMBERLAND, the "thought-reader," is about to publish a volume on "Famous Men I Have Known."
MR. JAMES HUNTER, well known as the editor of Ogilvie's Imperial Dictionary and of the supplement to Worcester's Dictionary, has accepted an editorial position on the American Notes and Queries, of Philadelphia.
IT is now announced that the author of "From 18 to 20," the new society novel whose authorship has puzzled all Philadelphia, is Miss Elizabeth Jaudon Sellers, the young daughter of David W. Sellers, Esq., one of the leaders of the Philadelphia bar, and law partner of Judge Mitchell. The first edition of this book was exhausted within two days after publication, and the second was all sold in advance of delivery.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. 4to: under 30 cm.; O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights

Allen, W: F., and Myers, P. V. N. Ancient history for colleges and high schools. Pt. 1: The eastern nations and Greece, by P. V. N. Myers. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. c. 9+479 p. il. D. cl., $1.55.

According to the publishers' announcement this work was to consist of two parts, the first covering the Eastern nations and Greece, by the President of Belmont College, Ohio; the second dealing with Rome, by Prof. Allen, of Wisconsin University. Owing to the illness of the latter his work could not be completed in time, and the part of President Myers' "Outlines of ancient history" relating to Rome has been revised and temporarily substituted. Prof. Allen's work may be expected early in 1889, and will then at once replace the second part of this volume.

Allinson, E: P., and Penrose, Boies. Ground rents in Philadelphia. Phil., Univ. of Penna., [Phil., Porter & Coates; N. Y., G. E. Stechert,] 1888. 19 p. O. (Publications of Univ. of Penna. —Political economy and law ser., ed. by E. J. James, no. 3.) pap., 25 c.

The authors, both of whom are members of the Philadelphia Bar, treat of ground rents in Philadelphia, that device by which the acquisition of real estate has been made so easy to people of moderate means that Philadelphia has become known as par excellence the "City of Homes," having more separate dwelling-houses in proportion to its population than any other great city of the world. It has a special interest for legal and economic students. The essay was first read before the students and professors of the Wharton School of Finance and Political Economy, in February, 1888, and published in the Quarterly Journal of Economics.

Bancroft, Hubert H. California pastoral, 1769-1848. San Francisco, Cal., The History Company, 1888. c. 808 p. O. cl., $4.50; leath., $5.50; hf. cf., hf. rus., or hf. mor., $8; rus. mor. or tree cf., $10.

A most interesting résumé of the manners and customs, government, and life of the settlers of California, preceded by a glance at life and society as it existed in Spain and Mexico, which places and conditions were more intimately than any others connected with the spiritual conquest and occupation of Alta California in the 18th century. No phase of life in the section mentioned seems to have been overlooked by this indefatigable writer, and all has been exhaustively and most graphically described. The value of the work is enhanced by a descriptive bibliography of California and a glossary.

Barrett, Frank. By misadventure. Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1888. 184 p. D. (Globe lib., no. 68.) pap., 25 c.

Barrett, Frank. Lieutenant Barnabas. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 2+292 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1130.) pap., 20 c.

Bonham, J: M. Industrial liberty. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's sons, 1888. c. 9+414 p. D. cl., $1.75.

The author has kept in view the principles rather than the statistics, and has made an analysis of the salient political and industrial evils of the day, suggesting many practical remedies. Herbert Spencer is freely quoted. The effects of protection, "trusts," railway legislation, paternal government, etc., upon the industrial questions of the day are made clear, and the author aims to have his statements thoroughly discussed and hopes he may have helped to explain some principles upon which modern industry, in order to be wholesome, must rest.

Booth, Mrs. Otto, ["Rita," pseud.] Countess Daphne. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 3-319 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1155.) pap., 20 c.

Booth, Mrs. Otto, ["Rita," pseud.] My Lord Conceit: a novel. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 3-349 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1173.) pap., 20 c.

Bowser, E: A. Academic algebra for the use of common and high schools and academies, with numerous examples. N. Y., D. Van Nostrand, 1888. c. 14+352 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The "Academic algebra" is designed as a text-book for common and high schools and academies, and to prepare students for entering colleges and scientific schools. The book is a complete treatise on algebra up to and through the Progressions, containing thus far precisely the same subjects and the same treatment of them that are found in the College algebra. For students who have not sufficient time to take the College algebra, this perhaps is the better book; but those who contemplate entering college, or who wish to take a complete course in algebra, may as well begin at once with the larger book.

Bowser, E: A. College algebra, for the use of academies, colleges, and scientific schools, with numerous examples. N. Y., D. Van Nostrand, 1888. c. 18+540 p. D. cl., $2.

The "College algebra," designed as a text-book for academies, colleges, and scientific schools, begins at the beginning of the subject, and the full treatment of the earlier parts renders it unnecessary that students who use it shall have previously studied a more elementary algebra. In order to lead the student to see and feel that he can use his knowledge to some practical end, the author has introduced a chapter on easy equations and problems before the chapters on factoring and fractions, which enables the student early to become acquainted with some of the most interesting practical applications of the subject. A good deal of stress is laid on solving quadratic and other equations by means of factors which are often obvious on inspection. The examples are very numerous. Each set is carefully graded, beginning with those which are very easy, and proceeding to others which are more difficult. The large number of examples is given for the convenience of the instructor, that he may have, year by year, a sufficient variety from which to select, to prevent mere rote-work on the part of his pupils.

Braddon, Miss M. E., [now Mrs. J: Maxwell.] The fatal three: a novel. N. Y., G: Munro, [1888.] 3-357 p. S. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1098.) pap., 20 c.

Braeme, Charlotte M., ["Bertha M. Clay," pseud.] Lady Hutton's ward. Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1888. 3-204 p. D. (Globe lib., no. 69.) pap., 25 c.

O. and C. Two gentlemen of Gotham. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. '87. 2+344 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., v. 1, no. 12.) pap., 50 c. Noticed in P. W., April 2, 1887, no. 792.

Collins, Wilkie. The legacy of Cain. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 3-301 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1176.) pap., 20 c.

Cook, Albert S. The phonological investigation of old English, illustrated by a series of fifty problems. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. c. 26 p. S. pap., 10 c.

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

Cooper, J. Fenimore. The deerslayer; or, the first war-path: a tale. N. Y., G: Munro, [1888.] 2 v., 3-247; 247-472 p. S. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1062.) pap., ea., 20 c.

Dalzell, Ja. M. Private Dalzell; his autobiography, poems, and comic war papers; sketch of J: Gray, Washington's last soldier, etc.: a centennial souvenir. Cin., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1888. c. 1+242 p. por. and il. D. cl., $1.

This book is published for the benefit of the wife and children of the writer. Private Dalzell was born in 1838 in Pittsburg, Pa. His father had been a distiller, but, convinced that it was wrong to manufacture intoxicating liquors, he abandoned his trade and began as a carpet-weaver. Young Dalzell taught school to earn enough for a college education, and struggled with poverty and sickness until 1862, when he entered the army, in which he continued to the close of the war. Then he went to Washington and became acquainted with all the celebrities of the day. His account is full of fun, humor, and pathos. Many of his poems and letters are scattered through the text. He claims no private is ever thought highly of in America, only officers receive consideration.

Dod, S. Bayard. Stubble or wheat? a story of more lives than one. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1888.] c. 264 p. D. cl., $1.25.

An advertisement of "a man found drowned and buried in Potter's Field" catches the eye of a city merchant, who goes to the wharf specified, and, finding some pieces of a torn letter, recognizes the handwriting of a friend's wife, has the body disinterred and identified as that of his schoolmate and life-long friend. The history of the suicide is then given. Wealthy, uncongenial parents, a loveless home, an ideal school-life in Hudson, college years at Princeton, loss of parents, pessimistic influences, undigested reading of Schopenhauer, etc. Although happily married, the unhappy man always saw only the "stubble" of the world. He tried various experiments of suicide, which are described in detail. Comparisons of Harvard and Yale universities and an argument on the true motive of Lessing's "Nathan, the wise," make interesting chapters. The author writes with the purpose to show that views of the world can be cultivated which will make all its unexplained mysteries either nourishing "wheat" or unsatisfying "stubble."

Drift of the age, viewed from the higher levels: shall America's civilization stand for base uses? (Pith of the celebrated Dix lenten lectures, with quotations bearing on the subject from other authors.) Springfield, Mass., [N. Y., Am. News Co.] 32 p. obl. T. pap., 10 c.

Du Boisgobey, Fortuné. The detective's eye; [from the French.] N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 3-112 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1146.) pap., 10 c.

Du Boisgobey, Fortuné. The Matapan affair; from the French, by Laura E. Kendall. 2 pts. Pt. 2. N. Y., G: Munro, [1888.] 176-347 p. S. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1085.) pap., 20 c.

Du Boisgobey, Fortuné. The results of a duel; [from the French.] N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 2-208 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1174.) pap., 20 c.

Ebers, G. An Egyptian princess. N. Y., G: Munro, [1888.] 2 v., 3-193; 193-411 p. S. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1101.) pap., ea., 20 c.

Emerton, Ephraim. Introduction to the study of the Middle Ages, (375-814.) Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. c. 18+268 p. D. cl., $1.25.

An epitome of Roman history from the battle of Adrianople, 378, to the death of Charlemagne, 814. Gives an account of the settlement of Germanic peoples on Roman soil, the gradual rise of the Frankish supremacy, the growth of the Christian church, the monastic life, the Roman papacy, and the culmination of all in the Empire of Charlemagne. The author is Professor of history at Harvard. Maps, chronological tables, a full index, and lists of suitable collateral reading add to its usefulness as a text-book.

Ewing, Juliana Horatio. Snapdragons, a tale of Christmas eve; [also,] Old Father Christmas, an old-fashioned tale of the young days of a grumpy old godfather; il. by Gordon Browne. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., [1888.] 68 p. sq. O. pap., net, 30 c.

How Mr. and Mrs. Skratdj disagreed and contradicted, how the little male and female Skratdj bickered and spat, how the Skratdj servants and dogs and cats snapped and snarled, is told in the inimitable manner of the author of "Jackanapes." A dream on Christmas eve cured the little male Skratdj first, and for fear of going to the Snapdragons the whole family slowly reformed. The second story relates of a sad accident which befell old Father Christmas. He managed, however, to keep his promise and provide a tree, but he never came again. His little dog was left as a comforter to the disillusioned children.

Farjeon, B. L. Doctor Glennie's daughter: a story of real life. Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1888. 162 p. D. (Globe lib., no. 72.) pap., 25 c.

Gaboriau, Emile. The slaves of Paris; [from the French.] N. Y., G: Munro, [1888.] 2 v., 3-342; 343-673 p. S. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1078.) pap., ea., 20 c.

Giffin, W: M. Civics for young Americans. N. Y., A. Lovell & Co., [1888.] c. '87. 117 p. sq. D. cl., 60 c.

Contains a brief description of the different forms of government, and a full and clear explanation of the important clauses of our constitution. The author keeps well in mind the capacity of young intellects and treats his subject simply, both in choice of words and arrangement of thought.

Hale, E: Everett. How they lived in Hampton: a study of practical Christianity applied in the manufacture of woollens. Bost., J. Stilman Smith & Co., 3 Hamilton Place. 6+281 p. D. cl., $1.

Another contribution to the study of economic truths in the line of the author's "Tom Torrey's tariff talks." It may briefly be described as an essay in fiction on the Christian relations of the capitalist and the workman. In his story, "Back to back," published in Harper's Magazine in 1873, Mr. Hale blocked out a plan described in this book to conduct a woollen mill, the result of which was that he was invited by the proprietors of three different woollen mills to take them, and carry them on on the plan proposed. He did not feel equal to the task, because, as he says, "I was not trained to the woollen manufacture; but in this book he makes a "Mr. Spinner" accept one of these offers with the happiest results in coöperative production. The details bearing on the business of manufacture are carefully described, and have, as the author claims, the authority of a well-known and successful manufacturer of woollens.

Hale, W: Gardner. Aims and methods of classical study. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. 47 p. S. pap., 20 c.

A reply to a pamphlet published by Prof. E. P. Morris, of Williams College, who claims that "we no longer study Latin in our schools in order to learn Latin; we study it and teach it with primary reference to the science of philology." The author, who is Prof. of Latin language and literature at Cornell University, agrees partially with the statement, but foresees a totally different future, in which the linguistics and literature of Rome shall again inspire the modern collegian.

Hannington, Bp. Ja. Last journals: being narratives of a journey through Palestine, 1884, and a journey through Masai-land, and U-Soga, 1885; ed. by E. C. Dawson. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1888. 17+239 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The editor of these journals of the last days of the devoted first missionary bishop of Equatorial Africa has already published "The life and work of Bishop Hannington" in two large volumes. These selections from the diaries are illustrated from the bishop's sketches. They give a startling picture of the trials and sufferings from heat, hunger, danger, and exposure, before all was ended by murder.

Hurd, R: M. History of Yale athletics, 1840-'88, giving every contest with Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Wesleyan, and others in rowing, foot-ball, base-ball, track athletics, and tennis. New Haven, Conn., R. M. Hurd, 241 Lawrence Hall, Yale Univ., [1888.] c. 133 p. O. cl., $1.50.

Gives complete tables of statistics of every contest in which Yale has taken part, many illustrations, and a general review of the introduction of each separate game into the college. Blank pages are provided for additional memoranda.

Kerr, Robert P. The people's history of Presbyterianism in all ages. Richmond, Va., Presbyterian Committee of Publication, 1888. c. 284 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Voluminous histories of Presbyterianism have been written covering every age and country in which that church has had existence. The author now aims in one work to give an outline of the principles, influence, and general history of this far-reaching religious institution, in the hope that the many will note its most important events and characters. The notes and statistic tables at the end are very full. Frontispiece of John Calvin.

Knoflach, Augustin. Spanish simplified: concise and lucid explanation of the principles of the Spanish language, accompanied by numerous examples and exercises, forming a complete course of instruction for the purposes of reading, business, and travel; especially intended for self-instruction, but equally well adapted for use in class-rooms. New ed. In 12 pts. Pts. 10-12. N. Y., A. Knoflach, P. O. box 1550, [University Pub. Co.] 1888. c. '84. '87. 145-196 p. + 10 p. of key, D. pap., ea., 10c.

Landau, Baron W. von. Travels in Asia, Australia, and America, comprising the period between 1879 and 1887. N. Y., G. Landau, 107 St. Mark's Place, 1888. c. 3 pts., 387 p. S. pap., (printed for private circulation)

Although written only from the standpoint of a tourist, these travels contain so much valuable statistical and geographical data as to have earned honorable mention by the Gesellschaft für Erdkunde, Berlin, Prof. Virchow, and others.

Lean, Mrs. Francis. [formerly Florence Maryat.] Driven to bay: a novel. N. Y., G. Munro, [1888.] 3-261 p. S. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1022.) pap., 20c.

Little, W. J. Knox. The child of Stafferton: a chapter from a family chronicle. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1888. 12+330 p. D. cl., 75c.

A companion story to "A broken vow." The same element of the supernatural is woven into this story of succession to large English estates. The heir apparent always bore the name of "the child of Stafferton" and according to the laws of entail must be a boy. The heroine of the story, however, was thus called by her uncle, there being at the time no such heir. A romantic love story brings in the hero, whose birth is shadowed in mystery. He comes from Italy, and the story plays between England and Italy. Many comparisons between the Roman and English churches afford Canon Knox-Little opportunities to speak his well-known ideas about the Catholic and apostolic church.

Lowell, Ja. Russell. Political essays. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 6+326 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Contents: The American Tract Society (1858), The election in November (1860); E pluribus unum (1861), The Pickens and Stearns rebellion (1861), Gen McClellan's report (1864), The rebellion, its causes and consequences (1864), McClellan or Lincoln (1864), Reconstruction (1861), Scotch the snake, or all it (1865), The president on the stump (1866), The Seward-Johnson reaction (1866), The place of the Independent in politics (1888). With the exception of the last all these essays appeared more than twenty years ago, and Mr Lowell only reluctantly consented to have them reprinted, as they seemed to him to have mainly a polemic value contemporaneous with the date at which they were written. There is nothing to regret in their tone, although written at a time when Mr Lowell's heart "was at boiling-point." The speech on the "Independent in politics" was spoken before the Reform Club at Steinway Hall on April 13.

My aunt's match-making, and other stories, by popular authors. N. Y., Cassell & Co. [1888.] 212 p. S. (Rainbow ser., v. 1, no. 26.) pap., 25c.

Contents: My aunt's match-making; My balloon adventure; The great gold secret; Edward Brown, sinner; Hard pressed, a wolf story, The blind spanner; Mutiny on board, Bibbs, a love story, Proud Mrs. Brandeth; A river story; Running "Pilot;" Ivy; Snowed up; Through flood, through fire; Only just saved; Rang. Sixteen short stories reprinted from Cassell's Magazine.

Pearson, F. W. An idyl of Bar Harbor. N. Y., The Welles Pub. Co., 695 B'way, [1888.] c. 43 p. S. (The Elite lib., no. 3.) pap., 10c. A romantic story well told in smooth-reading verse.

Pepyn, S. Diary: from November, 1668, to end of diary. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] 192 p. T. (Cassell's national lib., v. 3, no. 130.) pap., 10c.

Plutarch. Lives of Pyrrhus, Camillus, Pelopidas, and Marcellus; tr. by J. and W. Langborne. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] 192 p. T. (Cassell's national lib., v. 3, no. 131.) pap., 10c.

Septameron (The). Phil., David McKay, 1888. c. 171 p. S. pap., 35c.

Contents: "Boscobel," by Francis Howard Williams; "A symphony," by Harrison S. Morris; "Hazard," by Samuel Williams Cooper; "The lost elixir," by Charles Henry Lüders; "Parthenope's love," by Colin Campbell Cooper, jr.; "Villa Vielle's one mystery," by Felix E. Schelling; "An old town tale," by W. H. Fox. These seven authors belong to the best Philadelphia society. When driven from their homes by the burning suns of summer, as their Florentine prototypes were by plague and pestilence, they rested amid leafy groves in the early twilight and told these stories. The imitations of Boccaccio have been many; this "Septameron" shows more invention and literary polish than has fallen to some of them.

Simmons, J. E. The higher education: address del. at the commencement of the College of the City of New York, June 21, 1888. N. Y., Hall of the Board of Educ., 1888. 32 p. O. pap., gratis.

Southworth, Mrs. E. D. E. N. Maiden widow. [New cheap ed.] Phil., T. B. Peterson & Bros., [1888.] c. 17-313 p. S. pap., 25c.

Steel, A. G., and Lyttelton, R. H. Cricket; with contributions by A. Lang, W. G. Grace, R. A. Mitchell, and F. Gale. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1888. 13+429 p. il. D. (Badminton lib.) cl., $2.50.

Contents: History of cricket, and Border cricket, by Andrew Lang; Batting, Fielding, University cricket match; Gentlemen and players, Single wicket, and Cricket reform, by the Hon. R. H. Lyttelton; Bowling; Captaincy; Umpires, and Australians, by A. G. Steel; Country cricket, by F. Gale. How to score, and Outfit, by W. G. Grace; The art and training of young cricketers, by R. A. H. Mitchell.

Tausig, F. W. The tariff history of the United States: a series of essays. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons 1888. c. 8+269 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Contains: "Protection of young industries, as applied in the United States," first published in Cambridge in 1882, "The early protective movement and the tariff of 1898," appeared in the Political Science Quarterly for March, 1888, "The tariff, 1890-1860," was printed in the Quarterly Journal of Economics for April 1888. The history of the present tariff was published in 1888. All have been revised for this volume, repetitions avoided, and considerable additions made. In their present shape these papers cover the history of our tariff legislation from 1789 to 1887. Appendix of tables on imports, duties, revenue, products, etc. Index.

Tracking the truth, by the author of "Barbara," etc. Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1888. 3-236 p. D. (Globe lib., no. 70.) pap., 25c.

United States. Department of the Interior. Bureau of labor, [Carroll D. Wright, commissioner.] Third annual report of the commissioner of labor, 1887: strikes and lockouts. Washington, D. C., Government Printing Office, 1888. 1172 p. O. cl.

The field work on which this report is based was begun early in the summer of 1886, and closed late during the summer of 1887. The report is divided into five chapters, viz.: 1, analysis of the tables; 2, general tables of strikes and lockouts; 3, summary tables of strikes and lockouts; 4, strikes and lockouts occurring in the United States prior to 1881; 5, decisions of courts, and legislation concerning strikes, combinations, conspiracies, boycotts, etc. A full index concludes the work.
Warden, Florence, [pseud. for Florence Alice Price, now Mrs. G. E. James.] A woman's face; or, a Lakeland mystery. N. Y., G: Munro, [1888.] 3-277 p. S. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1087.) pap., 20 c.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 4, 1888.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE PRESENT STATUS OF THE COPYRIGHT BILL.

THOSE who had hoped that the year 1888 would not close without seeing our country relieved from the disgrace that it is the only one among civilized nations which does not recognize the rights of literary property except among its own citizens, have much reason to be disappointed at the present status of the copyright bill in the lower House. It had been agreed among the friends of the measure that in case the course of events in the present session should make it impracticable to secure fair opportunity for a vote on the bill amidst the pressure of appropriation and political measures, there should be a postponement until early in the winter session, and, in accordance with this understanding, General Collins asked that December 5, at the very opening of the new session, should be designated for the discussion of this bill. It would have been a very happy consummation if, after the excitement of the Presidential election, whatever its result, both parties could have commenced the new session by agreeing to put so creditable a measure toward international copyright on the statute-book.

Unfortunately, under the absurd red tape rules of the House, which are admittedly framed to prevent business being done lest the wrong kind of business should be done, one member, Mr. Rogers, of Arkansas, interposed his objection to the consideration of the motion, and it was therefore not possible to bring it before the House. We have as yet no advices as to the reasons for Mr. Rogers' action, if any are known, but even if he is to be regarded as an opponent of the bill or of international copyright in any shape, it seems a pity that objection should have been made to the consideration of the bill under discussion. The present Congress will lose a great opportunity if it permits this bill to go unpassed. It is earnestly to be hoped, now that the course proposed proves impracticable, that some opportunity will be found during the present session to bring the question to a vote.

While it is understood that the essential features of this compromise measure, for such it confessedly is, could not well be seriously modified without endangering the general understanding of which it is the result, it is important that defects of drafting and inconsistency with the statute amended should be remedied in the House to make the bill work as smoothly as possible. Since the bill as passed by the Senate was to go into effect July 1, it must, when passed by the House, either go to a Conference Committee or be amended in the Senate to conform with the new date which may be designated in the House. This necessarily gives opportunity for the changes of which we speak. These being made, it is important that the bill should be passed essentially as agreed upon, by the consensus of those most interested in copyright. Otherwise the probability is that the hostile forces will be likely to array themselves again against each other, and that we should have two bills, one from the restrictive and one from the other side, combating each other, with lessened hope for the passage of either.

WE give elsewhere the decision of the Chicago court declining a temporary injunction to restrain the publishers in Chicago from putting on Mr. E. R. Roe's books the style of cover used on the books of the late E. P. Roe. In the absence of the full text of the Chicago decision, it is difficult to see whether the essential plea was grasped by the court. The despatches indicate the contrary. The one claim was that the Western publishers had imitated already published designs so as to deceive the public into the belief that they were purchasing a book by the more widely-known novelist, E. P. Roe. This, of course, has nothing to do with the literary merits of either of the novelists named, or the question of which was first in the field as an author. We give also, as bearing upon this question, the opinion by an eminent authority, Judge Fancher of this city, on whose advice the suit was brought. It is to the benefit of all fair dealing that the law should protect as fully as possible the rights of individuality in the domain of literature.

THE ROE COVER CONTROVERSY.

From the Chicago Globe, July 5.

THE injunction prayed for by Edward P. Roe to restrain Laird & Lee, of this city, from publishing the novel, "May and June," by the well-known writer of fiction and scientific works, Edward R. Roe, was denied by Master Waller, to whom it was referred by Judge Gresham. It appears that Col. E. R. Roe was first in the field as a writer of fiction, and Edward P. Roe's novel, "Barriers Burned Away," was sold largely in the West on the reputation of E. R. Roe's novel, "Virginia Rose," which appeared in 1851. When "Barriers Burned Away" came out, the writer was mistaken for Col. E. R. Roe, and the latter author received numerous letters congratulating him on his reappearance in the field of fiction. Judge Waller pronounced the suit of E. P. Roe the flimsiest pretence for an injunction ever brought before him.

OPINION OF JUDGE E. L. FANCHER.

In March last, Dodd, Mead & Company, of New York, published the first number of a Library of Fiction, containing a recent novel by the popular writer, Edward P. Roe, entitled "An Original Belle;" and they graced the cover of the publication with a tasteful design, that has been plagiarized by a later publication purporting to emanate from "Laird & Lee, publishers, Chicago," containing some writings by one Edward R. Roe.

The apparent intent of the latter is not only to copy the artistic design of the former publishers, but to imitate, as well, the name of the author of Dodd, Mead & Company's publication. No one can look at the covers of the two publications and fail to see evidence of a design to deceive the public and to infringe the rights of the publishers and author of the former publication.

After the title of the book on the cover, published by Dodd, Mead & Company, follow the words "by Edward P. Roe;" and this name of the author is printed within a circle of blue ground, flanked by some artistic scroll-work, chiefly at the left of the circle. The letters composing the author's name are in antique Roman, in three several lines within the blue circle. The letters that spell "Edward" are in the first line, and those after the E slope downward from the middle of that initial letter. The P is in the next line or middle, and the surname, Roe, with a long leg to the R, is in the last of the three lines.

The copied design on the Chicago book closely follows this description. The scroll-work is at the left of the blue circle; the method, arrangement, and character of the letters are imitated precisely from the genuine. The deceptive attempt of drawing a short dash under the R. of the second line in the imitation, so as probably to claim that it may be read Edward R. Roe, instead of Edward P. Roe, would not be apparent to any casual purchaser. But the public would, without doubt, be deceived into the belief, in the purchase from a book-stand of a book of spurious cover, that the popular writer, Edward P. Roe, was the author of it, when that would be a deception.

As the cover of their book is not protected by copyright, but only the book itself, Dodd, Mead & Co. have no remedy under the United States statute for infringement of their copyright. The fraud does not extend to the letter-press of the book, but only to the cover.

Yet they are not without remedy for the deception of the Chicago house. The cover of the New York publication contains a trade-mark. It is intended and calculated by its appearance to indicate to purchasers, at a glance, the true authorship of the publication. To purloin the trade-mark is both a public and a private wrong. It deceives purchasers and injures the publishers and the author of the original publication. For every wrong accompanied by injury the law affords redress. The apparent purpose of the Chicago imitation is to induce purchasers to buy it under the supposition that they are purchasing a book by the popular author, Edward P. Roe. A Court of Equity will protect the owner of a trade-mark. If it be simulated by another so as to deceive the public, the simulated device will be restrained by injunction; and, in the same action, if injury has been done, damages may be recovered of the wrong-doer. The doctrine of the protection of trade-marks does not depend entirely upon invasion of individual rights, but upon the broad principle of protecting the public from deceit. Whether it be label, cover, device, or handbill—whatever is calculated to deceive the public and induce the belief that the article they are purchasing is not what it really is, but another thing—will be restrained by injunction, where another's right is invaded. This principle is well settled; and some of the authorities on the subject are collected in Mat- sell v. Flanagan, 2 Abbott's Practice Rep., N. S., 459, and Williams v. Spence, 25 How Prac. Rep., 366. To claim that the Chicago house can be justified in the procedure referred to would be to assert the right of one publisher or author to trade on the well-earned reputation and popularity of another by adopting a deceptive placard on a book. The cover that indicates the origin and authorship of a publication in a case so special and important should be protected from piracy; and the law in such cases, in my opinion, furnishes in a court of equity sufficient means of protection and redress.

OBITUARY.

MICHAEL R. GATELEY.

MICHAEL R. GATELEY, of the well-known book publishing firm of M. R. Gateley & Co., died at his summer residence on Jerusalem Road, Cohasset, Mass., July 26, after a brief illness. He was born in Dorchester about thirty-six years ago, and received his education in the schools of his native city. When quite young he entered a large book publishing house as a clerk. For nearly twenty years he has conducted the publishing business for himself, formerly as M. R. Gateley and later as M. R. Gateley & Co. Beginning with a small business, he constantly enlarged, until at the time of his death he was at the head of a large subscription-book business, the central house being located in Boston, with branch houses in Hartford, Providence, Albany, New York City, Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, Denver, and Galveston. He was a member of St. Joseph's parish, of Boston Highlands, and of the Catholic Union. He leaves a wife and two young children.

SOME CAMPAIGN BIOGRAPHIES.

Geo. Alfred Townsend ("Gath") in the Mail and Express.

"ABOUT the first campaign life written," said Mr. Townsend, "was for President Monroe. The father of Jacksonian simplicity had his life all written and carefully prepared before his nomination. A man named Howard wrote Van Buren's. The Harpers published a life of Calhoun about 1847, which was intended to make that gentleman President. The first great amount of campaign literature was during the Harrison campaign in 1840. There was a perfect avalanche of printing that year in the shape of lives and songs. The campaign songsters made their appearance and there were hundreds of different ones. When Polk ran against Clay in 1844 there were a large number of song-books. In 1848, when Cass and Butler opposed Taylor and Fillmore, a large number of lives and song-books were published. When Franklin Pierce ran for President, Nathaniel Hawthorne, who was then the first litterateur of his time, wrote Pierce's campaign life. It was the first time that a prominent writer had written on this subject. He was rewarded by a consulship to Liverpool, which was then the best office in the gift of the President. It was worth $30,000 a year, while the salary of the President was only $25,000 at that time. Mr. Hawthorne was made a comparatively rich man. Lincoln's famous debates with Douglas were compiled by Howell, who was then a Columbus, O., newspaper man. He was assisted by J. Q. Howard. The same man wrote the campaign life of ex-President Hayes. When Grant was nominated in 1868 the New York Tribune published his life in a special supplement. It was written by Whitelaw Reid, who was then a Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. Mr. Reid had expressed certain views before and he reiterated them in the article. It was not such a campaign life as the National Committee wished, and they succeeded in suppressing the entire edition. Great things had been expected from it. The life of Tilden was written by a Utica newspaper man, who afterwards went crazy. William Dorsheimer wrote Cleveland's life and was made District Attorney of New York. Major Bundy, editor of the New York Mail and Express, wrote the campaign life of Garfield. John W. Forney wrote the life of Hancock. General Wallace will write about President Harrison, and you can learn all I know about Mr. Morton for a reasonable sum."

CURIOUS FACTS ABOUT BOOKBUYING CRANKS.

From the N Y Telegram.

"MORE cranks buy books than anything else," said a salesman in a well known book-store yesterday.

"An old lady, well connected and rich, drops in here twice a week. She goes to the children's toy book counter, selects a 'Robinson Crusoe' or a copy of the 'Arabian Nights,' then goes back and sits down on one of the benches in the rear of the store. She reads an hour, and falls asleep. Our society salesman politely wakes her up, and without any sign of confusion or embarrassment she selects several books, orders them sent to her residence, and departs.

"Another very good customer of ours is a maiden lady of advanced years with a fondness for animal stories. She buys the latest books about dogs, birds, and cats, and we scour the town to satisfy her whims.

"An old naval officer who for many years has been on the retired list, and whose white hair and closely buttoned frock-coat command respect, visits us every week for sea stories, famous naval battles, etc. He reads the book before buying, and generally stands in front of the store to get a good light. He has a habit of reverently lifting his hat and holding it a few inches above his head as he scans the pages. One of our clerks, who has been rude enough to look over his shoulder on several occasions, says that he lifts his hat whenever he comes to the name of an officer killed in battle.

"We have school-girl customers, who buy only novels by the 'Duchess' or 'Ouida'; clergymen who want only sporting and athletic books, doctors with a mania for books on cookery, and lawyers who never were known to pay for a legal work, but read every French novel published.

"The most curious customer of all is a little withered Southern lady, whose wrinkles indicate her age in the eighties. She sits in the rear of the store and reads, or pretends to read, any book that comes handy—Appletons' Encyclopedia or a bible. She continually rubs her gums, as if her teeth hurt her, after which she dozes and falls fast asleep. A salesman noticed her one day dipping a match stub in a little tin box of snuff, which she carried in her reticule. The secret was out. Our Southern customer was a 'snuff-dipper.'"

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Reform Club has begun, at 52 William St., N. Y., the publication of a semi-monthly journal of handy dimensions called Tariff Reform.

THE title of Henry James's latest story, the first part of which will appear in the forthcoming number of the Universal Review, is "The Lesson of the Master."

So great has been the success of The Writer, the Boston magazine for literary workers, that its publishers propose to enlarge it in January, at the beginning of the next volume, and to increase the price to $2 a year.

THE July issue of the Westminster Review (Leonard Scott Pub. Co.) has articles of cosmopolitan interest on "Nurses and Nursing," "Mental Deterioration, some of its avoidable causes," and "Characteristics of American Cities."

The Cosmopolitan Magazine, the publication of which was suspended last May, will soon be issued monthly by a new company. Mr. J. N. Hallock, of The Christian at Work, is a member of the new company, and the editorial department will be conducted by Mr. E. D. Walker.

The St. Louis Stationer, to be published quarterly by the St. Louis Stationer Co., of which R. Ennis is manager and G. T. Dunn secretary, opens in an enterprising manner. It is a large quarto of 24 pages, full of interesting and well-edited matter. We welcome the new-comer.

THE Nineteenth Century for July (Leonard Scott Pub. Co.) has a strong list of contributors. Gladstone treats of "The Elizabethan Settlement of Religion." Frederick Harrison of "Picture Exhibitions;" Prof. Tyndall of "Our Light-houses," and the Bishop of Colombo of "Buddhism."

THE Fortnightly Review for July (Leonard Scott Pub. Co.) has articles on "The Boulangist Movement," by Henri Rochfort; "Miscellaneous Works of Ben Jonson," by Swinburne; "Lucian," by Andrew Lang; "Pawnbroking in England and Abroad," by F. Mabel Robinson; "Goethe in Italy," by Prof. Dowden; and "Ethics of Kant," by Herbert Spencer.

The Art Stationer the first issue of which has just been published by Wm. M. Patton, 25 S. 6th St., Phila., is decidedly the most artistic-looking trade journal that has thus far reached this office. The reading-matter is well written, the news crisp and full of information, and the paper and print exquisite. We are afraid, however, that it will prove too good to live long. To be published monthly at $2 per year.

The Public Service Review, which completed its first year as a weekly newspaper May 5, 1888, will hereafter be issued monthly, as a military and naval magazine, beginning with July. It will be published by the Barneget Park management, and its new proprietors will, under agreement with the former owners, fill all unexpired subscriptions and advertisements in a manner to give reasonable satisfaction. The high standard already established by The Public Service Review in its professional, literary, and typographical features will be maintained.

THE last manuscript that came from the busy pen of the Rev. E. P. Roe (completed, indeed, only a day before his death) was an autobiographical sketch in which he gives many interesting anecdotes of his literary career. Taking as his title a phrase from one of Matthew Arnold's attacks on America, "A Native Author Called Roe," he improves the occasion to answer all unfriendly critics in a kindly and friendly way. The article gives a valuable insight into an exceptionally charming and generous character, and will warm many hearts towards the dead novelist. It will appear in the October number of Lippincott's Magazine, which will be a special "E. P. Roe number," containing this autobiography, his last story, "The Queen of Spades," and personal reminiscences by a friend and acquaintance.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—De Wolfe, Fiske & Co., Boston, have become the New England agents of Lovell's Library, the Boston office having been transferred to them, and they will in the future supply the trade.

BOSTON, MASS.—Moses King Corporation is the title of a new corporation of which Moses King is the directing spirit, with headquarters in the new Bay State Trust Co. Building on Boylston Street. They intend doing a general publishing business, and are preparing a "Handbook of Nahant," similar in design to Mr. King's other successful handbooks, which he still controls.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.—C. A. Leech & Co., booksellers and stationers, have been succeeded by Leech & Martin.

COLUMBUS, O.—Van Epps & Co., booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

DU BOIS, PA.—James F. Gaulin, bookseller, had his stock damaged by fire.

FORT WAYNE, IND.—Kiel Brothers, booksellers and stationers, have been succeeded by Renner, Cralstey & Co.

HUNTINGDON, PA.—We learn from the Huntingdon Daily Local News, that Mr. J. C. Blair, the manufacturing stationer in this place, has begun work on the enlargement of his present large building at the corner of 6th and Penn Streets. The new building will be 100 feet in front and extend back 88 feet, and will be six stories high, not counting the basement or attic, and the stories will be from 9 to 12 feet high. The total height of the structure will be 85 feet, the tallest and largest building, perhaps, between Philadelphia and Pittsburg. It will be built of hard brick, with brown-stone and terra-cotta trimmings, and will present a handsome, unique appearance. There will not be any plastering, the walls being painted and the ceilings of finished timbers. This new building will be connected with the five-story building (52 x 110 feet) erected in 1884 by a twenty foot connection joining the floors excepting the lower or basement floor, which is reserved for a general arched drive or entrance way into the inside court or open space. The style of architecture is somewhat after the new De Vinne building. No surplus of ornamentation; the beauty consists in solid and substantial brick and stone work, deep and large windows, bold and effective, without the elaborate details which tire both the eyes and the pocket-book.

TOLEDO, O.—Monfort & Baker, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

URBANA, O.—R. J. Winder, bookseller and stationer, is dead.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HOWARD PYLE's stirring story of "Within the Capes" is about to be put in paper form at 50 cents by the Scribners.

A. H. SMYTH, Columbus, O., has published a pamphlet description of "The Battle of Gettysburg," by Alfred E. Lee, illustrated with twenty full-page nature prints of the Ohio memorials on the great battlefield.

T. B. PETERSON & BROTHERS, Philadelphia, will not contribute to any trade-sale this fall, but offer to sell special bills of their books at special prices and on special terms from now until September 1, thus giving buyers the auctioneer's commission, etc.

LOTHROP's Summer Series, in dainty white and gold paper covers at 25 cents, is proving immensely popular. Some of the most popular stories of the day are issued in this style. Messrs. Lothrop have nearly ready a bright boys' book, entitled "The King in the Cliff," by Frank West Rollins, a talented young lawyer of Concord, N. H.

THE August volume in the Camelot Series will be "English Prize from Maundeville to Thackeray" chosen by Arthur Galton, in the Canterbury Ports, "Elfin Music," edited by Arthur E. Waite, and in the Great Writers, "Life of Congreve," by Edmund Gosse, will appear. These various series are making something like a sensation in the publishing world. Thomas Whittaker is the American agent.

THE fiftieth volume has just been added to the Yellow Paper Series of the Scribners. No collection of books put out in popular form, and at a low price, has so much to commend it to the public as this series. Its high standard has been universally kept, and the most famous and popular of our American authors have constantly been added to the list. The success of the series, for we are informed almost every book has been successful, is deserved.

KIRTLEY & PHILLIPS, Columbia, Mo., call the attention of the trade to a novelty in stationery in the shape of an envelope pad. The pad consists of twenty envelopes slightly secured together at the top, and arranged in tablet form, and can easily be removed one at a time. The tablet is enclosed in a case, consisting of a stiff board back and two hinged blotters, so that they will fold neatly one over the other, always be ready for use, and protect the tablet from dirt and dust. The tablet commends itself at once to those who are economical and neat.

THE BOK SYNDICATE PRESS, under the business management of Wm. J. Bok, has removed from 7 Murray St., N. Y., to more commodious quarters in 23 Park Row. Mr. Bok has made arrangements with a number of prominent writers for articles, stories, and contributions. The writers whose services have thus far been secured are: Grace Greenwood, Admiral Porter, Wilkie Collins, General John C. Frémont, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Mrs. Gen. Lew Wallace, Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, Marion Harland, Max O'Rell, Anna Katharine Green, Jessie Benton Frémont, "The Duchess," Joaquin Miller, Mrs. Frank Leslie, Fanny Davenport, "Sydney Lusk," Donald G. Mitchell ("Ik Marvel"), "Mrs. Alexander," Laura C. Holloway, Bill Nye, Augusta Evans Wilson, Helen Campbell, Dr. William A. Hammond, James Parton, Jenny June, William J. Florence, "Octave Thanet," B. P. Shillaber ("Mrs. Partington"), and Marietta Holley ("Josiah Allen's wife").

DODD, MEAD & Co. give the following figures as the sales of Mr. Roe's works in the cloth-covered editions: "Barriers Burned Away," in its sixty-ninth thousand; "What Can She Do?" in its forty-fifth thousand; "Opening a Chestnut Burr," in its sixty-ninth thousand; "Near to Nature's Heart," in its fifty-fourth thousand; "From Jest to Earnest," in its sixty first thousand; "A Knight of the Nineteenth Century," in its fifty-fourth thousand; "A Face Illumined," in its fifty-third thousand; "A Day of Fate," in its fifty-second thousand; "Without a Home," in its sixtieth thousand; "His Sombre Rivals," in its forty-seventh thousand; "A Young Girl's Wooing," in its forty-second thousand; "An Original Belle," in its thirty-fifth thousand; "Driven Back to Eden," in its twenty-sixth thousand; "Nature's Serial Story," in its twenty-second thousand; "He Fell in Love with His Wife," in its thirty-fifth thousand; "The Earth Trembled," in its thirty-fifth thousand.

A BOOK entitled "Mary Queen of Scots' Library" will be published by Elliot Stock. It will give a list with biographical notes of the books which the Queen possessed and studied constantly.

CRATTO & WINDUS will publish at an early date a new edition of Miss A. Isaacs Menken's "Infelicia." It will contain a portrait and other illustrations, as well as a biographical preface, and a facsimile of the letter which Charles Dickens wrote to Miss Menken. The first edition of the book has been very scarce for a long period.

NEARLY $1500 have thus far been subscribed for the memorial to Mrs. Craik. The memorial is to take the form of a marble medallion in Tewkesbury Abbey, which was the place selected by Mrs. Craik as the home of "John Halifax, Gentleman," and which was the last place visited by her before her death. Subscriptions in the United States may be paid to Mr. Joseph Harper, of Harper & Bros.

By command, Mr. Loftie's "Kensington: picturesque and historical," to be issued by subscription during the coming autumn, is dedicated to the Queen, which is the third work from the Leadenhall Press thus honored. Beautifully illustrated on every page, we learn that the production of this sumptuous work has already cost a large sum represented by four figures. Messrs. Scribner & Welford are to be the American publishers.

MR. GEORGE REDWAY, London, who has made a specialty of this class of literature, announces an "esoteric" series, to consist, for the most part, of reprints of old books dealing with alchemy, astrology, freemasonry, magic, and Rosicrucian mysticism. Among the first to appear will be the works of the anonymous cosmopolite philosopher, known as Eirenaeus Philalethes; and the "Lumende Lumine" of Thomas Vaughan, who wrote under the name of Eugenius Philalethes.

HENRY STEVENS & SON, London, have in press a volume, entitled "Americanisms, Old and New, a dictionary of words, phrases, and colloquialisms, peculiar to the United States, British America, the West Indies, etc.; their derivation, meaning, and application, together with numerous anecdotal, historical, explanatory, and folk lore notes, and a critical introduction," compiled and edited by John S. Farmer, author of "Ex Oriente Lux," "Twixt Two Worlds," etc. The book will be printed for private circulation among a limited number of subscribers only.

THOSE who are obliged frequently to refer to German books are especially interested in the movement to introduce the Roman in place of the Gothic alphabet. Since 1866 the society which is agitating this matter has nearly doubled in numbers. On its lists are now over 4436 names, including members of all professions, teachers, physicians, booksellers, and merchants. In 1886, out of 6913 books on artistic, scientific, mercantile and industrial subjects, 5316 were printed with the Roman letters.

UNLESS one is a very good Latin scholar and well up in bibliography, it is often quite a puzzling thing to translate the Latin names of cities as they appear on the title-pages of old books or in catalogues. It may be well to bear in mind that Lugduni signifies Lyons; Lutetiae, Paris; Basileae, Basle; Venet, Venice; Bononiae, Bonn; Londini, London; Coloniae, Cologne; Oxonii, Oxford; Cantabrigiae, Cambridge; Lipsiae, Leipsic; Norimbergae, Nuremberg; Mediolani, Milan; Lovanii, Louvain; Amstelredami, Amsterdam; Francofurti, Frankfurt; Antverpiae, Antwerp; and Lugduni Batavorum or Lugdun Bat., Leyden.—Bookmaker.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address, in each issue. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price.

It is desirable to receive copy in shape ready for the printer, viz.: first, headline—name and address—then, titles in separate lines (see below), all written on a separate sheet, or at the bottom of letter, or on postal card. Compliance with this request will secure accurate and prompt insertion.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish next week "The Elect Lady," by George Macdonald, in their Town and Country Library.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish at once an "Introduction to the New Testament," by Dr. Marcus Dod, in the Theological Educator series.

A. S. BARNES & Co. have in preparation a commentary upon the New Testament for Christian workers, by Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, Mr. Beecher's successor in the Plymouth pulpit.

S. C. GRIGGS & Co. will publish on the 18th an "Eclectic Shorthand Dictionary," by Prof. J. G. Cross, which has been highly spoken of by authorities to whom the manuscript and advance sheets were submitted.

H. PEMBROKE, 72 Main St., Salt Lake City, will publish on the 15th inst. the second volume of the "Compiled Laws of Utah." These two volumes comprise all legislation—national and local—pertaining to Utah.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. have in press "The Jolly Parisiennes," by Emile Zola. The volume will contain several short stories, of which the one that gives the title to the book deals with a peculiar phase of Paris life and politics.

C. L. WEBSTER & Co. will publish this month the autobiography of General Sheridan. The work was all in the printer's hands, and the General had already gone over the bulk of the proof-sheets. The work will be in two volumes, the first of which may be expected next week.

HARPER & BROS. publish this week a book called "The Land Beyond the Forest." It contains much interesting and valuable information about Transylvania, a country known to students as the home of Saxons, Roumanians, and gypsies, but concerning which the popular mind is painfully ignorant. Madame E. Gerard, the authoress, went thither with her husband, an officer in the Austrian army, and having written up her experience, has produced a lively volume, describing the manners, customs, traits of character, and religion of the Transylvanians. It will contain many illustrations, also an excellent map. They have also just ready a war novel, by Capt. Charles King, entitled "War-time Wooing." The plot is clever, and cleverly wrought out in clear lines, so that it holds the reader's interest to the end. Numerous illustrations add to the charm of the volume.

FOREIGN BOOKS ON THE FREE LIST.

THE Senate Finance Committee has been asked by members of the House to put upon the free list books printed exclusively in any foreign language. Early in the Congress Representative Lind, of Minnesota, introduced a bill to that effect. When the Mills bill was under consideration, he presented his bill to Mr. Wilson, of West Virginia, a member of the Committee on Ways and Means, and he, becoming interested in it, succeeded in having the provisions incorporated in the Mills bill. Mr. Lind has made an argument before the Senate Sub-Committee in support of his measure, and Representative Dingley, of Maine, endorsed his suggestion. Mr. Lind maintains that very few books, and those of a very cheap grade, are printed in this country in a foreign language, and that it will be in the interests of education, and be of great benefit to the foreign-born population in this country, to be able to import from their old homes books in their native tongue which they would otherwise not be likely to get. As a rule, he says, the booksellers do not keep the classes of books that would be most imported. Mr. Lind believes that Mr. Aldrich is inclined to favor the proposition. There is a disposition, however, in some quarters to oppose it, not on tariff grounds alone, but upon the theory that the foreign-born population of this country ought not to be encouraged in the use of their native languages, and that they can be better Americanized by the use of English.

The author of "Miss Varian" divides women into two classes, the very good and the very bad. The scene of this unhealthy story is New York City. Miss Remington, at the age of twenty-five, decides it is time to marry and deliberately lays her plans to secure an offer of marriage from a rich young broker. She is successful, and for a short time makes him miserable. Incidents in her life before marriage entail their natural consequences, and she suffers herself, and makes others suffer. As offset there is a pure young girl, who, after many days, is made happy.

Davis, Cora M. A. Immortelles. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 9+178 p. sq. O. cl., $1.50.

The author was born in the town of Alabama, Genesee Co., N. Y., April 18, 1841. In 1857 she married Mr. Davis. She died in 1885. The poems were intended for private distribution only when the collection was begun. Some of them have appeared in periodicals, but the majority are printed for the first time. Her husband and children desire her best friends to possess her verses in this form. Mrs. Davis shows a deep love of nature and great affection for her friends.

Davis, M. E. M. In war times. Il. by E. W. Kemble. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 257 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

A story full of humor and pathos, giving a vivid picture of the lives of the women and children of the South when all the fathers and brothers had gone away to war. The devotion and superstition of the colored people are happily told. The writer is a daughter of Jefferson Davis. It will do all Northern children good to learn what war meant to Southern children. The tone is wholly devoid of bitterness.

Dempster, Charlotte L: H. Ninette: an idyl of Provence. [Anon.] N. Y., D. Appleton & Co., 1888. 344 p. S. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 7.) pap., 50 c.

Jean" is quite at home on French soil. Ninette is the seventeen-year-old daughter of a farmer who is very poor and heavily in debt. A few years before the story opens he had given poor, half-starved Ninette a cruel step mother. An old broker, a relation of the step-mother, wants to marry Ninette, and offers two thousand francs for her to help the farmer in his troubles. Ninette has a lover, who rescues her, but brings the hatred of the broker upon himself, and suffers much persecution in consequence. The earthquake at Nice in 1886 plays a part in clearing up the troubles.

Ebers, G: The burgomaster's wife: a romance; [from the German.] N. Y., G: Munro, [1888.] 3-241 p. S. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1097.) pap., 20 c.

Ebers, G: The emperor: a romance; from the German, by Mrs. Catharine H. Storrs. N. Y., G: Munro, [1888.] 3-388 p. S. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1106.) pap., 20 c.

Exell, Rev. Jos. S. The biblical illustrator. V. 2: St. Mark. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1888.] 20+742 p. O. cl., $2.

The compiler once more gives proof of his marvelous industry in this selection of anecdotes, similes, emblems, illustrations, expository, scientific, geographical, historical, and homiletic, gathered from a wide range of home and foreign literature to throw light upon the gospel of St. Mark. The first volume of this work, devoted to St. Matthew, appeared in October, 1887.

"Though relating only to the text, it serves to a large extent, from the nature of the case, as a clue to illustrations—to portraits most surely of all, and then to places and events. Thus, the title, 'Wrecks, etc.,' with its long list of vessels, will certainly be found to cover more or less authentic delineations in black and white. So of 'War-vessels,' 'Railways,' 'Riots,' 'Floods,' 'Earthquakes,' 'Mississippi,' 'Hospitals,' 'Churches,' etc."—N. Y. Evening Post.

Howells, W. D. A sea change; or, love's stowaway: a lyrical farce in two acts and an epilogue. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. 151 p. T. cl., 50 c.

This burlesque on light opera has been put to music and is published by A. P. Schmidt & Co., with piano accompaniment. The scene is an ocean steamer. The heroine has been taken on board by her mother to get her away from the hero, who has shipped as "Love's stowaway." Miss Muriel, reclining on her steamer chair, has a dream in which the ship meets an iceberg inhabited with fairies, who add to the songs, plot, and general merriment. Some of the songs, although "pulled in by the ears," as our French neighbors say, are full of fun and satire.

*Hurd, D. Hamilton. History of Essex County, Mass., with biog. sketches of many of its prominent men. Phil., J. W. Lewis & Co., 1888. c. 2 v., 2460 p. il. O. cl., $18.

Irving, J: Treat. Indian sketches taken during a U. S. expedition to make treaties with the Pawnee and other tribes of Indians in 1833. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 9+365 p. D. cl., $1.50.

These sketches were written more than fifty years ago. Portions of them at first appeared in a New York newspaper and were so widely copied that the author collected them, and added enough narrative to explain the object of the expedition. In the introductory account, written in 1835, the author explains that he was sent with the United States Indian Commissioner to study the rights and wrongs of the Indians and to advise with the Government as to their future. Gives many new details about this native race.

Julian, Harry. Love ventures: a novel with an affidavit. N. Y., The Truth Seeker Co., [1888.] c. 226 p. il., D. bds., 50 c.; pap., 25 c.

Three young men lose government clerkships owing to a change in political parties. They start for the Sandwich Islands to try their fortune, are wrecked, and are introduced to the reader floating in the Pacific Ocean. They reach an island where they are immediately married by three beautiful native girls and lead lazy, careless lives, spending most of their time in conversations on religion, politics, customs, manners, etc. They hold rather radical views and call a spade a spade unhesitatingly.

Lamartine, Alph. de. Selected poems from Premières et nouvelles méditations; ed., with biog. sketch and notes, by G: O. Curme. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1888. c. 21+179 p. D. cl., 75 c.

A very warm biographical sketch of Lamartine begins the volume. This is followed by selections in French. A chapter of notes at the end gives translations of many words and tells when the different poems were written, and under what circumstances. Lamartine's poems had a moulding influence on the religion, history, and politics of France.

Linton, Mrs. E. Lynn. Through the long nights: a novel. N. Y., Harper & Bros., 1888. 158 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., no. 625.) pap., 25 c.

Introduces a wordly-wise mother "with a hoard of maxims preaching down a daughter's heart." Her father has been unsuccessful and the mother hopes to retrieve his losses by a good marriage for her daughter. The country-seat of Kingshouse offers few eligible men. The young artist, poor, selfish, and fascinating, upon whom Estelle's heart is set, keeps all in hot water for some time. The characters of Estelle and of her cousin Lady Elizabeth are drawn with all Mrs. Linton's old skill. The plot is intricate. Estelle's devotion to her artist lover is the key-note of a composition full of tenderness, pathos, wit, and tragedy.

Loti, Pierre. [pseud. for Louis Marie Julian Viand.] An Iceland fisherman (pêcheur d'Islande): a story of love on land and sea; from the French by Clara Cadiot. N. Y., W: S. Gottsberger, 1888. c. 232 p. S. cl., 50 c.; pap., 25 c.

A poetic love story giving a succession of word-pictures of the scenery, habits, customs, and people of far-off Iceland. Descriptions of the fisherfolk, men and women, their hard lives and scanty pleasures, their peculiar ideas and sentiments, are interwoven with the little story of true love, which at the outset of smoothness became a sacrifice to the all-absorbing sea. One of the fishermen compelled to serve in the navy introduces a description of war in China.

Merrill, S: Newspaper libel: a handbook for the press. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. 304 p. D. cl., $2.

The author is on the staff of the Boston Daily Globe and a member of the bar of Massachusetts and New York. His book deals with the rights of the press and its obligations toward public men and others whose conduct and whose affairs become subjects of discussion as news. The cases cited, as a general rule, are cases of newspaper libel heard in American courts. The style is happy. The arrangement is chronological, and the history of cases cited brings in many facts about American newspapers, beginning with Publick Occurrences, the first American newspaper, dated September 25, 1690.

Eden is a well-informed, refined New York girl who marries a rich merchant many years her senior. After some months of unclouded happiness she begins to suspect her husband of devotion to another woman.

Her best friends tell her all they can to worry her, and she is very miserable, and finally leaves her husband and returns to her father. After many harrowing scenes the mystery is cleared up and Eden learns her husband's true relationship to the beautiful widow and also to his confidential clerk.

Stalker, Rev. Ja. The life of St. Paul. N. Y., American Tract Soc., [1888.] 183 p. D. cl., 60 c.

The writer is a Scotchman. In ten chapters he briefly sketches the career of St. Paul and follows these with notes to teachers and hints to Bible students, also divided into ten chapters, citing his authorities and also giving many questions to fasten facts in young minds. The author considers Conybeare and Howson's "Life of St. Paul" the most reliable of the many biographies of the apostle.

Thickstun, F: A Mexican girl. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1888. c. 287 p. S. (Ticknor's pap. ser., no. 41.) pap., 50 c.

Scene laid in New Ripo, supposed to be a mining settlement on the border line between California and New Mexico. The mixed population of Mexicans, Cor-nishmen, and wild, dissipated Americans is graphically described. The mine superintendent has advertised for a school-teacher, and Mr. Roslin, of New England, arrives. The Mexican girl, Panchita, resolves to marry him in order to leave the camp, which she hates. He falls desperately in love, but is constantly troubled by her wild lawlessness. After many startling revelations he sadly confides to his note-book that "Love is only lack of knowledge." The author is a native of Colorado.

GOOD WORDS FOR THE TRADE LIST ANNUAL.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 26, 1888.

IN PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of July 7 you speak of the "Expense of Trade Bibliography to Book-sellers." For the past 20 years I have purchased everything I could get in the way of Annual Catalogues, etc., etc., both English and American, and every dollar so spent has been a good paying investment. Your Trade List Annual would be even more valuable if it contained more lists of the small publishers and I believe it would be money in their pockets if they would contribute to it.

Truly yours, H. GREGORY.

ZOLA PROHIBITED IN TENNESSEE.—We learn from a correspondent that two booksellers of Nashville, Tenn., were arrested for selling Zola's "La Terre," fined, and the sale of the book stopped. Our correspondent concludes his letter by saying "the fines were paid cheerfully and the boys acknowledged the naughtiness of the book and promised to sin no more."

NO NOVELS FOR OCEAN GROVE.

THE sale of novels in Ocean Grove, N. J., has been prohibited by the Ocean Grove Association. W. H. Wythe, son of a Methodist minister, last year was given a news and confectionery stand in the Association post-office by George W. Evens, his father-in-law, who is Secretary of the Association. When Wythe heard that the Association would not permit him to sell novels, in which he had done a good business last year, he refused to accept the stand as a gift. The Association is now endeavoring to lease the stand for $175.

"A SLOPING BOOKCASE" is the title of an article contributed to The Writer. The sloping bookcase is not really a great popular want. But there is a widespread demand for some device that will prevent books from sloping from the bookcase. P. S.—If this paragraph should meet the eye of any person addicted to the habit of permanently clinging to borrowed books, we may remark that all writers on the minor ethics agree that August is a capital month in which to turn over a new leaf.—N. Y. Tribune.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 11, 1888.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE DINNER OF THE AUTHORS—MR. LOWELL ON LITERATURE.

A DINNER, which has been pronounced quite a success, was given by the Incorporated Society of Authors, on July 25, to a number of American men and women of letters visiting England. According to Mr. Edmund Yates' account to the N. Y. Tribune, there was "a very good muster of celebrities. Mr. Wilkie Collins emerged from retirement, as did Mr. George Meredith, another hermit-novelist; Lord Brabourne, white-haired, kindly and genial, as a children's storyteller should be; Dr. Russell, very lame, but very jolly; Mr. Walter Besant, beaming with delight at the success of his bantling. Americans abounded, male and female after their kind, among whom were Consul-General Waller, in paroxysms of stentorian bashfulness; Mr. Lowell, of whom more anon; Mr. Smalley, impassable as the Sphinx; anecdotic Mr. Boughton, and Mr. Brander Matthews. Mr. Lowell touched upon copyright, but Mr. Lowell stands far away from any one else. He could invest any subject with interest. The speech he delivered Wednesday evening seemed to me one of the most perfect to which I have ever listened, thoroughly manly, full of self-respect, of honor, kindly sympathy for the literature of which he spoke, modest with an underlying current of pathos, and genuinely humorous withal. Well-delivered, too, in a quiet, grave tone with here and there mirthful inflections, and with a manner which was at once dignified and prepossessing."

MR. LOWELL ON LITERATURE.

I am to answer to literature, and I must confess that a person like myself, who first appeared in print fifty years ago, would hardly wish to be answerable for all his own literature, not to speak of the literature of other people. But your allusion to sixty years ago reminded me of something which struck me as I looked down these tables. Sixty years ago the two authors you mentioned, Irving and Cooper, were the only two American authors of whom anything was known in Europe, and the knowledge of them in Europe was mainly confined to England. It is true that Bryant's "Water Fowl" had already begun its flight in immortal air, but these were the only two American authors that could be said to be known in England. And what is even more remarkable, they were the only American authors at that time—there were and had been others known to us at home—who were capable of earning their bread by their pens. Another singular change is suggested to me as I look down these tables, and that is the contrast they afford between the time when Johnson wrote his famous lines about those ills that assail the life of the scholar, and by the scholar he meant the author—

"Toil, envy, want the patron, and the gaol."

And I confess when I remember that verse it strikes me as a singular contrast that I should meet with a body of authors who were able to offer a dinner instead of begging one; that I have sat here and seen "forty feeding like one," when 100 years ago the one fed like forty when they had the chance. You have alluded, also, Mr. Chairman, in terms which I shall not qualify, to my own merits. You have made me feel a little as if I were a ghost revisiting the pale glimpses of the moon and reading with considerable wonder my own epitaph. But you have done me more than justice in attributing so much to me with regard to international copyright. And since I could not very well avoid touching upon the subject of international copyright, I must say that all American authors without exception have been in favor of it on the moral ground, on the ground of simple justice to English authors. But there were a great many local, topical considerations, as our ancestors used to call them, that we were obliged to take into account, and which, perhaps, you do not feel as keenly here as we did. But I think we may say that the almost unanimous conclusion of American authors latterly has been that we should be thankful to get any bill that recognized the principle of international copyright, being confident that its practical application would so recommend it to the American people that we should get afterward, if not every amendment of it that we desire, at least every one that is humanly possible. I think that perhaps a little injustice has been done to our side of the question; I think a little more heat has been imported into it than was altogether wise. I am not so sure that our American publishers were so much more wicked than their English brethren would have been if they had had the chance.

I cannot, I confess, accept with patience any imputation that implies that there is anything in our climate or in our form of government that tends to produce a lower standard of morality than in other countries. The fact is that it has been partly due to a certain—may I speak of our ancestors as having been qualified by a certain dulness? I mean no disrespect, but I think it is due to the stupidity of our ancestors in making a distinction between literary property and other property. That has been at the root of the whole evil. I, of course, understand, as everybody understands, that all property is the creature of municipal law. But you must remember that it is the conquest of civilization that when property passes beyond the boundaries of that municipium it is still sacred. It is not even yet sacred in all respects and conditions. Literature, the property in an idea, has been something that it is very difficult for the average man to comprehend. It is not difficult for the average man to comprehend that there may be property in a form which genius or talent gives to an idea. He can see it. It is visible and palpable this property in an idea when it is exemplified in a machine, but it is hardly so apprehensible when it is subtly interfused in literature. Books have always been looked on somewhat as feræ naturæ, and if you have ever preserved pheasants you know that when they fly over your neighbor's boundaries he may take a pot shot at them. I remember that something more than thirty years ago, Longfellow, my friend and neighbor, asked me to come and eat a game pie with him. Longfellow's books had been sold in England by the tens of thousands, and that game pie—and you will observe the felicity of its being a game pie, a feræ naturæ always you see—was the only honorarium he had ever received from this country for reprinting his works. I cannot help feeling as I stand here that there is something especially—I might almost use a cant word and say monumentally—interesting in a meeting like this. It is the first time that English and American authors, so far as I know, have come together in any numbers, I was going to say to fraternize, when I remembered that I ought, perhaps, to add to "sororize." We, of course, have no desire, no sensible man in England or America has any desire to enforce this fraternization at the point of the bayonet. Let us go on criticising each other; it is good for both of us. We Americans have been sometimes charged with being a little too sensitive; but perhaps a little indulgence may be due to those who always have their faults told to them, and the reference to whose virtues, perhaps, is sometimes conveyed in a foot-note in small print. I think that both countries have a sufficiently good opinion of themselves to have a fairly good opinion of each other.

I think I have been told often enough to remember that my countrymen are apt to think that they are in the right, that they are always in the right; that they are apt to look at their side of the question only. Now, this conduces certainly to peace of mind and imperturbability of judgment, whatever other merits it may have. I am sure I do not know where we got it. Do you? I also sympathize most heartily with what has been said by the chairman with regard to the increasing love for England among my countrymen. I find on inquiry that they stop longer and in greater numbers every year in the old home, and feel more deeply its manifold charms. They also are beginning to feel that London is the centre of the races that speak English, very much in the sense that Rome was the centre of the ancient world. And I confess that I never think of London, which I also confess that I love, without thinking of that palace which David built, sitting in hearing of a hundred streams—streams of thought, of intelligence, of activity. And one other thing about London, if I may be allowed to refer to myself, impresses me beyond any other sound I have ever heard, and that is the low, unceasing roar that one hears always in the air. It is not a mere accident like the tempest or the cataract, but it is impressive because it always indicates human will and impulse and conscious movement, and I confess that when I hear it I almost feel that I were listening to the roaring loom of time.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

THE CHACE BILL WILL NOT COME UP THIS SESSION.

On the 30th ult. Representative Collins, of Boston, Chairman of the Committee on Commerce, presented a resolution to have December 5 set apart for the consideration of the Copyright Bill. In introducing the resolution, the title of the bill only was mentioned. Mr. Rogers, of Arkansas, asked if that was the Copyright Bill; and upon being informed that it was, objected. The objection was without conditions, and was sufficient to defeat the resolution. As a single objection to any similar resolution would defeat it, it is clearly not probable that a discussion can be secured this session, and the whole matter must, therefore, go over until next winter, when, Mr. Rogers said, he expects the bill to pass.

THE GROLIER CLUB PROGRESSING.

From the N. Y. Times.

THE Grolier Club, after a remarkably successful existence of four years, was incorporated on the 1st inst., the incorporators being William L. Andrews, Samuel P. Avery, William Bispham, F. A. Castle, Beverly Chew, T. L. De Vinne, A. W. Drake, Albert Gallop, Robert Hoe, Brayton Ives, W. M. Laffan, Howard Mansfield, Samuel W. Marvin, Edward S. Mead, and Arthur B. Turnure. One of the principal objects in securing the incorporation of the club was that, in the event of the acquisition of real property, it might be held in the name of the club. Arrangements were being closed on the same day for the purchase of a building on East Thirty-second Street, to provide more suitable and commodious accommodation for the purposes of the club than the quarters it now occupies at 64 Madison Avenue.

The club had 50 members when it was organized and the resident membership has since been increased to three times that number, in addition to which there are 50 non-resident members. Owing to the present limited accommodations of the club it has been necessary to curtail the rapid growth to which it would, under different circumstances, have undoubtedly attained.

The necessary alterations to the club's new building will be commenced immediately, and it is expected the new club-house will be ready for occupation in the fall. The house will be altered so as to provide a hall for exhibitions and lectures and a library for the club's fine collection of works, the selection of which has been made with admirable judgment by Mr. Beverly Chew, the librarian. The rest of the house will be devoted to that purpose. A large accession to the membership is anticipated on the completion of the new club-house.

CASSELL &amp; COMPANY'S NEW HOUSE.

We print above an illustration of the new quarters of the American branch of Cassell & Company, occupied by them since February of this year. It is a substantial four-story brick building covering two lots at 107 to 111 North Avenue, New York City. The whole of this, with the exception of the ground floor and a part of the basement, is devoted to the use of Cassell & Company. On the first floor are the store-room, the offices of Mr. Dunham, of the accounts, editors, and of Mr. John T. Ryan, who has charge of the printing department. On the second floor are the serial and bound-book subscription departments. On the third is the packing and warehouse, and in the top floor are housed the Claret's Annual Library, the paper novels, and the stock in sets. On every floor there is ample light, and most excellent judgment is displayed in the disposition of the material. Good discipline is apparent in every department of this establishment.

And it is just this administrative genius, apparent everywhere in connection with the concern, that has raised it from a small agency which had its beginning in a dingy little back room in 37 Park Row, (the old Potter Building), a little over twenty five years ago, to one of the largest and most important publishing houses in the United States. Occasionally one is even led to forget that this is but the branch of an English house, so great is its activity in the direction of putting on the market American-made books written by native talent. Indeed, their list now, especially in the department of light literature is largely composed of copyright books.

This house, under its present management, has turned out books for the young of all ages that in every respect challenge all competition. Their illustrated quartos, with bright lithographed covers, are always conspicuous on Christmas counters. Much time, thought, and capital are given to this specialty, and a bewildering array of books are year by year gotten up for the young, and made beautiful, instructive, interesting, and tempting by type, print, paper, illustration, color, and all that generous publishers can add to the best efforts of favorite and indefatigable authors. The works by Doré, which this house first introduced into this country, have lately been issued in attractive styles at a price so low that those who have long coveted these superb art works afar off may with little sacrifice become possessors of them.

This establishment, it may be remembered, was started by John Cassell, who visited this country before the war, but who was unwilling then to take any great risks on account of the threatening political situation in those days. He therefore appointed Mr. John Robbins an agent, on his own account, for the sale of the publications of the house. Mr. Robbins had barely introduced some of the more prominent works of Cassell, Petter & Galpin, when the war broke out and almost put a stop to the enterprise.

In 1865 Mr. Walter Low, son of Sampson Low, came to this country and established an agency for the Cassell publications at 596 Broadway. He was succeeded in 1868 by Mr. Robert Turner, an energetic man, who received his business education in the parent house. He managed in a very short time to give the American branch a substantial foothold. Then Mr. Charles Gerard was sent here in 1873, with Mr. Galpin, we believe, when the latter came over to visit this country, and administered the affairs for two years. In 1875 Mr. Turner returned to the United States, and after remaining a few months, made arrangements with the present manager, Mr. Oscar M. Dunham, then of the American News Company, who took charge in January, 1876.

From that time forward the affairs of this house were administered with no uncertain hand. Quick to grasp the situation and to act, endowed with unusual business talent, a thorough knowledge and a love for the business, in the face of fierce competition, Mr. Dunham, probably the youngest notable man in the American book-trade, led the business entrusted to his care, step by step to the front rank of the book industry of this country. The history of the house since the present manager's connection with it is too well known to need recital here. It is an enterprise that reflects credit on its head, and we prophesy that at no distant day Mr. Dunham will see the business put under the roof of a building owned by Cassell & Co.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS' READING CIRCLE.

We have received a preliminary announcement of Our Young Folks' Reading Circle, which is to be a national organization for the promotion of good reading among boys and girls. The originators and directors of the scheme are Rev. Lyman Abbott, William H. Rideing, editor of The Youth's Companion, John Hascom, Frances E. Willard, Mary A. Livermore, Prof. W. Stearns, and S. R. Winchell, who is to be the manager of the undertaking.

The board of counsellors shows eighteen names synonymous with intelligent work for children's literary culture. It is not intended that this Circle shall be a school, nor will its directors aim to mark out anything like a course of study in the books which they may select for reading, though there will be a design in the selection of each course, so that a definite end will be arrived at in the course of four years' reading. There will be three grades or courses of reading—one for children from eight to twelve years of age, and two others for young people from twelve to twenty years of age. The books chosen will consist of entertaining stories, of history, of some of the best fiction written for young readers, of biography, travel, and adventure by the best authors, of science, and suitable poetical works. For the younger children, stories in fable and fairy tales will be liberally provided. The books will be chosen by the vote of the directors and counsellors.

Any person may join this Circle by sending the annual fee of 25 cents to S. R. Winchell, 106 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Nothing else is necessary in order to receive all the notices and announcements, and to have your name enrolled on the books and published in the list of members. It is planned after a time to have State secretaries and local secretaries to facilitate the work, but the central office will continue at the above address.

A list of optional readings will be recommended, as well as a list of required readings, thus affording those who wish to read more than the required amount an opportunity to read books which are vouched for by a number of competent judges.

A badge will be sent free of charge to all who become members. It is small and neat, and may be worn as a scarf-pin.

Announcements of the books selected for the first year's reading will be made immediately, and the first year's course will begin in September. Before the close of the school year, some time in May, a blank sheet will be mailed to each member, to be filled out with desired information respecting members and local circles.

A formal report of work done will be called for at the end of each year, and if satisfactory, the member will receive a certificate. If four of these certificates have been received at the end of the course, a diploma will be given in exchange.

Two or three of the periodicals for young people will be used as organs of the Circle until such time as it shall feel justified in starting an organ of its own. It was hoped that The Youth's Companion might have been one of the three, but its editor says it is already "too full for utterance."

As in all other enterprises, money could be put to excellent use; but it is hoped the small fee of 25 cents will furnish capital enough for all the most necessary expenses.

OBITUARY.

E. P. GRAY.

MR. E. P. GRAY, the well-known bookseller of St. Louis, Mo., died August 1, aged 56 years. For almost forty years Mr. Gray suffered intensely from an osseous tumor, the seat of which was the hip-joint. When he was twenty-five years old, and also some years later, unsuccessful operations were performed. About six weeks ago, while driving home, a heavy brewery wagon was driven into his vehicle, throwing him out and inflicting severe injuries to the already disabled hip-joint. External treatment proving of little help, Mr. Gray insisted upon an extreme operation, and abiding the result. The counsel of friends and physicians could not change his purpose, and accordingly he was removed to St. Luke's Hospital for treatment. The operation was to be nothing less than the removal of the aching limb at the hip-joint. With this in view, the family was summoned to the hospital; the greetings, which might be the last adieus, were said, and then the patient was surrendered to the exclusive custody of the surgeons in the hospital operating-room. He was brave and calm up to the moment of anæsthetization, and almost his last injunction to his surgeon was to guard against any half-way measures—to rid him of the cause of his years of agony, or allow him to succumb to the operation. After the preliminary incisions had been made and the hip-joint laid bare, the advanced stage of decay in which the bone was found gave the surgeons ample evidence that the patient had but few chances for life, either in possession of the limb or without it; but the operation had begun and must be and was finished, though Mr. Gray came near dying on the operating table. The operation lasted nearly an hour, when the patient was suffered to pass out from under the influence of the anæsthetic. As soon as he had fully recovered consciousness he expressed his gratitude for the measure of relief he experienced, and for a short time seemed in a fair way to rally from the shock. So marked was the improvement that the surgeons deemed it safe to leave him for the time, Dr. H. H. Mudd, who had charge of the case, promising to return before noon. This he did, and to his dismay found the patient in a condition of collapse, from which he did not rally, but died at 11:30 A.M., about three and one-half hours after the operation began.

Mr. E. P. Gray was a native of Missouri. At 18 he entered the book business in St. Louis with E. K. Woodward, on Fourth St., and two years later he began business for himself. Subsequently he became head of the house known as the Gray & Baker Book and Stationery Company, which was the largest of its kind in the city for many years. Mr. Gray has always been a prominent Odd Fellow, and was also well known as a member of the board which had charge of the Cote Brillante and Elleardsville schools, before their incorporation as a part of the St. Louis public school system. Mr. Gray leaves a widow and four children of adult age.

DANIEL BIXBY, one of the pioneer publishers, died at Richfield Springs, N. Y., from angina pectoris, aged seventy-six years. He was born in Lowell, Mass., where at an early age he entered the publishing business of D. Bixby & Co. He issued the first American edition of Goethe's poems and other standard works. He afterwards came to New York City and took the City Hotel on Broadway opposite the City Hall, which soon became known as Bixby's Hotel. He ran it for a number of years, and then went into the wholesale liquor business with P. W. Engs & Co., where he remained until the dissolution of the firm. About this time he bought himself an annuity, on which he afterward lived. His genial nature and social habits led him to make the acquaintance of all the prominent actors and authors of the day. He was on intimate terms with Wilkie Collins, Charles Dickens, Irving, Burnett, Longfellow, and others. For many years he was on the most intimate terms with the poet Halleck.

WE regret to note that the wife of Mr. Charles Cunningham (with C. T. Dillingham) died after a long and painful illness. She was buried at Passaic, N. J., August 2. A number of the trade were present at the funeral.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MESSRS. MENZIES & Co., of Edinburgh, announce "Annals of the Edinburgh Stage," by Mr. James C. Dibdin.

PROBABLY the largest advance order ever given for a new novel has just been received by G. W. Dillingham. It is a single order from one concern for 10,000 copies of "The Hidden Hand," the New York Ledger story by Mrs. Southworth.

Not long ago Loring, the periodical and circulating library man on Bromfield St., Boston, advertised for a boy "with a loud voice" to sell papers. The boy has been engaged. He may be heard from the head of Franklin St. He's worse than a steam-calliope.—Boston Record.

THE welcome announcement is made that the new State atlas of New Jersey, just completed, is to be put on sale by the sheet and in sets. The uniform price is twenty-five cents each, and this sum covers cost of transmission. Applications, with prepayment, should be made to Mr. Irving S. Upson, New Brunswick, N. J.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have made arrangements for republishing in this country a very superior class of etchings by French artists, and in connection with a London firm they are already issuing a series of artistic gift-books and booklets in monotype, illustrated by English artists of repute, under the editorship of George C. Haite.

THE force of competition must be severely felt in the publishing trade when respectable publishers are driven, unsolicited, to send specimen copies of their publications, on sale or return, to persons whose names are found in certain learned societies' lists. This, Mr. E. Walford writes to The Athenæum, has happened to him, and he wants to have "the nuisance suppressed."
—London Literary World.

A SERIES of volumes on "The Fauna of British India" is to be issued, under authority from the Government, by Messrs. Taylor & Francis, London. For the present the work will be restricted to vertebrate animals, one volume being devoted to mammals, three to birds, one to reptiles and batrachians, and two to fishes. Mr. W. T. Blanford, the editor of the series, will undertake the volume on mammals, Mr. G. A. Boulenger that on reptiles, and Mr. F. Day those on fishes.

KARL KRON, author and publisher of "Ten Thousand Years on a Bicycle," will insert an advertisement of forty-eight pages in the TRADE LIST ANNUAL this year, devoted entirely to this one book, giving extracts from various parts, quotations from notices received, etc., etc. It is without doubt the longest advertisement of a single book that is until now on record. The book is a gazetteer, a dictionary, an encyclopædia, a statistical guide, a thesaurus of facts, a book of American roads for 'cyclists. The Nation pronounced it "a rattling affair, the animal spirits of the writer bubbling well into the pages." A biography of Thomas Stevens is incorporated in its pages.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address, in each issue. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Eclectic Shorthand Dictionary.

By Prof. J. G. CROSS, M.A. 1 vol., 8vo. Sent postpaid for $3.50.

From Prof. M. B. Wicks, Philadelphia, after an examination of proof-sheets.—"It will be particularly beneficial to beginners, on account of the phonic spelling given."

H. G. Strife, Court and General Reporter, Kansas City, Mo.—"I have carefully examined the proof-sheets of the new dictionary sent me, and I must say, first, that in typographical and stenographical appearance it is like all your work—par excellence. But this is not all: the work in itself is complete and of such paramount importance to every writer, young or old, of the Eclectic system, as to be almost absolutely indispensable."

By its use (and this is the only shorthand dictionary that can be used in this manner) a writer can refer to the initial character written and secure valuable aid in transcribing a bothersome word.

The idea of printing the position letter in italic is a happy one, and relieves the work of numerous ungainly and cumbersome figures.

PARIS EXHIBITION, 1889

MR. EM. TERQUEM, late representative of the American Publishers in the Paris Exposition, 1878, begs to inform the trade that it is his intention to represent the American Publishers at the coming Paris Universal Exposition, on the same principles as at the last one. He has already received some applications from publishers, and he hopes to obtain the same success in 1889 that he did in 1878.

MR. EM. TERQUEM will be in New York in September next, and will remain for some time in the U. S. especially for that purpose.

The very convenient offices in the centre of the American quarter Mr. Em. Terquem has now in Paris, which will be enlarged during 1889, will enable publishers who desire to visit Paris next year to find offices for their private business use.

Protection vs. Free Trade.

THE SCIENTIFIC VALIDITY AND ECONOMIC OPERATION OF DEFENSIVE DUTIES
IN THE UNITED STATES. By HENRY M. HOYT. 12mo, cloth, $2.00.

Cheap Edition, Paper Cover, Just Ready. Price, 50 Cents.

The author of this work is well known as formerly Governor of Pennsylvania. He appears in this volume as a defender of protection, discussing the subject in a judicial spirit, with great fulness, quoting copiously from eminent free-trade writers, in order that the reader may have both sides of the question before him. It is probably the fullest statement of the protection argument that has been made.

The Elements of Political Economy.

WITH SOME APPLICATIONS TO QUESTIONS OF THE DAY. By J. LAURENCE LAUGHLIN, Assistant Professor of Political Economy in Harvard University. With Charts. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

This work, although primarily intended for schools, gives so clear and compact a statement of the principles of political economy that it is eminently suitable for all persons taking up the study of the science.

Mill's Principles of Political Economy:

ABRIDGED, WITH CRITICAL, BIBLIOGRAPHICAL, AND EXPLANATORY NOTES, AND A SKETCH OF THE HISTORY OF POLITICAL ECONOMY. By J. LAURENCE LAUGHLIN, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Political Economy in Harvard University. With Twenty-four Maps and Charts. A Text-Book for Colleges. 8vo, 658 pages, cloth, $3.50.

"An experience of five years with Mr. Mill's treatise in the class-room convinced me, not only of the great usefulness of what still remains one of the most lucid and systematic books yet published which cover the whole range of the study, but I have also been convinced of the need of such additions as should give the results of later thinking, without militating against the general tenor of Mr. Mill's system; of such illustrations as should fit it better for American students, by turning their attention to the application of principles in the facts around us; of a bibliography which should make it easier to get at the writers of other schools who offer opposing views on controverted questions; and of some attempts to lighten those parts of his work in which Mr. Mill frightened away the reader by an appearance of too great abstractness, and to render them, if possible, more easy of comprehension to the student who first approaches Political Economy through this author."—From Preface.

PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL

For 1888 (Sixteenth Year).

Large 8vo, about 3000 pages. With Duplex Index.

The Trade-List Annual for 1888 will contain :

1. The latest CATALOGUES OF AMERICAN PUBLISHERS, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm-names.
2. A complete list by author, title, and subject of all books recorded in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY from July, 1887, to June, 1888.
3. The "EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE" for 1888, which is used by the entire trade and educational interests as the most representative reference-list of School-books.

The above Lists, all bound in one volume, present in their combination so convenient and time-saving a working-tool as to make it indispensable to every one who has any interest in the purchase or sale of books.

The patent "DUPLEX INDEX" having given such general satisfaction, we have decided to apply it in the future to all copies of the "Annual." Volumes supplied with the "DUPLEX INDEX" have the alphabet printed on the concave surface as well as on the margin of the page, which enables instantaneous reference, whether the book is open or shut.

The price of the book before publication will be ONE DOLLAR AND A HALF net, including the index. Delayed or unpaid subscriptions are not entitled to the subscription price ($1.50), but will be charged at $2.00.

⚡ Unless special shipping directions are received, copies ready for delivery will be despatched by express unpaid. Parties so desiring can have their copies sent by mail, or by prepaid book-rate express for 80 cents per copy extra.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish shortly an anonymous little book, "The Record of a Human Soul," which describes the struggle of a skeptic who ardently but unavailingly desired to believe, from the coming of the doubt until the hour when the doubter at last saw a light in heaven. It is said to be introspective and subtle, but not morbid.

CUPPLES & HURD publish a campaign book entitled "The President and his Cabinet, indicating the progress of the Government of the United States under the administration of Grover Cleveland," by C. B. Norton. It is illustrated with portraits and views. They have in press a volume on "Typical New England Elms and Other Trees." The plates are photogravure reproductions of photographs, and there will be an introduction and notes by L. L. Dame.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready Walter Besant's "Fifty Years Ago." This is an illustrated account of English life, customs, and manners half a century ago, when Queen Victoria ascended her throne. The fact that Mr. Besant's name is attached to the volume is a guarantee of good style, and the subject will be found to be a source of much interesting and novel information. The change in manners and fashions since 1837 is greater than most people imagine. This volume is profusely illustrated. "The Land Beyond the Forest," announced last week, has been unavoidably delayed, but will be ready shortly.

BRENTANO's have just ready "Confessions of a Young Man," by George Moore, which is said to be one of the most striking and original productions of recent times. They will issue at once the first two volumes of their Romantic Library, the first of which contains "Jettatura," by Theophile Gautier, "A Noble Sacrifice," by Paul Féval, and "The Black Pearl," by Victorien Sardou, and the second includes "The Inditement" and "The Mass of an Atheist," by Honoré de Balzac, and "Militona," by Gautier. The collection in the first volume was translated by a littérateur who hides his identity under the initials "M. de L." The stories in the second volume were translated by Benjamin Lewis. They have also just ready the second volume of the Bankside Shakespeare, containing "The Taming of the Shrew."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS publish this week "The Story of Media, Babylon, and Persia," including a study of the Zend-avesta or religion of Zoroaster from the fall of Nineveh to the Persian war (continued from "The Story of Assyria"), by Zénalde A. Ragozin, in their Story of the Nations series, illustrated with maps and wood-cuts; "A Sketch of the Germanic Constitution," from early times to the dissolution of the Empire, by Samuel Epes Turner; "The Centennial of a Revolution," an address apropos of the Centennial of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States, celebrated September 17, 1887, by W. H. Farrington, who writes under the pseudonym of "A Revolutionist," "Undine and Siamtram," by de la Motte Fouqué, in their exquisite Knickerbocker Nuggets series, with illustrations by Heywood Sumner; and a volume of poetry by Daniel Chauncy Brewer, entitled "Madelaine, a poem in fragments."

ROBERTS BROS. will publish on the 25th inst. "The Story of an African Farm," a novel by Ralph Iron (Olive Schreiner), a work of undeniable power, vivid, intense, and original. The author is a young lady hardly out of her teens, and relates her own experiences. The work will be the initiatory volume of their new Handy Library, which will be bound in cloth, size 6½ x 4½ inches, and will include new works, mainly of fiction, with selections from the best literature of the day and age. At the same time they will issue "Harvard Vespers," a volume of addresses to Harvard students, by Francis G. Peabody, Phillips Brooks, Edward Everett Hale, Alexander McKenzie, George A. Gordon, and Andrew P. Peabody, delivered during 1886, '87, and '88; "The Happy Prince, and other tales," by Oscar Wilde, illustrated by Walter Crane and Jacobus Hood; and "Vittoria" and "Evan Harrington," two more volumes of the popular edition of George Meredith's works.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Mr. Adams, the editor of the Photographic Times, has carefully edited, revised, and enlarged the comprehensive series of practical lessons issued to the students of the Chautauqua School of Photography, and has added an appendix on the nature and use of the various chemicals and substances employed in photographic practice, prepared by Prof. Ehrmann, instructor of the C. S. P., and an experienced photographer himself. A useful work of reference to the professional, and an invaluable guide to the amateur.

*Aguirre, J. M. Uncle Sam in pontifical robes. John Bull destitute of attire: an open letter to James G. Blaine. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1888. c. 240 p. D. pap., 50 c.

*Amory, T: C. Siege of Newport: a poem. Cambridge, Mass., J: Wilson & Son, 1888. c. D. cl., net, $1.

Barnett, M. J. Justice a healing power. Bost., H. H. Carter & Harrick, 3 Beacon St., 1888. c. 27 p. S. leatherette, 25 c.

The author reasons that the year 1888 should be a specially happy and improving one, because: the figure 8 represents unity, and "the three eights, being composed of a repetition of four, which is the square representing justice, give us three double squares, or justice doubly expressed three times." It is then shown in detail that misers, monopolists, cheats, etc., all suffer in physical health, and that the moment they mend their ways they grow healthy and robust.

Batchelor, J: M. A strange conflict. N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie, 1888. c. 299 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Scene laid in London and Paris. The "strange conflict" is waged between the executor of a large estate who has used trust-funds to further the purposes of an anarchistic order of which he is leader, and one of the members of the testator's family, a being who has solved the problem of existing without food and drink, is impervious to wounds, and appears in dungeons, at feasts, etc., etc. A decidedly interesting tale on the Munchausen plan.

*Bernard, Rev. H: Norris. The mental characteristics of the Lord Jesus Christ. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. 12+314 p. cl., $1.50.

*Bierbower, Austin. The virtues and their reasons: a system of ethics for society and schools. Chic., G: Sherwood & Co., 1888. 294 p. S. cl., $1.35.

*Olews, H: Twenty-eight years in Wall Street. N. Y., Irving Pub. Co., 15 Broad St., 1888. c. 700 p. il. O. cl., $3.50.

Cobb, Sylvanus, jr. Karmel the scout; or, the rebel of the Jerseys: a story of the American revolution. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] c. 285 p. S. (Sunshine ser., v. 1, no. 14.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Readers of the New York Ledger in the days when its success was at its zenith know the peculiar interest of the author's manner and matter. Truth and fiction are almost equally called upon. Characters in King George's army and the Continental heroes are equally interesting. Gives an instructive picture of that day.

Comins, Lizbeth B. What the bird said to Bertha. Bost., L. Prang & Co., 1888. c. 20 p. il. obl. T. pap., 60 c.

On a very hot July day Bertha felt very cross and mamma seemed to want her to do a great deal. She rushed out into the woods, and there heard a little bird's song that made her think perhaps the trouble was her fault, and not mamma's; and she went home much cooler in body and mind. This pretty thought is charmingly worded and more charmingly illustrated and printed.

*Commercial law, with forms of ordinary legal and business documents, and copious questions with references. Designed for use in schools. Rochester, N. Y., Williams & Rogers, 1888. c. '87. 312 p. O. cl., $2.

*Davidson, Ja. Wood. The poetry of the future. N. Y., J. B. Alden, 1888. 182 p. S. cl., 60 c.

Drayton, H. S. The servant question; hints on choosing and management of servants. N. Y., Fowler & Wells Co., [1888.] 23 p. il. S. pap., 10 c.

The author claims the bulk of the troubles of the servant question could be avoided by a reliable knowledge of character as shown in personal appearance. Gives ten pictures of faces suitable for cooks, chambermaids, nurses, laundresses, maids, etc., and also of some to be avoided.

*Edwards, Mrs. Annie. Philip Earnscliffe. New issue. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1888. 173 p. O. pap., 50 c. Formerly published by Sheldon & Co.

Emra, J. N. The centre of the central sea—Malta, Sicily. N. Y., J. N. Emra, 53 Lafayette Place, [1888.] 6+63 p. S. pap., 25 c.

An interesting, because unconventional description of Malta, Gibraltar, Sicily, Etna, and their surroundings. Written by a late lieutenant of the Royal [English] Marines.

*Fox, G: H:; M.D. Photographic illustrations of skin diseases: an atlas and text-book combined. 2d ser. In 12 pts. Pt. 1-4. N. Y., E. B. Treat, 1888. Each part contains 4 col. pl. Q. pap., $24, (for complete work.)

Fradenburgh, Rev. J. N. Living religions; or, the great religions of the Orient, from sacred books and modern customs. N. Y., Phillips & Hunt, 1888. c. 4+508 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

Gives the lives of Buddha, Lao-tse, Confucius, Brahma, Zoroaster, and Mahommed, and a brief résumé of the different systems of religion which they founded. The system of caste is made clear. Certain dogmas are compared with Christian doctrine, their differences and similarities noted. Index. The author is a member of the American Oriental Society, of the Society of Biblical Archaeology of London, etc.

Franklin, Benjamin: his life, written by himself;

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

- ed. for school use, with notes and a continuation of his life, by D. H. Montgomery. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. c. 8+311 p. il. D. (Classics for children.) bds., 50 c.
- Galloupe, Francis E. Index to engineering periodicals 1883 to 1887 inclusive, comprising engineering, railroads, science, manufacture, and trade. Bost., F. E. Galloupe, 30 Kilby St.; N. Y., Engineering News Pub. Co., 1888. c. 6+294 p. D. cl., $2.
About ten thousand references by subject to the more important articles relating to engineering contained in leading periodicals during the last five years, 1883 to 1887 inclusive. The periodicals included in the index are Engineering News, Iron Age, Mechanics, American Engineer, Sanitary Engineer, Eng. and Building Record, Railroad Gazette, Van Nostrand's Railroad and Eng. Journal, Journal of Franklin Institute, Street Railway Gazette, Electrician, Electrical Review, Electrical World, Scientific American Sup., The Locomotive Society of Arts Proceedings, Engineering (London); The Engineer (London).
- Garrison, Rev. S. Olin, ed. Forty witnesses covering the whole range of Christian experience. introd. by Bishop C. D. Foss. N. Y., Phillips & Hunt, 1888. c. 309 p. D. cl., $1.
The forty witnesses are Baptists, Episcopians, Methodists, Congregationalists, and Quakers. One little girl is allowed to testify. The remaining witnesses are all over fifty, some have reached eighty years of age. The book is intended as an apostolic "experience meeting" on paper. Among those who have answered the six paragraphs of questions prepared are D. L. Moody and Frances R. Havergal.
- Gibbon, C. Beyond compare. Chic., T. S. Denison, 163 Randolph St. [1888.] 253 p. D. (Denison's ser., v. 1, no. 4.) pap., 50 c.
The faithfulness of the heroine to the hero through much tribulation is "beyond compare." A forged will, an ambitious mother, a dutiful son, his noble love for a strong, good girl, the weak villain and the strong villain, the strange revelations of circumstantial evidence, and the gradual clearing up of a most complicated plot, make a good story, told with much spirit. A pretty fishing village of old England makes a most artistic background.
- Goode, G. Brown. Virginia cousins: a study of the ancestry and posterity of J. Goode, of Whitby, a Virginia colonist of the 17th century, with notes upon related families, a key to Southern genealogy, and a history of the English surname Gode, Goad, Goode, or Good, from 1148 to 1887; with preface by R. A. Brock. Richmond, Va., J. W. Randolph & English, 1888. 562 p. 52 pors. Q. cl., subs., $7. (Only 350 copies printed.)
- Guilloù, Alfred. House renting and room renting, with a chapter on hotels and boarding-houses. Phil., R. Welsh & Co., 1888. c. 57, 160 p. D. shp., $1.50; leatherette, $1.
- Haggard, H. Rider. Maiwa's revenge; [also,] A dead man's face, by Hugh Conway. N. Y., J. W. Lovell Co., [1888.] 130; 80 p. S. (Lovell's lib., no. 1200.) pap., 20 c.
- Harlow, Lizzie K. Christmas mince pie, with Shakespearean spice. Bost., L. Prang & Co., 1888. c. 24 p. il. pap., 50 c.
Ingenuously selected quotations from "Taming of the shrew," "Tempest," "Winter's tale," and "Twelfth night," with monotyp illustrations, gotten up to resemble a slice of mince pie. The three-cornered leaflets are held together by floss silk.
- Harlow, Louis K. The home of Shakespeare, with water-color sketches. Bost., L. Prang & Co., 1888. c. no paging, obl. O. cl., $3.
Dedicated to all lovers of Shakespeare in England and America, and to George W. Childs, donor of the fountain at Stratford-on-Avon. The effects of water-colors are accurately reproduced by the admirable printing. Gives views of the Shakespeare house after the restoration, the grammar school, West Gate, Warwick, Guy's Mill, Warwick Castle, West Tower, Kenilworth Castle, the old bridge, Ann Hathaway's cottage, the avenue, Holy Trinity Church, etc. Quotations from various plays appear in some of the pictures in green tinted squares.
- Harrison, Rev. T. Three hundred testimonies in favor of religion and the Bible, by distinguished men and women. Cin., Robert Clarke & Co., 1888. c. 14+488 p. D. cl., $2.
- Hazen, W. R. Justices' guide, and forms of docket entries. Topeka, The G. W. Crane Pub. Co., 1888. c. 28 p. O. pap., 25 c.
- Heidelberg, Daniel W. A digest of Mississippi reports, from v. 45 to 64 incl., [Apr. term, 1871-Apr. term, 1887.] Alb., Weed, Parsons & Co., 1888. c. 2+743 p. O. shp., $10.
- Holding, Carlisle B. "Cash;" or, number 19: a story of real life. N. Y., Phillips & Hunt, 1888. c. 238 p. D. cl., 90 c.
Charlie Strong's father dies and leaves him a boy of eleven with his mother, who is forced to work for daily bread after a life of comparative ease. Charlie was started as "Cash" in a store, and met with many ups and downs. By good work and patience he fought his way to a good position. The writer says only the names are fictitious, the circumstances are real.
- Lewis, Dio. The Dio Lewis treasury: a guide to health and happiness. N. Y., The Canfield Pub. Co., 19 Park Place, 1888. c. 844 p. O. cl., subs., $3.75.

Wash., D. C., The Law Reporter print, 1888. 56+701 p. O. shp., $10.
- McLean, J. S. Machine company suits and collections. By an "Atorney for the Company." Canton, O., [anon.] Canton, R. A. Cassidy, printer, 1888. c. 103 p. D. flex. cl., $2.
- Maryland. Laws made and passed at a session of the General Assembly, Jan.-April, 1888. Pub. by authority. Annapolis, Ja. Young, St. Pr., 1888. no. c. 1112 p. O. shp., $5.
- Matthews, W. H., and Conway, W. O. A digest of the decisions of the Department of the Interior and the General Land Office in cases relating to the public lands, July, 1881-

- Dec., 1887. Wash., D. C., [W: B. Matthews, 621 7th St.] 1888. c. 24+479 p. O. shp., $6.
- New York, Illustrated: the metropolis of to-day. N. Y., International Pub. Co., 102 Chambers St., [1888.] 256 p. il. Q. pap., 50 c.
The bulk of the book is made up of advertisements in the shape of reading-matter. About seventy pages are devoted to a brief but well-written sketch of New York City, its origin, growth, and institutions. Ample illustrated and indexed.
- New York. The penal code, in force Dec. 1, 1882, as amended by laws of 1882-1888; with notes. 8th rev. ed. N. Y. and Alb., Banks & Bros., 1888. c. 29+355 p. D. cl., $1.50.
- New York. State Legislature. The legislative record of the State of New York, containing bills introduced and their references, motions, communications, messages, concurrent resolutions and their disposition; the division upon each question on roll-call, being a complete record of all the proceedings of the Senate and Assembly session of 1888, (excepting debates and the proceedings in executive session.) Albany, N. Y., James B. Lyon, 1888. 1150 p. Q. hf. mor., $10.
- Old stories in new attire, with costume pictures by Mrs. Rose Mueller Sprague. Bost., L. Prang & Co., 1888. c. no paging, O. pap., $2.
Red Riding Hood, Little Bo-Peep, Little Jack Horner, Old Mother Hubbard, Cinderella, Tom, the piper's son, Little Boy Blue, and Little Miss Muffet look very fresh and pleasing in their new attire, and seem quite at home in their decidedly new Kensington art cover, with embossed gilt title.
- Ossian. Poems, tr. by Ja. McPherson; with introd., historical and critical, by G: Eyre Todd. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1888. 298 p. S. cl., 40 c.
- Packard, A. S. Entomology for beginners; for the use of young folks, fruit-growers, farmers, and gardeners. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1888. c. 16+367 p. il. D. cl., $1.40.
The book is dedicated to John L. Le Conte, M D., the leading entomologist of America. The author has aimed to make it useful to different classes of readers. Besides treating of the elements of the science and the means of ascertaining to what order and family insects belong, the reader is referred to descriptive works and reports, while chapter 5 gives the fundamental principles of economic entomology, with brief accounts of the more injurious insects, and the natural and artificial means of checking their attacks. It is hoped the copious glossary will make the book useful to agricultural editors, and useful as a text-book in agricultural schools and colleges.
- Pierson, Leslie C. Directory of the bar of New Jersey. 4th ed. Trenton, N. J., MacCrellish & Quigley, 1888. c. '78. 42 p. O. shp., $2; pap., $1.50.

- Roe, E: Reynolds. God reigns: lay sermons. Chic., Laird & Lee, [1888.] c. 187 p. S. cl., 50 c.
An argument against such evolutionists as deny everything but matter and its changes. The author holds that the theory of evolution must prove a God. The work is not controversial. Physical and biological science are urged in favor of the main proposition: "God reigns within and throughout the universe."
- Savage, Minot J., and others. Show us the father. Chic., C: H. Kerr & Co., 1888. 170 p. S. cl., $1.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

ANDERSON & KRUM STATIONERY CO., 667 Broadway, N. Y., have issued a handsome "Catalogue of Stationery and Stationery Supplies," printed on fine paper and liberally illustrated. (256 p., 12°.)

THE BURROWS BROS. CO., Cleveland, O., have issued their "Wholesale Price-List of School and College Text-Books, with Telegraphic Cipher" for 1888 (96 p., 16°).

E. L. KELLOGG & CO., 3 Clinton Place, N. Y., have published two neat catalogues of educational works, the one entitled "Helps for the Teacher" (66 p. 16°), the other "A Descriptive List of Books for Teachers" (30 p., 16°).

GOOD WORDS FOR THE T. L. A.

MEMPHIS, TENN., July 12, 1888.

GENTS: I find the Annual valuable. Several times publishers whose lists I failed to find in it lost an order, as I would find books wanted in other lists or could substitute.

R. M. MANSFORD.

AUCTION SALES.

[We shall be pleased to insert under this heading, without charge, advance notices of auction sales to be held anywhere in the United States. Word must reach us before Wednesday evening, to be in time for issue of same week.]

AUGUST 20 TO 24, 10 A.M. and 2:30 P.M.—A library of books and pamphlets, works on numismatics, archæology, genealogy, local history, etc., together with a large collection of criminal trials, catalogues of auction sales of coins, bric-a-brac, curios, stamps, and other articles of personal property, including almost all the privately printed books of the country, printing clubs, etc.—Bangs.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 18, 1888.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

A HINT TO BOOKSELLERS.

THERE has been not a little lamentation of late years that the bookseller has no longer the literary intelligence that used in old times to be a characteristic of his profession. Possibly this is in some measure true: with the reduction of the profits in the business, that scramble to make a bare living which has necessitated the introduction into book-stores of all sorts of knick-knacks has diverted from the proper study of their calling many intelligent booksellers, who would gladly devote more time to the study of the books which they handle.

But we submit that even under these circumstances the bookseller has need to be as well versed as possible in all information which the bookbuyer may desire. This is the very means, perhaps, for him to hold his trade against the competition of the undersellers who know nothing about their goods except "a dollar book at ninety cents." There are a good many buyers, to say the least, who would scarcely feel honest in saving a dime at the underseller's shop, or a quarter by writing to the book centres at nearly a quarter's worth of trouble, if the bookseller has put them under obligations by his readiness and courtesy in furnishing information they have previously desired. In fact, it is not only to actual purchasers of a book that the bookseller should be glad to furnish information; he should be eager to welcome new faces and to give them all the information he can, even at no immediate pecuniary return. By and by, when better times, perhaps, come to them, these very people may prove his best customers.

BOOKS ON THE INSTALMENT PLAN.

New York Correspondent to St. Paul Pioneer Press.

WHAT a lot of great enterprises there are in a vast centre like New York, of which nobody suspects the existence. I had a fresh illustration of the fact the other day. A business appointment called me away over on the east side of the city, into the thick of the great tenement-house centre that lies below Tompkins Square, and with which not one person in five hundred, living in other parts of the town, is at all familiar. I was sailing along a thoroughfare called Attorney Street, lost in amazement at the tremendous swarm of children in which the neighborhood abounds, when I was struck with the appearance of an immense business block right in among the tenements. It was a lofty affair, and it covered several city lots. On its face was painted in large letters the name of a publisher. I had not heard of the name, and it seemed to me to be peculiar that a man doing such an obviously extensive publishing business should be unknown to a professional writer.

I investigated, and the investigation unearthed a great scheme. This house sells standard books on the instalment plan, and the extent of the business paralyzed me. There are no less than 3,000,000 of people on the books of the concern, who are now paying or have paid for standard works at the rate of a few cents a week. Recently I learned by inquiry the conductor of this scheme was impressed with the idea of starting a weekly paper devoted to fiction and current literature. He sent free the publication for a month to nearly all the people on his list. Then he sent his agents around to see how many subscriptions they could get at 25 cents a month, and he found himself, in the course of a fortnight or so, in possession of a paper with a solid circulation of 200,000 copies. Just think of a project of these dimensions going on for years in the middle of a city and nobody knowing about it. That is to say; comparatively nobody. It goes to show what a mighty cloak is furnished by the rush, rumble, and roar of the busy throng.

DISTRIBUTION OF BOOKS.

IT is one of the most interesting questions imaginable, that of the distribution of books; it is, in fact, only to be equalled in point of interest by the questions of how books were made, and how they are now made. The arrangement of the book, externally and internally, has undergone many and striking modifications in the materials of which we have before spoken—a subject fruitful in research and the arrangement of those materials. The old Image Books or Block Books are very different from the productions of to-day. The diffusion of books interests not only the literary historian, but every reading member of the human family. The trade in books is, as we well know, of very ancient date, though their scarcity before the invention of printing is illustrated by the conditions attached to purchase or loan. Books were distributed in many ways. The great libraries, especially those of the East, were vast reservoirs open to students under certain conditions, but they were not distributors; in one sense they were similar to the monumental heaps of stones raised by the Israelites, i.e., they must be visited to prove of service.

The real distributor, the real disseminator of literature, was the publisher ; in other words, the bookseller and booksellers were very varied in character, characters or orders which will prove very interesting to look at, for it is to them that the world is indebted for so much real service. In the Book of Jeremiah, the prophet is represented as dictating to Baruch the scribe, who, when questioned, described the mode in which his book was written. Such scribes as Baruch were the earliest booksellers, and they supplied copies as demanded. In Rome, towards the end of the Republic, it became the fashion to have a library as part of the household furniture, and the booksellers, librarii, carried on a flourishing trade. Their shops (taberna librarii) were chiefly in the Argiletum and in the Vicus Sandalarius. On the door, or on the side-posts, was a list of the books on sale. In the time of Augustus the Great, booksellers were the Sosii. According to Justinian, a law was passed securing to the scribes the property in the materials used, and in this may perhaps be traced the first germ of the modern law of copyright. We will confine ourselves to the booksellers, for that term perhaps represents the true circulators of literature ; publishing, as a distinct form of business, only came into existence with the invention of printing. First, Schœffer, Gutenberg, and Caxton, men occasionally combining in themselves the functions of printer, bookseller, and author, must be regarded as the founders of the modern trade. It is not, however, our purpose to dwell long on the modern trade, for that is well known. The production of books at the present day is enormous, and their circulation all but perfect, especially if we compare it with the old methods employed. Of all the curious methods, of all the most interesting questions connected with the distribution of the book, of a surety it is the book fair of mediæval times. When means of communication were slow, difficult, and dangerous, commerce was terribly crippled. Men who had goods that were in reality treasures were very careful how they trusted themselves away from home without some sort of security. For example, consider what it must have been in Germany in the middle ages, when, though the Emperor was nominally lord over all, yet there were in the empire nearly three hundred sovereign princes, civil and ecclesiastical, of various grades ; but most of them possessed the most complete power within their own dominions, and when, as was more often the case than not, various of these petty sovereigns were at war with each other, then it must have been a task requiring not only courage, but the exercise of a considerable degree of diplomacy, to journey through those hostile regions. It may be easily imagined that those swash-bucklers of German princes would pay small regard to merchants whose sole traffic was in books ; there was one thing, however, that assisted the book merchant, and this was that the buyers of books were mostly men belonging to the ecclesiastical orders, and ever since the Bishop of Beauvais scared the robber nobles of France with his invention of excommunication, the rulers of Europe were rather fearful of interfering with anything that the Church protected—and that the Church protected the book and its distributors is most certain. Germany is mentioned first because she is regarded as the mother of the book-trade as well as of printing. In early times Frankfort was the great German metropolis of the book-trade, though since the end of the seventeenth century Leipzig has taken that position, and holds it, even surpassing London and Paris in the number and total value of its sales. There are about three hundred publishers and booksellers in the town, and about five thousand firms in other parts of Europe represented by commissioners. In the middle ages, it was not the number of books but the quality that attracted. Those splendidly illuminated books, mostly sacred, that we see in glass cases in museums, coming as they do from past centuries, were wrought by skilful and loving hands, which carefully hung over them for long periods, and when they were finished their fame preceded them to remote regions. They were indeed treasures only to be compared to a great painting by a celebrated master. When such a book was finished, lovers of books felt with Milton, "As good almost kill a man as a good book : who kills a man kills a reasonable creature—God's image ; but he who destroys a good book kills reason itself, kills the image of God, as it were, in the eye." Then how to get such a glorious work into a position where it would find a home was the question. The old German printers travelled from place to place with their wares, but as the demand for books increased a middleman was employed—the bookseller. Of course, wherever merchants congregated people would come to see their wares, and at such gatherings the bookseller was soon conspicuous, and buyers of books from long distances attended to obtain their works. At Frankfort there were two great annual fairs, the one at Easter, the other in September, and each of them lasted three weeks. To these fairs booksellers and bookbuyers flocked from many quarters of Europe. Humphreys, in his "History of the Art of Printing," says in reference to the Frankfort Fair : "The Muses assemble their book printers and booksellers at the time of the fair in this city, and bid them bring also the writers, orators, historians, and philosophers. . . . When you see them all here together you fancy yourself no longer in Germany, in the good city of Frankfort, but in that Grecian city which once was distinguished above all others for its preëminence in science and art. You may with truth call that quarter of the town in which the book printers and booksellers live the Frankfort Athens. Who, I ask, surrounded by a circle of so many and learned writers, will not believe himself to be in Athens, where once the friends of the Muses were used to flock together to listen to the words of the philosophers and other learned men ? For you must not suppose that in our Frankfort Athens only writings and not writers are to be met with. At any rate, you meet with many authors who are still alive to enjoy the renown of their works. Hence it comes that you are instructed in this literary fair concerning things about which you may seek in vain for information in all libraries. Every one learns the living word from many teachers of the most diverse universities. You hear them philosophize with one another in the booksellers' shops, just as earnestly as formerly Socrates and Plato and their disciples did in the midst of the Lyceum. But not only philosophers are sent hither by the celebrated universities of Vienna, Wittemberg, Leipzig, Heidelberg, Strasbourg, Louvain, Padua, Oxford, and Cambridge, but also poets, orators, historians, mathematicians, and also such as are versed in all these studies, and, as the Greeks say, have made the encyclopedia their study. Therefore the Italians are quite wrong when they say the Germans have their understandings in their fingers, as if they only distinguished themselves in handiwork and in the mechanical arts. Really they ought to visit the Frankfurt Fair. At the first view of the book quarter they would see that the proverb lies, and does this people great injustice.

If this Attic Fair brought no other profit than the filling of the house from top to bottom with all kinds of books, as is often the case here, and you had not even the satisfaction of hearing the discourse and conversation of so many learned men, would not that alone be of the greatest value for the friends of the Muses? Yes, for you can buy a library as rich (at least in extent) as those of Ptolemæus, Pisistratus, and other celebrated librarians of antiquity, and need not have even a princely purse—i. e., have to pay an immense sum of money for it. But while Germany brings together in that city such a collection of books for the disciples of science and the fine arts, she adds a new service to the old one. To what old service? To a service such as no other people has gained for science since salvation has come to us in Christ. For I speak of the art of book printing which Germany invented,* whose blessings she did not wish to enjoy for herself alone, but wished to share with the inhabitants of the world. With this discovery she dispelled the thick darkness of ignorance, thrust from its throne and drove into exile the ruling barbarism, and brought back from exile the Muses, and gave nourishment and a secure position to science. Is it strange that the Muses should show their favor to a land which has so well merited their approval? They themselves experience homage and honor in all things, and even this fair gives occasion thereto. For, while in other places, the Muses are excluded from the market-place, here they are not only admitted, but are received with all honor." The above graphic description may be taken as a fair portrait of other fairs in other towns of Germany such as Nuremberg and Leipzig, though in course of time radical changes occurred, changes which revolutionized the whole of the book-trade. Paris, too, possessed her central book marts which were worthy of all attention, and in England, too, our book fairs were by no means of an inferior degree. Prof. Rogers, in "History of Agriculture and Prices," says: "In the latter part of the period before me (1401 to 1582) the fair of the north hundred of Oxford, held at the beginning of September, though it never approached the dimensions of Stourbridge, was a famous place for the sale of books." And, "New works were virtually published at fairs, and it is in this way, I think, that we can account for the publication and distribution of that mass of literature which, issued after the period comprised in these volumes, is so remarkably copious. By what means, for instance, could the exceedingly numerous works of Prynne have been distributed? In what manner did the publisher or printer reach his customer? Advertisements were unknown, patrons and subscription lists were equally matters of the future. But books were got at and probably through these fairs, which were exceedingly numerous in the autumn months, and where, even though the book were unlicensed and considered dangerous, the dealer and the purchaser found means to know each other. I have more than once found entries of purchase for college libraries with a statement that the book was bought at St. Giles's Fair." Stourbridge Fair was the most important book fair in the kingdom, probably on account of its contiguity to Cambridge. Here came grave dons and festive students from the universities, and it must have been a very interesting sight in those days; even now, though there are no bookstalls, it is one of the noisiest fairs to be found in England. Not only had our forefathers the great book fairs, but from them arose the book-hawker, a very busy and important personage in those days; he was the forerunner of the booksellers' traveller, but if he were anything like his compère in Germany he must have been an exceedingly impudent personage. After them came the ballad-monger, small remains of whom may be found at the present day. It would have been a very great pleasure to give more complete details of our English book fairs, for the subject is well worthy of attention. Of fairs, i. e., general fairs, including book fairs, the reader may profitably consult Mr. Cornelius Walford's "Fairs Past and Present," and he will find an abundance of good reading. If Solomon had lived in these days, or could live for a short time over again, he would have solid ground for saying, "Of the making of books there is no end." He would also be able to compare the book, its birth, parentage, and subsequent adventures, with his own time, with later times, and with these times, and surely he would be as much lost in admiration as astonishment at the result.

A CRUSADE AGAINST ZOLA.

London correspondence to N. Y. Times.

A CRUSADE against Zola has been started here this week, and Vizitelly, a prominent bookseller, who sells about 1000 copies of Zola weekly, has been committed for trial for selling improper literature. The books are no doubt harmful enough, particularly as English translations in England of French novels are unabridged, and much worse than similar translations in America. There are a number of French novels, translations of which never have been sold in America, purchasable everywhere here, but the prosecution is silly, because the by-streets simply teem with windows full not only of English publications of the vilest sort, but suggestive and obscene advertisements of all kinds. These are directly in the reach of the lower classes, who are most likely to be injured by them. Vizitelly is a prominent and respectable business man. If the prosecution of him was but the beginning of a general movement against the lower class dealers it would be laudable, but no such promise is made.

OBITUARY NOTES.

J. E. HUTCHINSON, book-keeper for Brown & Gross, stationers, Hartford, Conn., while bathing at Crescent Beach, Conn., on the 11th inst., was standing on the edge of the surf, where the water was not more than a foot deep, talking with a lady, when he suddenly dropped insensible. He was carried to the pavilion. Several physicians tried to restore animation, but the unfortunate man was dead. The body was taken to Hartford.

* This was written in the last half of the sixteenth century.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE VALUE OF THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY
AS A BOOKSELLERS' ASSISTANT.

LAKE GEORGE, Aug., 1888.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

SIR: In a note from your office on another matter, you say: "Let me take this occasion to express my regret that the name of your house is no longer found on the subscription list of the WEEKLY, and that we have accordingly been obliged to withdraw clerks' rates from the employees of your house," etc.

There has been "a boggle" somewhere, and without going into the matter further, I want to say that we cannot keep house without the WEEKLY! As we have always made it a point to have a copy for our young men, specially addressed to one of them, and for which we have paid, I did not know that we had been dropped as a firm. Please put us down at once for a copy. Another clerk, who has been taking it for some years, withdrew, without my knowledge when you dropped the clerks' rates. This I did not know until now.

I have made this personal matter public only because I want to bear testimony to the value of the WEEKLY, and also to express the fear that it does not receive the trade support it ought. The work it has done for the trade, and the general public, through the public libraries, cannot be estimated. I know well enough that work for the public good brings small pecuniary returns, as a rule, and the wonder often is that so many persons are willing to keep at such work. How few of those who daily consult the American Catalogue stop to consider what it cost, and that those who did the work upon it barely got the wages of a day-laborer. But this is the old, old story of all educators.

But I wanted only to put myself on record, and to express the hope that in the coming better days of the trade—the days when the business of bookselling will stand on a higher plane than now, and for which you so long and in so many ways have been laboring—that the WEEKLY may have a support that will enable you to make it all that you desire, as an organ of the American publishing and bookselling trade. A. D. F. R.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE American Stationer for August 9 is a superb issue devoted to fall and holiday announcements.

GEN. SHERIDAN's article entitled "From Gravelotte to Sedan," to appear in the November number of Scribner's Magazine, is the first and only contribution ever made by Gen. Sheridan to a periodical, and covers a part of his career which it was impossible for any other pen than his own to record.

Das Centralblatt für Bibliothekswesen for July contains a remarkable article by J. Gildemeister, of Bonn, on the "Oriental Literature of the Discovery of America," containing some curious particulars, taken from a Mohammedan work, of the voyage of an Indian ship, which, after driving about in the ocean for eight months, was cast on to the shore of the New World.

For the first time in its history The Century will devote a single issue—the forthcoming September number—largely to educational themes.

The contributions will include "The University and the Bible," by T. T. Munger, a plea for the study of Christian as well as heathen classics; "Women Who Go to College," by Arthur Gilman; and "The Industrial Idea in Education," by Charles M. Carter. One illustrated paper is on "College Fraternities," with pictures of twenty-eight chapter-houses and society halls at Yale, Harvard, Princeton, and other colleges, and another is on "Uppingham: an ancient school worked on Modern Ideas," with a number of illustrations by Joseph Pennell, and a portrait of the late head-master, Edward Thring, who is said to be, since Arnold of Rugby, the most highly esteemed educator of England. There will also be several important short editorial articles and "open letters" on different branches of the same subject. Other distinctive features of the magazine, the Lincoln history, Siberian papers, fiction, etc., will, however, be retained.

BUSINESS NOTES.

NEW YORK.—At a meeting of the creditors of Thomas R. Knox & Co., held on the 14th inst., a proposition was made to settle at 25 cents on the dollar,  $12\frac{1}{2}\%$  to be paid within six months and the rest at the end of twelve. This was looked upon favorably by the creditors present at the meeting. In the meantime the assignee, Mr. Chas. L. Chase, will continue the business, employing Messrs. T. R. and D. S. Knox to assist him in carrying it on.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Butler, White & Butler, educational publishers, until recently at 925 Chestnut Street, have consolidated with Taintor Brothers, of New York, of which they will form the "Co.," the firm-name being Taintor Brothers & Co. The Philadelphia firm was composed of Jonathan H. Butler, Selim S. White, and Arthur G. Butler. Mr. White resided in Boston and managed the branch house there.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—We are glad to be able to make a correction as to the state of Messrs. John W. Roberts & Co.'s settlement with their Eastern creditors. It appears that they are to pay 25% cash:  $12\frac{1}{2}\%$  in six months from May 1, 1888; and  $12\frac{1}{2}\%$  in twelve months from May 1, 1888. This makes 50% in all, to be paid in one year from 1st of May this year instead of five years, as was reported.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

H. D. CHAPIN, Chicago, has put on the market a neat Harrison badge. It is a silk ribbon  $2\frac{1}{4}$  by  $5\frac{1}{4}$  inches on which is neatly printed in black a fasces, spread eagle, and the legend "Our country's hope," surrounded by an aureole, underneath which is a portrait of the Republican candidate for the Presidency with the legend of "Harrison and Reform." At the bottom is a log-cabin, on the door of which is a placard "To let." The advantage this badge has over similar ones is the T-shaped pin by which the badge is at once fastened to the coat or vest and kept in proper position.

HARRIS, JONES & Co., Providence, R. I., have just published the third quarter for 1888 of their excellent aid in Sunday-school work, entitled "Bible Lesson Pictures." It is a series of illustrations, 26 x 36 inches, serving to make Scripture vivid and real. The pictures are well drawn, with not too many distinct features to bewilder the gaze, with the outlines clear and distinct, so that for fifty feet or more the details can be readily seen, with brilliant and yet not gaudy coloring. The price is $1.25.

MR. G. P. LATHROP will publish this month from the De Vinne Press a small edition, printed from type, of his "Gettysburg: a battle ode," in a pamphlet with wide-margined pages, an illustration, and a tasteful cover. The poem was read at the reunion of the Army of the Potomac at Gettysburg, July 3, but will now appear for the first time complete in print. It will bear the imprint of and be for sale by Charles Scribner's Sons, but the author asks that orders be sent directly to him at New London, Conn.

IN calling attention last week to the enterprise of Mr. Karl Kron, who inserts a forty-eight-page advertisement of a single book in the "Trade List Annual" this year, we were so taken up with the fact, that in reading proof we overlooked that the printer had rechristened Mr. Kron's well-known book and entitled it "Ten Thousand Years on the Bicycle." We apologize to Mr. Kron, but condone the error. The printer probably thought so large an advertisement must be justified by vastness of subject, and thought one hundred centuries of bicycle riding was about the quantity required.

THE next volume in the Badminton Library, to be published in the autumn by Little, Brown & Co., will be "Driving," written in the main by the editor of the series, the Duke of Beaufort, the President of both the Four-in-Hand and the Coaching Clubs. There will also be contributions by Lord Algernon St. Maur, Mr. A. E. T. Watson (the assistant editor of the series), Colonel H. S. Bailey, Major Dixon, the Earl of Onslow, Lord Arthur Somerset, Sir Christopher Teesdale, and Lady Georgiana Curzon. The illustrations will be from drawings by Mr. J. Sturges, and Mr. G. D. Giles, and from instantaneous photographs.

JAMES J. CHAPMAN, Washington, D. C., will issue early in September McPherson's "Handbook of Politics for 1888." It will cover the proceedings of the second session of the last Congress (49th), and the first session of the present Congress (50th); and will give the final facts as to every pending public measure. It will also give the votes on the Mills tariff bill and the tariff and tax bills of 1886-7, forfeitures of land grants, interstate commerce act, the electoral count act, the anti-Mormon legislation, the Chinese question, the pension question, the fisheries question, the common school bill, the action on silver coinage and trade dollars, the Pacific Railroad indebtedness bill, civil service, labor bills, treaties made, ratified and unratified, etc., with copies of these various bills and treaties. Also, the messages, proclamations, letters, and orders of President Cleveland; statistical tables of elections, debt, appropriations, revenues and expenditures, etc., and the platforms and proceedings of the national conventions and letters of acceptance of candidates.

JULIUS SPRENGER, of Berlin, has recently published the fourth part of "Fortschritte der Elektrotechnik" (Progress of Electrotechnology), completing the first year's issue of this important aid to the electrician, which gives detailed reports of the recent improvements in applied electricity.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address, in each issue. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price.

It is desirable to receive copy in shape ready for the printer, viz.: first, headline—name and address—then, titles in separate lines (see below), all written on a separate sheet, or at the bottom of letter, or on postal card. Compliance with this request will secure accurate and prompt insertion.

BRENTANO'S NEW PUBLICATIONS.

READY SEPTEMBER 1:

CONFESSIONS OF A YOUNG MAN.

By GEORGE MOORE. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

"After a long course of ordinary literature, after the dull propriety of newspaper articles, the lumbering smartness of reviews, the pretty pretences of Poets—even the splendors of Burke and Urquhart, it was very strange to come across a writer who will never let you rest a second, and who has got so far over the traces that he can lash out in a fashion that makes the old coach horses seem very cloddish."—JOHN A'DREAMS.

"Nothing more striking or original in modern letters has appeared for years than the 'Confessions of a Young Man.'"—CLARA LANZA.

BRENTANO'S ROMANTIC LIBRARY.

NOTES IN SEASON.

VAN ANTWERP, BRAGG & Co. have just ready "Eclectic Physical Geography," containing 30 charts and 151 cuts and diagrams.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish, the first week in September, "Miss Lou," by the late E. P. Roe. It will be issued in cloth, uniform with this author's other works.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have just ready their new illustrated edition of Hugo's "Nôtre-Dame," translated by Miss Isabel F. Hapgood, printed and bound in uniform style with their edition of "Les Misérables" published last season.

G. S. FELLOWS & Co., 25 Bond St., New York, have just ready a volume entitled "Protection Echoes from the Capitol," by T. H. McKee, assistant librarian U. S. Senate. The volume will contain the salient points of the recent tariff debate, also the present tariff and Mills bill in parallel columns.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish immediately an édition de luxe of "The President's Message," printed in large type, small quarto, with sixteen full-page moral and graphic illustrations from original designs by Thomas Nast; also the Ques- tions of the Day edition of the same, with annotations by R. R. Bowker, which has been delayed for some important additional material.

CUPPLES, UPHAM & Co. will publish shortly a new book by W. H. H. (Adirondack) Murray. It will be especially adapted for the holiday trade, and will be descriptive of the Northwestern side of the American continent, a region of country little known to the average reader. The illustrations will be from sketches by Mr. J. D. Woodward, which have been carefully supervised by Mr. J. B. Millet.

FUNK & WAGNALLS have just issued in pamphlet form "The Presidential Campaign of 1896—a scrap-book of chronicle," by the author of "The Battle of Bietigheim." The scene is laid in America, where the forces of modern civilization and the communistic, anarchical, and socialistic elements of modern evolutions and revolutions meet in deadly combat. The occasion is the Presidential campaign of 1896, when the combined forces of Socialism, Anarchy, and Atheism meet their Waterloo at the hands of an aroused, living, active American Patriotism. It has in it the earnest fire of a prophecy.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish this week "A History of the United States and its People," by Edward Eggleston. This may be fairly regarded as the most important event in the recent history of educational literature. The author has been directly engaged for years in the collection of material and the work on this volume, which, although primarily intended for schools, is calculated to delight young readers out of school, and readers of all ages everywhere. It is charmingly written, and illustrated abundantly in a novel and most effective manner. They have, also, just ready in the International Scientific Series "The Origin of Floral Structures through insect and other agencies," by the Rev. George Henslow, Professor of Botany, Queen's College; and "Seven Conventions," by A. W. Classon, which refers to the Federal Convention, five of the ratifying Conventions, and the Charleston Convention of 1860, and is designed as an aid to the study of the Constitution.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

GENERAL GRANT is said to have left in manuscript a large number of humorous anecdotes drawn from his experiences in the army. These are soon to be published, probably by C. L. Webster & Co.

WM. HENRY HURLBERT has just published in Edinburgh a book entitled "Ireland Under Coercion—the diary of an American," which is reviewed by the London Times to the extent of five columns. Mr. Hurlbert concludes that landlords are good and alone deserving of sympathy, and that the Nationalist peasants are vicious, dishonest, and, as a rule, much too leniently treated.

SIR MORELL MACKENZIE is at work on his reply to the recently published attack upon him by the German physicians. His answer will be shortly published in book-form simultaneously in England and Germany. Messrs. Sampson Low, Marston & Co. will be the English publishers. A considerable portion of it will be in the nature of personal anecdote by Sir Morell Mackenzie respecting his illustrious patient the late Emperor Frederick.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.

*Abbott, Austin. New cases selected chiefly from decisions of the courts of New York. V. 20. N. Y., Diossy & Co., 1888. c. 52+540 p. O. shp., $5.

Alden, Mrs. Is. M., ["Pansy," pseud.] Judge Burnham's daughters. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 5+339 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.50.

Those who read "Ruth Erskine's crosses" will be glad to meet its principal character once more in her new character of wife and mother. Judge Burnham, Ruth's husband, was a man of wealth and high social position. He was strongly opposed to Ruth's being actively connected with religious or temperance movements, and this fact sometimes brought them dangerously near serious misunderstanding. Another source of trouble were Ruth's step-daughters, gay young things, who rebelled against her authority. Her married life hence was not a happy one—but a long siege of sorrow softens all parties and brings about a better condition of things.

Bancroft, Hubert Howe. History of the Pacific States of North America, v. 30. California inter pocula: a review of some classical abnormalities. San Francisco, The History Co., 1888. c. 6+828 p. O. cl., $4.50; leath., $5.50; hf. cf., hf. rus., or hf. mor., $8; rus., mor., or tree cf., $10.

"Much has been written of the California Inferno of 1848 and the years immediately following, much that is neither fact nor fable. Great and gaudy pictures have been painted, but few of them bear much resemblance to nature. . . . No attempt is made in these pages to outdo my predecessors in morbid intensifications of the certain phases of society and character engendered of the times. They contain simple sketches and plain descriptions, historical rather than fantastical, with no effort toward effect."—Preface. A full index is added to the volume.

Besant, Walter. Fifty years ago. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 12+268 p. il. O. cl., $2.50.

With numerous portraits and illustrations from familiar sources, and a gossip, clever text, Mr. Besant pictures the life, manners, and society of London as it was when Queen Victoria ascended the throne. The material, compiled from many sources, but put into a popular, attractive form, is grouped under the following headings: Great Britain, Ireland, and the Colonies; The year 1837; London in 1837; In the street; With the people; With the middle class; In society; At the play and the show; In the house; At school and university; The tavern; In club- and card-land; With the wits; Journals and journalists; The sportsman; In factory and mine; With the men of science; Law and justice.

Clarke, W: Harrison. Civil service law. N. Y., L. K. Strouse, 1888. c. 16+200 p. D. cl., $1.

The civil service law was passed January 16, 1883. The chief object of the book is to defend the principles of the law. It is not a criticism of the law, nor does it treat to any great extent of civil service economy, except in so far as the subject is expounded incidentally by many American statesmen, whose works are freely quoted and give value to the book. The book is dedicated to the National Civil Service Reform League.

Crane, Rev. Stephen. Jesus the Christ. Bost., Universalist Pub. House, 1888. c. 96 p. S. (Manuals of faith and duty, no. 2.) cl., net, 25 c.

These little volumes of expositions of prominent doctrines of the Universalist church offer but little space for argument. The author merely asserts his beliefs, and does not stop to argue those of others from whom he differs. He endeavors to unfold the doctrine of Christ as it appears in his life and teachings, and tries to go at once to the heart of the matter and grasp the real significance of "The Son of God" and "The Son of Man," and ascertain what he really was in his relation to both God and man. What Christ was in the world, in the life of humanity, is to him the thing of transcendent importance, and not what he was before he

"This is the first time that any attempt has been made to write a detailed biography of Congreve. . . . The story of this book is compiled from materials scattered over a great many volumes, not all of which are to be found in any single library. Among the most obvious sources of information I may mention Cibber, Giles Jacob, Malone's Dryden, Spence's Anecdotes, Swift's correspondence, George-Monck Berkeley's curious and valuable volume, Luttrell's Diary, and the newspapers of the day."—Author's prefatory note. The bibliography by J. Carter Beard. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 324 p. D. cl., $1.25.

No American naturalist of late years has written more comprehensively or entertainingly than Dr. Holder. In the present volume, prepared for young readers, he describes some of the more remarkable specimens of animal life and their peculiarities. Many of the facts he cites will be new to older readers. In a chapter devoted to the speech of animals, we are told how some of the noises made by insects are produced, undoubtedly for purposes of communication, and how birds, fishes, and animals convey intelligence one to another. In another chapter the sports and games of animals are dealt with. Other chapters are upon "Wonderful flyers," "Homes underground," "How animals protect themselves," "Giants," and "Feathered giants."

Hopkins, Selden R. A young prince of commerce: a penniless boy's fortune. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1888. c. 252 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.25.

Besides a pleasant story which all boys will enjoy, Mr. Hopkins offers a fund of information on business matters, cleverly sandwiched in between the incidents, which gives a clear understanding of the principles of trade. When the boy closes the book he knows the character of mortgages, notes, drafts, stocks, and bonds; the theory of banking, discount, exchange, and collateral; he learns all about the mysteries of Wall Street and how the brokerage business is conducted; in fine, he gets an excellent understanding of the way business is carried on in general.

*Illinois. Appellate courts. Reports of cases. V. 23, June-Nov., 1887; rep. by Edwin Burritt Smith. Chic., Callaghan & Co., 1888. c. 2+9-699 p. O. shp., $3.50.

*Jones, Leonard A. A treatise on the law of liens, common law, statutory, equitable, and maritime. Bost. and N. Y., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1888. c. 2 v., 15+727 p.; 6+725 p. O. shp., $13.

*Kansas. Supreme court. Reports of cases; A. M. F. Randolph, rep. V. 38, cont. cases decided, July term, 1887, and Jan. term, 1888. Topeka, C. C. Baker, St. Pr., 1888. c. 10+576 p. O. shp., $3.50.

King, C. A war-time wooing: a story. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. 4+195 p. il. D. cl., $1.

Based upon an incident common enough during the late war. A young girl, a member of a "Soldiers' Aid Society," places her name and address in a "Havelock" she has just made and is sending out for the soldiers' use. The result is a correspondence and an exchange of photographs, the young girl's heart becoming warmly interested in her unknown correspondent. The story is redeemed from the commonplace through the fact that a young officer's name and picture have been used in the affair by a jealous rival to weaken his influence with a woman they both love. The young girl, Bessie Warren, who has been made the victim of this plot, is almost broken-hearted when it is revealed to her. The story ends well, however, and the villain is unmasked and punished. Zogbaum illustrates the story with a number of full-page pictures of unusual merit.

La Motte Fouqué, F. H. K. (Freiherr) de. Undine: a romance; (also) Sintram and his companions; il. by Heywood Sumner. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, [1888.] 5+384 p. T. (Knickerbocker nuggets.) cl., $1.

*Lindley, Sir Nathaniel. A treatise on the law of partnership. From the 5th Eng. ed., with Am. notes by C. Y. Audenried. Phil., The Blackstone Pub. Co., 1888. c. V. 1, 371 p. O. (Text-book ser., v. 2, no. 20.) pap., sub., $1.25.

Macaulay, T. B., (Lord.) Lays of ancient Rome; ed. with notes by W. J. Rolfe and J. C. Rolfe. N. Y., Harper, 1888. c. ed. 3-199 p. il. sq. S. (English classics.) cl., 56 c.; pap., 40 c.

As presented, with Mr. Rolfe's copious notes, these well-known lays are especially adapted for that parallel reading in English which should, in the editor's opinion, accompany the study of Latin in our high schools and academies. There is an introduction, embracing the author's preface and critical comments on the lays.

Macdonald, G. The elect lady. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. 4+345 p. 1 il. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 11.) pap., 50 c.

A simple story of simple Scotch people, with a strong religious element pervading it. Two brothers, Andrew and Sandy, and a young girl, "Dawtie," by their simple faith and pure lives have a great influence on all they come in contact with. "Dawtie" is a servant in the laird's house, and discovers that he has in his possession a most valuable chalice, the work of Benvenuto Cellini, which she is clever enough to find out he has obtained from a party who knew it was stolen from a famous collection. "Dawtie" works on the laird's conscience to return the cup to the original owner, and suffers for her zeal. The laird's daughter "Alexa" is "the elect lady." Her overweening self-esteem is well illustrated by her experience.

*Manier, W. H. Law of eminent domain, and of railroads and warehouses, comprising the constitutional and statutory provisions of Illinois, together with the decisions relating thereto. Springfield, D. W. Lusk, 1888. c. 6+467 p. O. shp., $4.

Montague, C. Howard. The face of Rosenfel: a novel. N. Y., A. L. Burt, [1888.] c. 3-248 p. D. (The Manhattan ser., v. 1, no. 6.) pap., 25 c.

By the author of "Two strokes of the bell." An attempt to obtain a large fortune by the abduction of the real heiress and the substitution of an impostor is the central feature of the novel. Some interesting medical theories are aired about mental troubles and what the author calls "visualization," a good deal of sensational incident introduced, and the usual amount of love and love-making.

Morley, H. English writers: an attempt towards a history of English literature. V. 3. N. Y., Cassell & Co., 1888. 13+424 p. D. cl., $1.50. Covers the period from the Conquest to Chaucer. Many extracts. Bibliography. Index.

Payn, Ja. The eavesdropper: an unparalleled experience. N. Y., Harper, 1888. 2+119 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 626.) pap., 25 c.

Illustrates the adage that "listeners never hear any good of themselves." Among other things that Ned Browne inherits from an eccentric uncle is a blue jar full of a black paste which turns out to be fern-seed. Directions accompany it saying if one eats a portion of it he becomes invisible. The antidote to the dose is a lump of sugar. Ned Browne experiments with the fern-seed, and assists invisibly at a consultation of his doctors, visits his club and his sweetheart in the same way, and hears some unwelcome truths.

*Philadelphia reports; cont. decisions pub. in the Legal Intelligencer during 1884 and 1885; comp. by H. C. Brown. V. 17. Phil., J. M. P. Wallace, 1888. c. 8+713 p. O. shp., $4.50.

Princess Daphne (The): a novel. Chic. and N. Y., Belford, Clarke & Co., 1888. c. 5-260 p. il. D. $1; pap., 50 c.

Mesmerism plays a large part in this novel. The characters are taken mostly from "Bohemia," and are not notable for their high moral qualities. The "Princess Daphne" is a Creole and an artist of some reputation, her story being mostly evolved in London. She has a lover, Eric Trevanion, who is an important factor in her life. Paul du Peyral, who obtains a fortune through her refusal to marry him, experiments with mesmerism through a woman he loves upon the "Princess," and thus obtains her secrets. The reader is asked to believe that he is her "double," and that his soul enters her body on his death, working a complete mental transformation in her.

Ragozin, Zénalde A. The story of Media, Babylon, and Persia; including a study of the Zend-Avesta or religion of Zoroaster, from the fall of Nineveh to the Persian war. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 18+447 p. il. and map, D. (Story of the nations ser.) cl., $1.50.

Continues the narratives the author begun in "The story of Chaldea" and "The story of Assyria." Almost half the book is devoted to the ancient religion of the Parsees and an account of the sacred books of that sect. The narrative portion of the book begins with "The last days of Judah," followed by a series of chapters on Media and the rise of Persia, and the Persian war. Bibliography.

Turner, S. Epes. A sketch of the Germanic constitution from early times to the dissolution of the empire. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1888. c. 9+185 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The writer divides his sketch as follows: The primitive period; The Merovingian period; The Carolingian period; The first feudal period; The second feudal period; The reformation period; The period of disintegration; The period of dissolution. Through all these periods he traces the historical evolution of the German constitution.

*United States. Supreme court. United States reports. V. 127; cases adjudged, Oct. term, 1887; J. C. Bancroft Davis, rep. N. Y., and Alb., Banks & Bros., 1888. c. 20+836 p. O. shp., $2.

Walford, L. B. A mere child. N. Y., H. Holt & Co., 1888. 3+265 p. S. (Leisure hour ser., no. 218.) cl., $1; pap., 30 c.

A simple love story with an unsophisticated little heroine; by the author of "Mr. Smith" and "The baby's grandmother." The scene is first laid in the Highlands of Scotland and afterwards in London. Geraldine Campbell, the heiress of Inchmaren, though introduced as "a mere child," is not too young to fall in love with handsome Captain Bellenden, who meets her out fishing. The subsequent events which settle their fate are conventional enough, but told in a fresh, entertaining manner which makes the book very attractive.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 25, 1888.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

We have had several letters questioning the accuracy of some of the statements contained in the article, "Books on the Instalment Plan," reprinted in our last issue from the St. Paul Pioneer Press. We see no reason for questioning anything contained in that sketch, excepting perhaps the assertion that "comparatively nobody knows anything about it." We believe that P. F. Collier, who owns the immense establishment at the corner of Attorney and Rivington Streets, New York, is well known to every one in the book-trade and tolerably so to the residents of most important towns all over the country. Indeed, this publisher's career and modus operandi may be worthy the study of those hopeless merchants who content themselves with sitting around waiting for customers and by grumbling at the poor business in consequence. Business is first, last, and all the time just what you make it. If customers don't come to you, get up and go to them. In nearly every case it will not be necessary to do this in person, but the mails will suffice. Though we have known cases where enterprising booksellers, knowing they had a good thing and also informed as to who would be likely to want it—and there's the meat in the egg, the knowing who wants what you have got to sell—have gone from door to door, so to speak, and have realized a year's rent by the operation. Our readers are all acquainted with the little fable of the mountain and Mahomet. We imagine that in his younger days the Attorney Street publisher very likely used to sit around waiting for the mountain to "hump" itself. But finding that it is never taken just that way, he was inspired to go to the mountain. And the success of that move has been stupendous. Whether his three million (more or less) customers are all benefited intellectually by the process, whether they read or are able to read—that is a question we would not like to be called upon to answer. "You can carry a horse to water," but—etc.

PAPER TESTING IN GERMANY.

MORE or less, of course, everybody tests paper. No one buys paper without ascertaining, as well as he can, whether it will answer his purpose. And an expert can, by simple tests and the aid of his experience, give a very sound judgment as to the quality of any given specimen of paper. But his judgment is not controllable by any definite standard; still less does it admit of a precise comparison of different sorts of paper. Besides, all paper-buyers are not experts, a fact which is particularly true of public bodies who are, nevertheless, large consumers of paper. A perception of this fact led the Prussian Government in 1885 to add a paper testing department to the Technical Experimental Station already existing in Charlottenburg. The basis of scientific paper-testing had, indeed, been already laid by the work done by Dr. Hartig in the Polytechnicum at Dresden, and by Dr. Hoyer in the Technical High School in München. Prussia, however, was the first State to erect an official testing establishment. The example has been followed by Vienna; and other towns, Copenhagen, Stockholm, Stuttgart, etc., are contemplating a similar step. A private testing institution is also presided over by Dr. Winckler in Leipzig, and I may here take the opportunity of thanking this gentleman for the courtesy with which he placed at my disposal the necessary material for this article.

The first matter of importance in connection with testing is the fixing of the standards. Those adopted by the Prussian Government and generally recognized, are as follows:

A. MATERIAL.

- Class I. Paper exclusively of rags, with not more than 2 per cent. ash.
- " II. Paper from rags with the addition of cellulose, straw stuff or Esparto, but free from wood, and with not more than 5 per cent. ash.
- " III. Paper of any materials, but free from wood and with less than 15 per cent ash.
- " IV. Paper of any material and with unlimited ash.

B. TOUGHNESS.

Class.	1	2	3	4	5	6	Standard resistance to crumpling
Average tearing length in meters at least	6,000	5,000	4,000	3,000	2,000	1,000	0, extremely little.
Average stretching in per centages of the original length, at least, ...	4.5	4	3	2.5	2	1.5	1, very little 2, little 3, moderate 4, fair 5, great 6, very 7, extremely great.
Resistance to crumpling.	6	6	5	4	3	2

All paper must also be well sized and without free acid.

A paper whose qualities do not all fall in the same vertical column of the above table is estimated according to the lowest class in which any one of its qualities fails. It is desirable, but not imperative, that a paper should show the degree of resistance to crumbling shown under each class.

The uses to which papers of the various classes are adapted are shown in table C.

C. APPLICATION OF PAPERS.

	Toughness Class.	Materials. Class.
1. Documents of special importance which are required to last a long time .....	1	I
2. Documents, Civil Registers, Account Books, etc.: a. First class....	2	I
b. Second class..	3	II
3. Papers intended for permanent preservation :
a. Report, Letter-Paper, etc.	3	II
b. Draught Paper .....	4	II
4. Paper for ordinary use, to be preserved only a few years :
a. Report and Letter-Paper....	3	III
b. Draught Paper.....	4	III
5. Envelopes, Packing Paper, etc.:
a. First-class.....	3	II
b. Second-class .....	5	III
6. Summonses, Memoranda, and similar Formulas which are only required for temporary use.....	any	IV

From the above tables it appears that the principal tests of paper will be : as regards material, its freedom from wood, its percentage of ash, the presence of grass, straw, etc. ; as regards manufacture, its toughness (including thickness, stretching quality, resistance to ill-treatment), its sizing and its surface. I go on to describe these methods in detail.

For the detection of woody fibre the usual reagents are :

- a) Phloroglucine, dissolved in Alcohol with some drops of Hydrochloric acid, which colors woody fibre red, leaving cellulose uncolored.
- b) Aniline sulphate, which colors wood yellow.

Both reagents are simple in application and effective in their results.

JEWISH PUBLICATION SOCIETY.

We learn from the Philadelphia Press that the Executive Committee of the American Jewish Publication Society met on the 19th inst. toward accomplishing a thorough organization at the Mercantile Club. Fifteen votes were cast for membership on the Publication Committee, some voting by mail. Those elected were: Mayer Sulzberger, Rev. Dr. M. Jastrow, Sr., Simon A. Stern, Rev. Dr. B. Felsenthal, of Chicago ; Miss Henrietta Syold, of Baltimore ; Dr. Cyrus Adler, of Johns Hopkins University ; Dr. A. S. Isaac, of New York, and Professor Charles Gross, of Harvard College. Herman S. Friedman, of this city, was chosen Treasurer, and Mr. Jacob Schiff, of New York; Mr. Leon N. Levi, of Galveston, Tex. ; Mr. B. Bettman, of Cincinnati ; Rev. Dr. G. Gottheil, of New York, Vice-Presidents. Letters from Mr. J. Hecht, of Boston, and Mr. Rosenthal, of Chicago, declining to serve on the Executive Committee were received, and Herman S. Friedman was chosen to fill one vacancy, while the other will remain vacant until the next meeting.

The Publication Committee was empowered to draft rules for its government, and to report to the Executive Committee at the next meeting. These were appointed a Committee on Finance : Rev. Dr. Joseph Krauskopf, Morris Newberger, and Herman S. Friedman. A circular embodying the objects and history of the society will be issued by a committee having the matter in charge. Simon Wolf, of Washington, was intrusted with the formation of a general membership committee.

It is quite likely that work will soon be begun toward publishing some famous work in English which is now printed only in German and Hebrew

A LITERARY TRADE UNION.

From the N. Y. Sun.

A DISCUSSION of peculiar interest is maintained in "The Grievances of Authors and Publishers," a work recently imported. It is a report of the proceedings of the British Incorporated Society of Authors, and is made up chiefly of the remarks of the chairmen, followed by three more elaborate addresses, the first by Walter Besant, the second by Edmund Gosse, and the third by John Hollingshead. It contains also letters and papers by several other gentlemen, including one by George Haven Putnam, of this city.

The book reads not unlike a sublimated report of the Grievance Committee of a trade union. The society is in fact a literary protective association. Its membership includes a large number of names eminent in contemporary English literature. It is modelled somewhat on the idea of the Société des Gens de Lettres in France.

The address of Walter Besant was on "The Maintenance of Literary Property," and if all it charges is true the English publishers must be a pretty bad lot. Mr. Besant considers each of the four methods of publishing—where the publisher buys the book outright, where it is published on shares, where a royalty is given, and where it is published on commission. Under the first arrangement Mr. Besant thinks that an author will never be justly compensated for his work unless he holds ground of such peculiar advantage that he can refuse to part with the copyright on any terms a publisher would offer.

Under the method of an equal distribution of profits, Mr. Besant charges a great deal of open rascality on the part of the British publishers. In plain English, they falsify accounts and estimate higher than the actual expenditure will justify; and then they plead that it is not the practice of the trade to permit any auditing of accounts. This is a grave charge, but Mr. Putnam, who may be supposed to represent the publishers' side of the dispute, makes some suggestions which indicate that Mr. Besant may have been mistaken in his data. Mr. Besant obtained estimates on work from one printer for the purpose of learning what should be the charge for similar work done by another printer, and though this seems fair, it may easily be made misleading. The work may not have been of precisely the same quality in both instances, and a little difference in the quality might make a very large difference in the cost. But if the figures of Mr. Besant are trustworthy, he makes a bad case against the publishers, and what is true in the half profit system he asserts to be equally true when a royalty is paid. Misrepresentation and fraud are to be found everywhere. Finally, if a publisher undertakes the publication of a book on commission, he cannot be expected to push the sale against the sale of books which he has undertaken on more advantageous terms. The English author, therefore, fares badly in any case in the view of Mr. Besant, and in the absence of international copyright with this country he is doubly in need of a protective organization to help him out.

But Mr. Besant has golden hopes for the future. He looks forward to the day, possibly during the lives of his children, but certainly during the lives of his grandchildren, when the earth will be half filled with English-speaking people, 50,000,000 in Great Britain, 200,000,000 in America, 100,000,000 in Australia, and 50,000,000 in New Zealand, all bound together under one copyright regulation. At the time when his vision is fulfilled he expects the authors to have all become their own cooperative publishers, and the nucleus of the great publishing house of the future will be found in this Incorporated Society of Authors. He seems to suspect that the headquarters will be finally in Chicago.

Following the address of Mr. Besant comes that of Edmund Gosse on the "Profession of Authorship." This deals rather with the mutual benefit character of the society than with its protective features. Mr. Gosse in the first place takes issue with the prevailing notion that there has been a great improvement in the circumstances of authors since the traditional days of Grub Street. He attributes the apparent improvement to the openings offered in journalism, and even goes so far as to deny, notwithstanding the title of his address, that there can be a strictly literary profession. He seems to believe that an author who tries to be exclusively an author at the present day will fare no better than the author of 100 years ago. In some respects he thinks that the living author will not fare even so well as his predecessor, for what he has gained in the broader public to which his works are addressed he has lost in the loss of the literary patron, a personage once powerful in the aid of struggling genius, but now entirely dethroned and banished. He believes, therefore, that authorship considered as a dependence, is just as precarious a pursuit as ever, and that authors stand in special need of cooperative organization and methods. But Mr. Gosse admits that it will be very difficult to draw the line between authors who are helpable and those who are not helpable. Of the latter class he gives an example in Samuel Boyse, a poet of the last century, who wrote a poem on Deity, and who, during a great part of his life, seemed to have been followed by a procession of dukes and countesses whose entire time was devoted to the task of helping him out of the gutter. He is described as a person who passed six weeks in bed because he had pawned everything that he possessed, and finally, when a subscription was undertaken for his benefit, he used the first money received for a dinner of truffles, off which he dined by thrusting his arm through the blanket. So afterward, on the encouragement offered by a commission to translate one of Fenelon's works, he married and took upon himself the responsibility of maintaining a family. Men of this kind are not helpable in the opinion of Mr. Gosse.

Mr. Gosse does not believe that all successful authors are either impracticable or incapable. He seems to hold that authorship, if not now to be justly considered a profession, might be made a profession by cooperation among authors, and the adoption of methods that would give to men of talent the opportunities they merit. His indignation is roused not so much by the wicked publishers as by the wicked public with its impotent judgment.

The address of John Hollingshead on "Dramatic Rights and Property" is an attack on the English law of copyright. No English novelist at the time when the address was delivered held any dramatic right in his works, and Mr. Hollingshead tells of having once written a story in such form that it was ready for stage representation without any changes. But even in this form he had no right to control its representation. Mr. Hollingshead contends that authors are greatly damaged by stage adaptations of their works.

MEETING OF THE NATIONAL TYPO- THETÆ.

ARRANGEMENTS have been completed by the New York Typothetæ for the entertainment of the United Typothetæ of America, who meet at the Masonic Temple in New York City on Sept. 18. There will be a dinner at the Metropolitan Opera House, with provision for 350 guests. An excursion to Glen Island, including a clam-bake, and another up and down the Hudson, ending with an evening at Manhattan Beach and a view of the fireworks spectacle. Visits will be made to several printing offices and manufacturing establishments.

Among the subjects to be discussed are the cost of production, the true method of bookkeeping, a technical school for printing, the fraudulent importation of stereotype plates at less cost than proper rate of duty, the payment of fees by inkmakers and pressmakers to gain trade, the Chace copyright bill, and the cultivation of kindly relations with workmen.

The officers of the society are: Theodore L. De Vinne, of New York, President; Sam Slawson, of St. Louis, Corresponding Secretary; James Davidson, of Louisville, Recording Secretary; A. O. Russell, of Cincinnati, Treasurer; and Howard Lockwood, of New York, Chairman of the Executive Committee. The local Committee of Arrangements consists of Joseph J. Little, Chairman; W. C. Martin, Douglas Taylor, Theodore L. De Vinne, J. Bishop Putnam, W. E. Hallenbeck, J. Thorne Harper, J. C. Rankin, Jr., A. B. Turnure, Francis E. Fitch, Martin B. Brown, Edward D. Appleton, Frank D. Harmon, Homer Lee, James W. Pratt, W. C. Rogers, John Polhemus, James A. Rogers, R. Harmer Smith, Edward Taylor, and Henry Bessey.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE death is announced at London, on the 20th inst., of George Weber, the German historian, aged eighty.

BOOK AUCTION BY MAIL.

C. N. CASPAR, of Milwaukee, publishes the first instalment of Part I. of his "Mail Book Auction."

Two copies of this list, which contains only the titles of books actually in stock, are sent to librarians and private book collectors. One of these lists may be used to affix, after the respective titles of the works desired, the price the bidder is willing to pay per volume for each work. The second copy of the list, marked with the same bids, should be kept for reference.

The advantages of this strictly new arrangement are conspicuous, and, above all, labor-saving. Old books in most cases have no market value, and are, as a rule, worth different prices to different persons. Librarians and others may, through this opportunity, obtain books at their own prices.

The books will be shipped to the first bidder, if the offer proves acceptable, otherwise the bids will be filed and the books kept for four weeks for competition of offers which may arrive during this period, after which time they will be sent out without reserve to the highest bidder.

All books on this list are warranted to be perfect, complete, and in good condition, and they are in their original cloth binding, if not otherwise specified. They will be forwarded at the expense of the purchaser. No charge is made for packing, cases, or cartage.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE next volume of the Bankside Shakespeare, "Othello," is to be edited by Dr. Thomas R. Price, Professor of English in Columbia College. Dr. Price will claim, in his introduction, that he has discovered an exact system of Shakespearian prosody, led up to by experimentation by Shakespeare in the earlier plays, and finally perfected in the "Othello."

"THE PILLARS OF SOCIETY and Other Plays," by Henrik Ibsen, edited by Havelock Ellis, will be the September volume in the Camelot Series; "Poems by Southey," edited by Sidney R. Thompson in the Canterbury Poets; "Life of Bunyan," by Canon Venables in the Great Writers. Mr. Thomas Whittaker is the American publisher of these series.

JORDAN, MARSH & Co., the Boston dry-goods house, have just ready "Editha's Burglar," by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett. It is illustrated by Henry Sandham, and handsomely bound in cloth with a gold design on the cover. A portrait of little Elsie Leslie adorns the front page. They are also just publishing "Jack in the Bush," by Robert Grant, a sequel or companion story to "Jack Hall," illustrated by Frank T. Merrill. It is a good camping-out story of boys who spend their vacation in the woods and have a good time. They have also in press "House-keeping and Home-making," by Mrs. Sallie Joy White.

THE first etching bearing the stamp of the Society of American Etchers is "The Fisherman's Courtship," by Hamilton Hamilton. In a criticism of American etching, Mrs. Runtz-Rees says of this plate: "The artist has treated an idyllic theme in an ideal manner. The old, old story, with its subtle charm, is transacted in the witching evening hour by the murmuring waves. The figures of the pair are charming; the sailor, leaning against the windlass, waits in evident expectation of a happy conclusion, while the maiden, shyly coy, stands with downcast eyes as if unwilling to lessen her empire by giving voice to the consent, which has evidently been already given in thought. As an etching 'The Fisherman's Courtship' is an example of Mr. Hamilton's best work; it is not only admirably conceived, but excellently carried out in detail; the treatment of the sky is in itself evidence of the highest artistic feeling." Orders may be addressed to J. D. Waring, 19 E. 16th St., publisher of the Society of American Etchers.

HENRY SELL, 186 Fleet St., London, has in preparation "Sell's Dictionary of the World's Press and Advertiser's Reference-Book" for 1889.

CHATTO & WINDUS publish a tastefully illustrated little book, "Uncle Sam at Home," by Harold Brydges, which is said to be an appreciative estimate of American character and institutions.

MARPON & FLAMMARION, Paris, will publish in November a volume of personal reminiscences by Alphonse Daudet, under the title "Souvenirs d'un Homme de Lettres." It will contain numerous illustrations.

L. J. VEEN, Amsterdam (Holland), has just published the first part of a "Dictionary of National Biography," by J. G. Frederiks and F. Jos. van den Branden, assisted by a number of prominent men of letters in the Netherlands. The work will be completed in 15 parts.

W. DRYSDALE & Co., Montreal, Canada, have just ready a new Canadian work entitled "The Young Seigneur, or, nation making," by Wilfrid Chateaucclair. The chief aim of this book, the author says, is to map out a future for the Canadian nation, which has been hitherto drifting without any plan. A lesser purpose of it is to make some of the atmosphere of French Canada understood by those who speak English. The writer is an old-fashioned Tory and an old-fashioned Liberal.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CENTRALIA, MO.—P. S. Hocker, bookseller, has sold out.

GREENVILLE, TEX.—T. C. Johnson & Co., booksellers and stationers, have had their stock damaged by fire. Loss $2000, covered by insurance.

LINCOLN, NEB.—Holbrook & Bondright, booksellers, it is reported in the Western Stationer, have been closed up under chattel mortgage.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The J. Dewing Company, publishers, importers, and booksellers, have found it necessary to secure ampler quarters, and are now located in a much more commodious store at 813 Market St. (Flood Building), in the very heart of the city and on the most important business thoroughfare.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.—J. Rosenthal, bookseller and stationer, has been burned out.

For 1888 (Sixteenth Year).

Large 8vo, about 3000 pages. With Duplex Index.

The Trade-List Annual for 1888 will contain :

1. The latest CATALOGUES OF AMERICAN PUBLISHERS, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm-names.
2. A complete list by author, title, and subject of all books recorded in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY from July, 1887, to June, 1888.
3. The "EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE" for 1888, which is used by the entire trade and educational interests as the most representative reference-list of School-books.

The above Lists, all bound in one volume, present in their combination so convenient and time-saving a working-tool as to make it indispensable to every one who has any interest in the purchase or sale of books.

The patent "DUPLEX INDEX" having given such general satisfaction, we have decided to apply it in the future to all copies of the "Annual." Volumes supplied with the "DUPLEX INDEX" have the alphabet printed on the concave surface as well as on the margin of the page, which enables instantaneous reference, whether the book is open or shut.

The price of the book before publication will be ONE DOLLAR AND A HALF net, including the index. Delayed or unpaid subscriptions are not entitled to the subscription price ($1.50), but will be charged at $2.00.

☛ Unless special shipping directions are received, copies ready for delivery will be despatched by express unpaid. Parties so desiring can have their copies sent by mail, or by prepaid book-rate express for 80 cents per copy extra.

PARIS EXHIBITION, 1889

MR. EM. TERQUEM, late representative of the American Publishers in the Paris Exposition, 1878, begs to inform the trade that it is his intention to represent the American Publishers at the coming Paris Universal Exposition, on the same principles as at the last one. He has already received some applications from publishers, and he hopes to obtain the same success in 1889 that he did in 1878.

MR. EM. TERQUEM will be in New York in September next, and will remain for some time in the U. S. especially for that purpose.

The very convenient offices in the centre of the American quarter Mr. Em. Terquem has now in Paris, which will be enlarged during 1889, will enable publishers who desire to visit Paris next year to find offices for their private business use.

CHOICE BOOKS.

WIDE AWAKE, VOLUME Y. Quarto, cloth, $2.25 ; boards, $1.75.

"The contributors to 'Wide Awake' seem to vie with each other in trying to write the brightest and most entertaining stories. It is hard for a boy or girl to decide what tale pleases them best, or is most gratifying to their fancy or imagination. The shorter stories and other features of the magazine are by well-known authors who have already won a warm place in the hearts of their young admirers."—Boston Herald.

The family that buys Wide Awake "Y" will own Charles Egbert Craddock's "Story of Keedon Bluffs" as well as dozens of stories, dozens of poems, dozens of valuable descriptive articles, and hundreds of pictures.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS AT HOME. With colored frontispiece, $1.00.

A finely bound and handsomely illustrated quarto. The boy will find in it a thorough business education, the girl will learn how to do a hundred things about the house and in her sphere which will be of untold service to her; she may likewise see what many noted women have done to make the world wiser and better, and both girls and boys—not the youngest, for the book is for readers from twelve to sixteen—may pick up a vast amount of curious information about the animal creation, gathered by one of the most famous of our American naturalists.

THE ADVENTURES OF EARLY DISCOVERERS. By FRANCES A. HUMPHREY. Quarto, cloth, $1.00.

A highly entertaining and instructive combination of history, biography, travel, and adventure, intended especially for the young. Beginning as it were with the very mythology of discovery—the story of the "Lost Atlantis"—the author goes on to tell of the voyages made to the New World by the Northmen, the Spaniards, Portuguese, and English, sketching by the way the lives and characters of Vespucci, Columbus, Raleigh, Drake, and others. Numerous illustrations heighten the vivid descriptions of the text.

NED HARWOOD'S VISIT TO JERUSALEM. By Mrs. S. G. KNIGHT. $1.25.

A story of travel in the Holy Land. The manuscript was read and approved by Rev. Selah Merrill, D.D., who writes the Introduction, for many years U. S. Consul at Jerusalem. Thus the strictest accuracy of detail has been secured without impairing in even the slightest degree the interest of the story. This book will be sure to interest every one who takes it up, but it is of especial value to Sunday school scholars and teachers because of the light it indirectly throws upon many difficult Scripture passages, by its vivid descriptions of Eastern ways of living. Cover in colors from original design.

CHRISTMAS-TIDE STORIES AND POEMS. By HEZEKIAH BUTTERWORTH and Others. Quarto, boards, double lithograph cover, 50 cents.

A beautiful gift for any season, but especially for the "Holidays." The stories by Hezekiah Butterworth, editor of the Youth's Companion, describe ten famous historic events that have fallen on Christmas Day. The poems are by Mrs. Craik, Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Christina Rossetti, Paul H. Hayne, and others upon subjects in keeping with the holiday season.

Twenty-five exquisite illustrations, twelve of them full page, the frontispiece being after Knaus' famous painting, "The First Christmas."

MY WONDER STORY. By ANNE K. BENEDICT. Quarto, cloth, illustrated, $1.50.

A young folks' science story based on physiology.

"If a child happens to ask a question about his own bones, or about muscles and nerves, etc., the father and mother are wise indeed if they are able to give him exact information. But this book will do it, and that, too, without the use of many technical or scientific terms. It is a simple, plain recital of how an imaginary mother explained to her Jack and Florence all they cared or needed to know concerning the structure of the human frame."—Chicago Interior.

"We heartily recommend the 'Wonder Story' to all who are trying to impress the children with the fact that their bodies are holy and beautiful, fit to be temples of the Holy Spirit."—Golden Rule.

"Admirably fitted for use in schools as a reader or supplementary text-book."—Nashville American.

PANSIES FOR THOUGHTS. Selected from the writings of Mrs. G. R. Alden ("Pansy"), by Grace Livingston. 16mo, cloth, 75 cents.

"Pansie's" admirers—and their name is legion—will find in this anthology a genuine bonanza. They must have come upon very many precious thoughts in the course of their reading that are all but lost, because they cannot turn to them when they are most needed. In this book are the choicest thoughts and phrases; and we fancy that even those who know the author best will be surprised at the richness and rare beauty of this little bunch of "pansies" culled from her works.

MARY, THE MOTHER (THE STORY OF). Compiled by Rose Porter. 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

The compiler characterizes this as "an outline story of Mary, the Mother-Maid, as told in the pages of the Holy Book, and by Historical and Legendary Art, as well as in songs chanted by the singers of high poems." The story is exquisitely told and the illustrations add to the charm of the beautiful volume. Eleven full-page illustrations from famous paintings.

PILGRIM'S PROGRESS (THE). From this World to that which is to Come. By JOHN BUNYAN. Family edition, illustrated, 8vo, cloth, tinted border, $2.50.

One of the few world books that never grow old, because they speak the great elemental thoughts and stir the great elemental feelings of our being.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE FALL TRADE SALE will take place at George A. Leavitt & Co.'s, beginning Tuesday morning, September 18.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish to-day in their Town and Country Library, "The Mystery of the 'Ocean Star,'" a collection of maritime sketches, by W. Clark Russell.

HARPER & BROS. have in preparation Sir J. W. Dawson's "Modern Science in Bible Lands," "Shoshone and other Western Wonders," by Edwards Roberts, and Mrs. S. B. Herrick's "Earth in Past Ages."

E. & F. N. SPON have now ready the third edition of "Dynamo-Electric Machinery: a manual for students of electrotechnics," by Silvanus P. Thompson. Most of this treatise has been re-written for this edition, and much new matter has been added.

FUNK & WAGNALLS have just issued a "Life of Clinton B. Fisk," the Presidential nominee of the Prohibition party, prepared by Prof. A. A. Hopkins, who has enjoyed free access to all of the General's private papers. As the record of a self-made man and of a typical American life the volume will prove of interest and attract many readers, aside from its immediate significance as campaign literature. The volume also contains a brief biographical sketch of John A. Brooks, the Vice-Presidential nominee of the Prohibition party.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. have just ready in their new and cheaper edition of Mrs. Emma D. E. N. Southworth's works her "Cruel as the Grave," "Tried for Her Life," "The Family Doom," and "The Maiden Widow." That this author has lost none of her admirers has been sufficiently attested by the recent large advance order for her forthcoming novel, and it may therefore be safely predicted that these, her best-known books, will have, at the low price of 25 cents (hitherto they were never sold at less than $1.50), nearly if not quite as good a sale as they did upon their first appearance.

CASELL & Co. have just ready Sylvanus Cobb, Jr.'s, most popular story, the one that clinched his reputation and largely helped to make the success of the New York Ledger, "The Gun Maker of Moscow." Although there is hardly a man or boy in this country who has not heard of this story, it has never appeared in book form. Succeeding generations read it in the Ledger, where it has been published over and over again, but never before has it been offered to them in this tempting guise. That there is a new audience of many thousands awaiting it the publishers feel assured, from the number of advance orders that they received the moment it was known that they had decided to publish the book.

TICKNOR & Co. will publish this month "Western China: a journey to the great Buddhist centre of Mount Omei, by the Rev. Virgil C. Hart. This will probably be, next to Prof. Williams' great work on China, the most valuable addition to the literature of that wonderful country. Mr. Hart was sent to China by the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1865, and labored almost two years at Foochow. In 1867 he went to Central China and established missions at Kiu Kiang, Chin-kiang, Wu Hu, and Nanking. In 1887 he visited Western China for the purpose of reestablishing the mission at Chung King which had been destroyed the previous year. His journeys led him through most remarkable and hitherto little known districts remarkable for sublimity of natural scenery, art treasures of past days, etc. They will also publish during September "A Short History of the Secession War," by Rossiter Johnson; "The Rainbow Calendar for 1889," compiled by Kate Sanborn, which is to be a companion to "A Year of Sunshine;" a cheaper edition of Tennyson's "A Dream of Fair Women;" and three capital juveniles: "Recollections of a Drummer Boy," by Rev. H. M. Kieffer, which has been revised and very much enlarged; "The Dead Doll," and other verses, by Margaret Vandegrift; and "Little Helpers," a story of family life and amusements, also by Margaret Vandegrift. The latter three volumes are all fully illustrated, and will be issued uniform with "Davy and the Goblin."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. 4to: under 30 cm.; O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights

Allen, Grant. In all shades: a novel. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1888. 304 p. D. (Globe lib., no. 73.) pap., 25 c.

The island of Trinidad is the scene of this story. The motive is to show the unconquerable prejudice all West Indians have to any person with even a sixteenth part of negro blood in his or her veins. Edward Hawthorn, apparently of the purest Anglo-Saxon type, educated at Cambridge, and in every sense a gentleman, returns with a wife and an appointment to a judgeship to Trinidad against the wishes of his father and mother. He is at once made conscious there is something of which he is ignorant in his family history, as society generally cuts him and his wife. When he discovers the terrible taint of negro blood, he resolves to stay in Trinidad and live down the prejudice. A meditated negro insurrection, scenes and characters from the island life, and Hawthorn's bold fight for justice are among the many interesting chapters of a very readable book.

American-German letter-writer: a complete guide to correspondence on all subjects of every-day life; with an introduction on penmanship, orthography, punctuation, grammar, style, rules about letters; postal rates and regulations. Milwaukee, Wis., G: Brumder, [1888.] 360+360 p. D. hf. roan, in German and English, $1.50; English or German separately, ea., D. hf. roan, 75 c.

Containing a large collection of models of familiar letters, as well as models of business letters, such as: circulars, letters of introduction and recommendation, letters of credit, of application, of inquiry, orders for goods, consignments; orders, bills, receipts, bank deposits and checks, due bills and notes, bills of exchange and drafts, bills of sale, bills of lading, together with treatise on the subject and principles of book-keeping and practical single-entry book-keeping; an appendix, embracing a full list of abbreviations and signs, and definitions of mercantile and legal terms; a collection of poems for particular occasions and of album verses and epitaphs.

Beale, Ja., comp. Tabulated roster of the army of the Potomac at Gettysburg, Penn., July 1, 2, 3, 1863; arranged by states, showing the brigade, division, and corps with which each organization served during the battle. Phil., Ja. Beale, 719 Sansom St., [1888.] 31 p. T. pap., 25 c.

Bray, Rev. H: Truro. Essays on God and man; or, a philosophical inquiry into the principles of religion. St. Louis, Nixon-Jones Printing Co., [Boonville, Mo., Rev. H: T. Bray.] 1888. c. 9+270 p. D. cl., $2.

Clarke, Frank Wigglesworth. The constants of nature. Pt. 1, A tale of specific gravity for solids and liquids. New ed., rev. and enl. Wash., D. C., Smithsonian Institution, 1888. 11+409 p. O. (Smithsonian miscellaneous collections, no. 659.) pap.

Colerick, E. Fenwick. Adventures of pioneer children; or, life in the wilderness. Cin., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1888. c. 13+236 p. il. D. cl., $1.

A collection of thrilling narratives of acts of bravery in adventures with the Indians and wild beasts, performed by the children of the early pioneers in establishing homes in the wilderness. They have been gleaned from the general history of our country and the local histories of the border wars, etc.; many have also been obtained from the actors or their descendants, and never before appeared in print. Boys and girls will enjoy these historical facts.

*Cross, J. G. Eclectic short-hand dictionary. Chic., S. C. Griggs & Co., 1888. 19+362 p. O. cl., $3.50.

Dolliez, Francis. The true cause of insanity explained; or, the terrible experiences of an insane, related by himself: the life of a patient in an insane asylum, by a patient of the Northern Wisconsin Hospital at Winnebago, Wis. Minneapolis, C: D. Raymer, 1888. c. 188 p. D. cl., $1.

The writer does not consider insanity a disease requiring the treatment of physicians; he calls all insane people "demoniacs" possessed by an evil spirit. Faith and prayer alone he believes can restore them.

Edwards, T: C., D.D. The epistle to the Hebrews. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, [1888.] 8+337 p. O. (The expositor's Bible.) cl., $1.50.

"In this volume the sole aim of the writer has been to trace the unity of thought in one of the greatest and most difficult books of the New Testament. He has endeavored to picture his reader as a member of what is known in the Sunday-schools of Wales as 'the teacher's class,' a thoughtful Christian layman, who has no Greek, and desires only to be assisted in his efforts to come at the real bearing and force of words, and to understand the connection of the sacred author's ideas. . . . Criticism is rigidly excluded."—Preface.

Harvard vespers: addresses to Harvard students by the preachers to the university, 1886-1888. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. c. 233 p. D. cl., $1.

Twenty-eight addresses given by the Plummer professor and the preachers to Harvard University at the vesper services which have been held during the past two years. They are especially suited to the religious needs of young men, being helpful, hopeful, and practical. The authors' names include Francis G. Peabody, Phillips Brooks, E: E. Hale, Alex. McKenzie, and G: A. Gordon.

Helmer, N. The actor's make-up book: a practical and systematic treatise on the art of making up for the stage; designed for the use of the American theatrical profession. N. Y., Harold Roorbach, [1888.] c. 70 p. il. D. pap., 25 c.

"With special treatment on the use of theatrical wigs and beards, the make-up and its requisite materials, the different features and their management, typical character masks, etc., with special hints to ladies."

Hopkins, Alphonso A. The life of Clinton Bowen Fisk; with a brief sketch of John A. Brooks. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1888. c. 10+295 p. por. D. cl., $1.

This biography of Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, Presidential nominee of the Prohibition party, prepared (with the General's approval) by Prof. Hopkins, who has enjoyed free access to all the General's private papers, is very accurate and complete. It is the record of a self-made man; the biography of a typical American life; a charming story, reaching from the log-cabin of a pioneer to positions of national honor. Contains also a short biography of John A. Brooks, the Vice-Presidential nominee of the Prohibition party.

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk, and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

Hugo, Victor. Nôtre-Dame de Paris; from the French by Isabel F. Hapgood. N. Y., T. Y. Crowell & Co., [1888.] c. ed. 2 v., 8+275; 6+315 p. il. D. cl., $3.

A new and profusely illustrated edition of this celebrated work, uniform with the edition of "Les Misérables" issued by this house last year.

Iron, Ralph, ["Olive Schreiner," pseud.] The story of an African farm: a novel. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. 3-375 p. S. (Handy lib., no. 1.) cl., 60 c.

A fresh unconventional story of South African colonial life. The writer's style is not only original, but his subject is almost wholly new in fiction. He is so realistic that there can be no doubt the material has been drawn from experience or observation. The picture of Tant Sannie, the Boer-woman, whom an Englishman, dying, marries that she may take care of his little ones and his farm, is a graphic delineation. "Em" and "Lyn-dall," the little English girls, the German overseer and his son "Waldo," are all characters full of force and a new interest. The descriptions take in not only the outside workings of an ostrich farm, but also the home life. Pathos and humor are both to be found within the book's limits.

Little, Caroline Frances. The three vocations. Milwaukee, Wis., The Young Churchman Co., 1888. c. 252 p. D. cl., net, 75 c.

A book for the Sunday-school library. It pictures the lives of three young girls, and the opposite vocations they embraced. One became a member of a sisterhood; one devoted herself exclusively to literature, and the other became a wife and mother. The experience of each one seeks to illustrate the necessity of belief in the Episcopal church as the one only religion.

*Long, J. D., ed. The Republican party; its history, principles, and policies. N. Y., The M. W. Hazen Co., 66 W. 23d St., 1888. 427 p. por. and il. O. cl., subs., $2.75.

Macdonald, G. The elect lady. N. Y., G. Munro, [1888.] 186 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1118.) pap., 20 c.

Mathews, W. S. B. New musical miscellanies: historical, critical, philosophical, and pedagogic. V. 2: How to understand music. Phil., Theodore Presser, 1704 Chestnut St., 1888. c. 7+3-208 p. O. cl., $1.50.

Contains essays on Franz Schubert, Hector Berlioz, and Richard Wagner, which are both biographical and descriptive of the works of these great composers. Chapters also on: Psychological relations to music; Theory of piano teaching; The tonal system and temperament; The tonic sol-fa as an educational factor; Self-culture in music; The Greek drama and modern opera; Bird's-eye view of musical history.

Mayer, Jacob. English-German model letter-writer and book-keeper: a faithful companion in the various social and business relations and useful adviser at home and in schools. Phil., I. Kohler, 911 Arch St., 1888. c. 244+258 p. D. cl., in German and English, $1.50; German or English separate, ea., 75 c.

A useful work, designed either for the use of English or Germans. It contains models of letters for all occasions, both social and business; chapters on English orthography and grammar; thorough information regarding book-keeping, all kinds of bonds, contracts, deeds, etc., etc. An appendix contains poems for special occasions; postal matters; etiquette; money and interest tables; abbreviations, technical law terms, etc.

Meredith, G. Evan Harrington: a novel. Author's popular ed. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. 4+519 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Meredith, G. Vittoria. Author's popular ed. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. 5+500 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Orcutt, Hiram. Among the theologies. Bost., W. B. Clarke & Co., 1888. c. 9+142 p. S. cl., 75 c.

A review of some of the more prominent doctrines advocated by leaders of religious thought—such as Calvinism, probation, retribution, etc. The writer rejects them, and gives his reason for doing so.

Politics in song: new Democratic campaign songs and hymns, adapted to the Presidential contest of 1888. New Britain, Ct., E. F. Boyd, [1888.] c. Pt. 1, 16 p. T. pap., 5 c.

Presidential campaign (The) of 1896: a scrap-book chronicle; comp. by an editor of that period. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1888. c. 3-163 p. D. pap., 50 c.

By the author of "The battle of Bietigheim," and like that work a prophetic picture of the near future of the United States. The volume consists of scraps of all kinds seemingly cut from the daily papers of 1896; these extracts narrate the events of a presidential campaign in which the struggle is between the National party and the Labor party. The latter party represents all the worst elements of socialism and anarchy, and after a fierce struggle, during which the whole country is aroused, finds its Waterloo in 1896.

Rollins, Alice Wellington. Uncle Tom's tenement: a novel. Bost., The W. E. Smythe Co., 1888. c. 5+468 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The writer institutes a parallel between the poverty which holds the masses in New York City in bondage and the slavery which formerly existed in the south. The one is as cruel a master as the other, separating families, crushing out natural feelings, and being the root of all kinds of immorality. "Uncle Tom's tenement" is one of the worst examples of a New York tenement in the "Mulberry Bend." Here the poorer people manage to exist who figure in the story. There are other characters from Madison Avenue, who occupy themselves in visiting the "slums" and devising means for bettering the condition of the people. The work is a severe arraignment of the agents and owners of tenement property.

Steele, R. Essays and tales. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1888.] 192 p. T. (Cassell's national lib., v. 3, no. 135.) pap., 10 c.

Stevenson, Rob. L. The Silverado squatters. N. Y., G. Munro, [1888.] 97 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1110.) pap., 10 c.

Sully, Ja., and Robertson, G. C. Æsthetics; dreams; and association of ideas. N. Y., J. Fitzgerald, 1888. 49 p. O. (Humboldt lib., no. 101.) pap., 15 c.

Traphagen, Frank W. Index to the literature of columbium, 1801-1887. Wash., D. C., Smithsonian Institution, 1888. 2+27 p. O. (Smithsonian miscellaneous collections, no. 663.) pap.

Tuckerman, Alfred. Index to the literature of the spectroscope. Wash., D. C., Smithsonian Institution, 1888. 7+423 p. O. (Smithsonian miscellaneous collections, no. 658.) pap.

"This work is intended to be a list of all the books and smaller treatises, especially contributions to scientific periodicals, on the spectroscope and spectrum analysis from the beginning of our knowledge upon the subject until July, 1887; an index or bibliography of the spectroscope and spectrum analysis. The object is to enable a chemist to find out at a glance all that has been published in any branch of his subject where the spectroscope is used, and what every writer has published."—Preface.

Ward, Mrs. Humphry. Robert Elsmere. N. Y., G. Munro, [1888.] 2 pts., 335; 336-655 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1116.) pap., ea., 20 c.

West, Ja. H. The complete life: six sermon-lectures; from the standpoint of modern thought. Chic., C. H. Kerr & Co., 1888. c. S. cl., 60 c.

The first three of these discourses, "The complete life," "The helper-on," and "Moral purpose," have already been published in pamphlet form, and had a large sale. The last three, "The deification of man," "Equilibrium," and "The holy spirit," are quite new.

Wilde, Oscar. The happy prince, and other tales; il. by Walter Crane and Jacomb Hood. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1888. 3+116 p. D. cl., $1.
These charming fables will find their truest appreciation among older readers, their hidden meaning, their wit and humor, and the beauty of their graceful poetical garb, being quite above the intellects of the little ones. There are in all five tales, viz.: "The happy prince," "The nightingale and the rose," "The selfish giant," "The devoted friend," and "The remarkable rocket."

Wilson, Marian Calvert. Rénée: a romance. N. Y., C: T. Dillingham, 1888. c. 294 p. D. cl., $1.50.
Rénée's father, Col. Thomas Morrell, was a Southerner, born on a plantation not far from Charleston, South Carolina. Her mother was a French girl who her father met after the war in France. She died when Rénée was seven years old; her father then brought Rénée back to the United States and sought seclusion in a little home at the base of the Cumberland Mountains. Here

Rénée's romance begins, through a railroad accident, which throws an interesting young man upon their care. Rénée's father dies suddenly, and she marries the young man and accompanies him to New York. A woman makes trouble through false representations, and Rénée flies from her husband, seeking the protection of her uncle in France. A good picture of French domestic life and a happy ending embrace all of importance in the remainder of the story.

Winter, J: Strange, [pseud for Mrs. H. E. V. Stannard.] Princess Sarah. N. Y., G: Munro, [1888.] 94 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1117.) pap., 10 c.

*Wright's directory of Milwaukee for 1888; containing a general directory of citizens, a classified business directory, a street guide and map of city. Milwaukee, Wis., C. N. Caspar, 1888. 969 p. O. hf. roan, subs., $5.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 1, 1888.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THIS is the season when prognostications as to the prospects of business and the general prosperity of the country for the remainder of the year are in order. It is also eminently the season when the real struggle for business commences, and when everybody strains every nerve in the effort to turn the tide of affairs to his profit. As to the prospects, the outlook seems to be reassuring, notwithstanding the ominous prophecies of the chronic croakers. True, the Presidential election is upon us, and this, that, and the other thing may affect business disastrously, but—a "pig may be a likely bird, but it can't fly." And neither can these croakers. They will forever remain in their caves and burrows and imagine that, because they are living in the dark, the light has gone out. Is this going to be a good year for business? You may be able to answer that for yourself. It is very largely in your own power, as we have said before, to make it just what you want it to be. The outlook as to crops, upon which many pin their faith, seems to be fair—abundant harvests being looked forward to all over the country. And a market seems to be assured to the surplus produce even, owing to the unfortunate fact that Europe is suffering from poor crops.

The manufacturer, too, has been making extensive preparations for a good fall business, and we suspect he will try to take advantage of every opportunity to make trade favorable. It therefore depends now chiefly upon the retailer to help to round out this promising state of affairs. Go slowly enough not to overstock or to load up with what you will never need. Know yourself what you want and don't let others prescribe for you. Above everything, don't follow "Mrs. Toodles'" example.

Another hint, but one not so easy to follow in many cases, is—Pay as you go along. This one of the secrets of the success of the houses that have carried off a large portion of the book business. Buying for cash, they secured the best discounts and got all the favors, which were of course paid by those who took advantage of long time and finally had to resort to "extensions." Nothing is gained by asking for or giving long credits, and in too many cases it ends in disaster to all.

THE first batch of "The Publishers' Trade List Annual" has been received, and, beginning next week, the distribution will continue with as little delay as possible. The fire at the Tapley bindery did not materially interfere with the work in hand.

DUTY ON NON-ENGLISH LITERATURE.

H. M. Stanley in Evening Post.

IF there is one duty in the present tariff more absurd and unjust than another, it is the duty on books printed in foreign languages. Twenty-five per cent. is charged on all foreign books alike, whether they be in the English language, in German, French, Chinese, or Hottentot. From the point of view of protection, this duty protects nothing and nobody. We cannot foster a French literature, for instance, in this country by any amount of protection. There are no publishers or writers to be protected by any tariff of this kind. As a measure for revenue, this tax is an imposition on all advanced science and learning in this country. The specialist, who is but too often a teacher dependent on a meagre salary, must buy French and German books in order to maintain his standing and keep up with his specialty; and, in addition to the regular cost of importation, he is required to pay a tax which is often prohibitive. Further, this tax falls heavily upon the increasing class of cultured persons with short purses who take an interest in contemporary foreign literature. For a book whose list price in France is  $3\frac{1}{2}$  francs (67 cents), one must pay a dealer in this country \$1.25. If the book were free of duty, the dealer, who can buy it in France at 40 per cent. discount should make a fair profit by charging the American buyer about the equivalent of the foreign list price.

It is certainly worth while for legislators who desire to favor science, learning, and general culture to see that, if the duty on all books be not remitted, at least the books printed in foreign languages be allowed to enter this country free of duty.

PIRACY RAMPANT IN ENGLAND.

"ANOTHER and less agreeable feature is the almost universal pirating of American novels by English publishers. Bitter complaints regarding that kind of practice in this country have reached us from the other side, but our cousins are returning the compliment with good interest, and now the black flag may be said to fly over every book-stall in the United Kingdom.—Tribune Interview with Brander Matthews.

GENERAL SHERIDAN'S MEMOIRS.

From the N. Y. Tribune.

IT is well known that the manuscript of General Sheridan's personal memoirs is in the hands of New York publishers. From the sales of the book it has been expected that Mrs. Sheridan would receive a large addition to her small resources. Her friends have learned with considerable anxiety that publishers at Springfield and elsewhere are preparing to issue unauthorized lives of the great soldier. They fear that these impositions may not only tend to the discredit of General Sheridan's career, but also to the financial injury of his widow. Colonel M. V. Sheridan has written a letter to John L. Johnson, of Springfield, Mass., in which he says:

"In answer to your inquiry whether there will be published an authentic history of General Sheridan's life, and, if so, when, I have the pleasure to inform you that the 'Personal Memoirs of Philip H. Sheridan,' written by himself, will be published at New York by December, 1888. This will be the only authentic life of General Sheridan, and, as he spent the best part of the four years preceding his death upon it, I believe it will be found a most interesting and creditable performance. Attempts are being made to impose on the public with pretended authentic lives of General Sheridan. These books are all frauds, as there is no manuscript in existence except that of the memoirs already referred to, from which an authentic life could be printed, and no complete material except that which is in the hands of the General's executors."

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

THE INTERNATIONAL LITERARY CONGRESS is to hold its conference this year in the Senate Chamber of the Doge's Palace in Venice. The session is to be from September 15-22. The American Copyright Bill is one of the subjects named for discussion.

THE Incorporated Society of Authors, of London, are considering the propriety of presenting Mrs. Burnett with some testimonial of their regard and gratitude for vindicating in the English courts, at her own risk and expense, a novelist's dramatic rights in his productions.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

PROF. DARMSTETER, of the College of France, is to marry Miss Mary Robinson, who is best known by her memoir of Emily Brontë, in the Famous Women series, and is pleasantly known among readers of recent verse by her little volume of songs, which are largely cast in antiquated Italian measures.

MISS UTTIET, better known perhaps as "Maxwell Grey," is the only daughter of a physician at Newport, Isle of Wight, and is a hopeless invalid. It is told that when "The Silence of Dean Maitland" was published, Lord Tennyson read it with great interest, and was anxious to know the author. He wrote to Miss Uttiet, inviting her to visit him at Freshwater, but she was too ill to do so. Thereupon he drove over to Newport and called upon her.—N. Y. Tribune.

A LONDON despatch to the New York Sun says that Lawrence Oliphant, who has been recently in America, is lying at Malvern at a hydropathic establishment suffering from a brain trouble, which renders him little better than a lunatic. It was only upon the announcement of his illness that many of his friends learned that he had recently married again, the bride being Miss Rosamond Dale Owen, granddaughter of the well-known Socialist. Mrs. Oliphant, whose father is a Spiritualist, takes after her grandfather, and has often lectured before Socialist societies in London on the colony of New Harmony, Robert Dale Owen's attempt at a Utopian colony in America.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Outing for September is very properly devoted largely to field sports. This finely gotten up magazine improves with every issue.

MANY of the old Presidential campaign cries are recalled in the article on "Presidential Campaign Medals," which Gustav Kobbé contributes to the September Scribner's. The author believes that "the series as a whole forms a record in metal of our national politics."

Belford's Magazine for September will contain a novel by Charles E. L. Wingate, dramatic editor of the Boston Journal, entitled "Can Such Things Be?" This, it is said, will create considerable attention on account of its daring invasion into a psychological question never before broached in literature.

The Studio for July belies the "dull" season, and comes out as fresh and interesting as usual. The leading article is an account of the principal artists of the Romantic movement in France, and of the modern Dutch school, in the form of a review of the recent Loan Exhibition of French and Dutch pictures at Edinburgh, and of the catalogue edited by W. E. Henley. The article is profusely illustrated by sketches, and there is a beautiful etching by W. Hole, after a painting by Matthew Maris, "He is Coming." The Studio is now in its sixth year, and has by steady and honest work proved its usefulness to so many that it will likely double this period, and then continue as youthful as ever.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

JOHN E. POTTER & Co., Philadelphia, have issued a fine catalogue of their Family, Pulpit, Teachers' Bibles, School-books, etc. That part of the catalogue devoted to their various lines of Bibles is very fully illustrated. (58 p., 8vo.)

F. FERROZA, bookseller, 122 Camberwell Road, London, S. E., has issued a "clearance Catalogue of standard books in all branches of literature," which from a typographical standpoint is quite a curiosity. The pages present an appearance as though they had been printed on a type-writer. As a matter of fact, however, Mr. Ferroza set up the type and stamped page by page by hand without the aid of a printing-press. Considering that Mr. Ferroza (who, by the way, is a native of Bombay and comes from a Parsee family) knows nothing of composing and printing, the catalogue is a very creditable performance. There are twenty-eight pages, thirteen lines to the page, fastened with wires, evidently also by a "home-made" process, and the leaves have been cut with a pen-knife. It is a kind of thing that has in every detail the character of "hand-made" work that so delights Ruskin's soul.

BUSINESS NOTES.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Anderson & Krum Stationery Co. has become financially embarrassed, and has placed its affairs in the hands of its creditors. Anderson & Krum started the business in March, 1886, purchasing the stock of W. T. Pratt & Co., it is said, for $30,000. The business was turned into a stock company Sept. 7, 1887, with a capital stock of $25,000, John R. Anderson being the President and Alburn H. Krum Treasurer and Manager. Mr. Anderson was also interested in a number of other concerns, having been active in organizing the Old London Street Company, the Argyle Press, and the Encyclopædia Publishing Company. At a meeting of the creditors, at the Stationers' Board of Trade on the 22d ult., it was stated that the assets of the firm amounted to $59,275.65, and the liabilities $45,212.35. Counsel for the company explained that while the statement showed an excess of assets over liabilities, the officers of the company were satisfied that an investigation would show such a material shrinkage that they could not continue the present relations with the creditors. Mr. Anderson said that the emergency had come upon them so suddenly that they were not in a position to make any proposition. They wanted the creditors to tell them what to do. A committee was appointed to investigate and report. The sentiment generally was in favor of extension.

NEW YORK CITY.—Robert H. Russell, for a number of years with the firm of A. T. B. De Witt, and who has managed the business since the decease of Clinton T. De Witt in 1880, has purchased it, and together with his son will continue it at the old stand under the style of the De Witt Publishing House. Mr. Russell will no doubt keep the business abreast with the times, having had a thorough training in and long acquaintance with the concern of which he is now the principal. We extend to Mr. Russell and his son our congratulations.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—John W. Roberts & Co., on Aug. 11, completed a settlement with their Eastern creditors on the basis of 50 cents on the dollar—viz., twenty-five cents cash, and twenty-five cents in two notes, each for twelve and a half cents, one at six and the other at twelve months, from May 1 inst. This settlement the firm was prepared to effect much earlier, but immediately on receipt of delayed signatures of a few creditors, the cash and notes for all were turned over and the matter finally closed. There has been no interruption whatever in their business during the past four months, creditors have shown a kindly feeling, and the firm's outlook is good. They will be glad to receive publishers' latest catalogues and all fall announcements.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE German poet and author, Friederich Hofmann, who was also editor-in-chief of the Gartenlaube, died lately at Leipzig.

PHILIP HENRY GOSSE, the English naturalist-author, and father of Edmund W. Gosse, the critic and poet, died at London August 27. aged 78 years.

PROF. RANDOLPH JULIUS EMMANUEL CLAUSIUS, of the University of Bonn, the renowned German physicist and author, died August 25, aged 66 years. He was one of the discoverers of the laws of thermo-dynamics.

REV. HORATIO HASTINGS WELD died at Riverton, N. J., August 28, aged 77 years. For a number of years he was the editor of the Boston Transcript, and he was one of the earliest editors of the New York Sun. He was the author of "Corrected Proofs," "Benjamin Franklin: an autobiography," "Life of Christ," "Scripture Quotations," "Sacred Poetical Quotations," "Star of Bethlehem," etc.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

C. D. RAYMER, proprietor of Raymer's Old Book-Store, Minneapolis, will soon issue a book on the tariff, giving the history from the Revolutionary War up to the present time; also the Mills Bill and the Senate Tariff Bill.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just ready a cheap American edition of the "Reminiscences of William Rogers," a widely known character in the English Church, who, like the old Vicar of Morwenstow, said and did many things that were not only of wide interest in his day, but had the faculty of delivering himself in a decidedly original and humorous way. The book has gone through six editions already in London.

SEÑOR ARMANDO PALACIO VALDÉS has sent an autograph copy of his latest Novela de Costumbres, "El Cuarto Poder" ("The Fourth Estate"), to Mr. Nathan Haskell Dole, together with a letter expressive of pleasure at his translation of "Maximina," and a desire that he should also translate "El Cuarto Poder," which has enjoyed an unexampled popularity in Spain—greater than all of his other novels put together. T. Y. Crowell & Co. have made arrangements with Mr. Dole to put this remarkable book into English.

A NEW and complete edition of the "Works of Galileo" is to be undertaken at the expense of the Italian Government and under the patronage of the King of Italy. Prof. Antonio Favaro, of the Royal University, Padua, has the care of it. He calls upon all librarians, curators, or trustees of museums, collectors of old manuscripts and autographs, and all those engaged in researches touching the history of science, to give him any information in their power respecting any Galilean documents which may assist him in carrying out this undertaking.

"EVERY day emphasizes the need of international copyright. When the Macmillans brought out 'Robert Elsmere' in England, the American house received a consignment which was snapped up on the day of its arrival here. Other consignments were immediately ordered, which for some reason have as yet failed to put in an appearance. In the meantime a well-known publishing house of this city has taken advantage of this delay, and put upon the market a cheap paper-covered edition of the book. Every copy of this that is sold robs the author and her publishers of so much rightful profit." —Critic.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address, in each issue. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

BOOKS WANTED.

 In answering, please state edition, condition, and price.

 It is desirable to receive copy in shape ready for the printer, viz.: first, headline—name and address—then, titles in separate lines (see below), all written on a separate sheet, or at the bottom of letter, or on postal card. Compliance with this request will secure accurate and prompt insertion.

Eclectic Physical Geography.

 151 Cuts and Diagrams.

THE ECLECTIC PHYSICAL GEOGRAPHY differs widely from those in general use.

1. The Charts are distinct and graphically accurate. Each chart presents but a single set of physical features.
2. No scientific knowledge on the part of the young student is assumed.
3. The order of treatment is natural and logical.
4. Phenomena are not simply described, but are traced to proximate causes.
5. The treatment of Erosion is not dismissed with the usual brief paragraph. Nearly every chapter finds in erosion a cause or an effect.
6. It discards the theory that the secular cooling and contraction of the planet is the main cause of the present relief of the globe.
7. The chapters on Life, and on Weather and Climate, are full and in conformity with modern science.

PARIS EXHIBITION, 1889

MR. EM. TERQUEM, late representative of the American Publishers in the Paris Exposition, 1878, begs to inform the trade that it is his intention to represent the American Publishers at the coming Paris Universal Exposition, on the same principles as at the last one. He has already received some applications from publishers, and he hopes to obtain the same success in 1889 that he did in 1878.

MR. EM. TERQUEM will be in New York in October next, and will remain for some time in the U. S. especially for that purpose.

The very convenient offices in the centre of the American quarter Mr. Em. Terquem has now in Paris, which will be enlarged during 1889, will enable publishers who desire to visit Paris next year to find offices for their private business use.

For further information please address

EM. TERQUEM,

ARISTOCRACY.

A NOVEL.

“Town and Country Library.” 12mo, paper cover,
50 cents; also in cloth, $1.00.

“Aristocracy” is a picture of high life in England designed in a measure as a set-off against the free delineations of Democracy that have appeared in recent books. It will gratify a large class of readers, but is likely to provoke the criticism of others. It has been written by a person thoroughly familiar with the theme.

ONE VOLUME, MOROCCO CLOTH. PRICE, $1.50.

MRS. EMMA D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH'S COMPLETE WORKS.—T. B. PETERSON & BROTHERS, Philadelphia, have just published an entire new, complete, and uniform edition, in fifty-three volumes, at $1.50 each, of all the celebrated works written by Mrs. Emma D. E. N. Southworth, the popular American Authoress, whose position is at the head of all female writers, for there is no American author now living whose writings secure such immediate and general circulation. In all her works the highest and purest sentiments are brought into tales of intense interest, while the darker shades of life are used only as lessons of instruction, or to offset the more winning characters she creates. There is a great originality of character in all her works, fine descriptive powers, strange and startling incidents, stirring adventures, scenes of pathos, and pages that quicken the pulses and thrill the heart with interest. There is also great ingenuity in the construction of her plots, and in the pure and moral tone which characterizes all her writings. Her novels are all full of the strongest interest—exciting to the verge of sensationalism, yet contain nothing to offend even the most fastidious delicacy.

This edition of Mrs. Southworth's books contains a new portrait of Mrs. Southworth, and her Autograph, also a view of her beautiful home on the banks of the Potomac, both engraved on steel. They are printed on the finest paper, are complete in forty-three volumes, bound in morocco cloth, black and gold, with a full gilt back, and are sold at the low price of $1.50 a volume, or $64.50 for a full and complete set. Every Family and every private or public Library and Reading Club in this Country should have in it some of the volumes, if not a complete set of this new, beautiful, and cheap edition of the works of Mrs. Emma D. E. N. Southworth at the low price they are now published at. They will be found for sale by all first-class Booksellers everywhere. Canvassers wanted everywhere to engage in their sale.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish next week in their Town and Country Library a novel entitled "Aristocracy," a picture of high life in England, designed in a measure as a set-off against the free delineations of democracy that have appeared in recent English books. The book is issued anonymously, but is said to have been written by a person thoroughly familiar with the theme.

THE D. LOTHROP COMPANY have just issued "Howling Wolf and His Trick Pony," by Lizzie W. Champney; "Strange Company," an account of climbing fishes, animals that are half bird, half beast, birds that fly under water, etc., by F. C. Holder; and "A Young Prince of Commerce," by Selden R. Hopkins, a boy's book, in which the principles of trade are brought within the comprehension of young readers.

HENRY CAREY BAIRD & Co. will publish on the 15th inst. a new book on steam-engineering, entitled "The American Steam-Engineer, theoretical and practical," by Emory Edwards, the well-known author of "The Practical Engineer's Guide," etc. The author in the forthcoming book will give examples of the latest and most approved American practice in the design and construction of steam engines and boilers of every description that will prove valuable to all engineers, machinists, boiler-makers, and students.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. publish this week a new cloth edition of Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth's wonderfully popular story, "Ishmael, or, In the depths," which owed its first fame to its most successful run in the columns of the New York Ledger. When the story first appeared in book-form the author in her preface said: "This story, in book-form, has been called for by thousands during several years past, but the author has reserved it until now, because she considered it to be her very best work." Mrs. Southworth chose as her hero one of the noblest of our countrymen, whose identity cannot fail to be recognized by those familiar with his early personal history. The prototype of Ishmael was born "in the depths," and rose by wisdom and goodness, through suffering and toil, to the highest place in the esteem of his fellow-citizens.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish on the 15th inst. Walter Savage Landor's "The Pentameron," "The Citation and Examination of William Shakespeare," considered to be two of his most famous and greatest books in prose, together with some minor prose pieces and criticisms all in one volume, under the general title of "The Pentameron." Messrs. Roberts Bros. now issue the entire prose writings of Landor, which comprise the forthcoming volume, the series of "Imaginary Conversations," and "Pericles and Aspasia." They will publish on the same day all of Edward Lear's "Nonsense Books," in one volume; "Raymond Kershaw," a story of brave living, noble action, hard work, and devoted family affection, by Maria McIntosh Cox, with illustrations by F. T. Merrill; and "Beauchamp's Career" and "The Egoist" in the popular edition of George Meredith's works.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT CO. will publish on the 14th inst. the second volume of the new edition of Chambers' Encyclopædia, from Bea to Cat. The same thorough revision and accuracy that characterize the first volume are also found in the second. It contains 828 pages, is profusely illustrated with new wood cuts, and supplied with maps of Belgium, Burma, California, Dominion of Canada, Eastern Provinces of Canada, Cape Colony, and South Africa. They will begin at once the publication of a series of biographical studies of the great men who have influenced the social and political history of the world under the general title of International Statesmen Series. It is to be edited by Mr. L. C. Sanders, and its scope will be comprehensive, embracing the ancients and the moderns, and including not only the creators of the English Commonwealth, but also the makers of European and American politics, and the founders of the Indian and Colonial Empires. The initial volume of the series is "Lord Beaconsfield," by T. E. Kebbel, author of a "History of Toryism." Among other publications coming from the press of J. B. Lippincott Company early in this month is a new translation from the pen of Mrs. Wister entitled "The Owl's Nest," a romance from the German of E. Marlitt. This is the thirtieth of Mrs. Wister's translations, ten of which are from Marlitt and the others from the best German authors.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The famous Americans that have been selected for eulogy in this volume are George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, Andrew Jackson, Daniel Webster, Henry Clay, Charles Sumner, U. S. Grant, and James A. Garfield. A brief outline of each life is given and a summary of each one's services to his country. Many pleasant anecdotes enliven the narrative.

One of Daudet's earlier works, first published in 1873, and based largely on his own experience. Robert Helmont, an artist, accidentally breaks his leg one day in the country, while wrestling with a friend. The time is put down in 1870, and the place as Champrosay. Here the young man is forced to remain for five months in solitude, all the inhabitants having fled to Paris on the approach of the Prussians. In spite of his almost helpless condition he has some adventures, which are both romantic and thrilling, and charmingly told. The book cannot be called a story, though it has many episodes. It is more descriptive—giving many delightful pictures of the recluse's melancholy surroundings—and also somewhat reflective and philosophical. Delightfully and profusely illustrated.

Englestone, E. A history of the United States and its people, for the use of schools. N. Y., Appleton, 1888. c. 10+398 p. il. por. and map, O. cl., $1.50.

In writing this history, the author specially aimed at correctness and clearness. To obtain the former he spent many years in the critical study of original printed and manuscript authorities for the history of American institutions and American life, the result being the rejection of "certain well-worn fables which have served more than one generation of American schoolchildren for historic facts." The arrangement is novel and obtains the clearness aimed at. Subjects are grouped together and not periods of time—one topic being exhausted before another is taken up, the review questions coming at the end of the subject whither it occupies one chapter or many. The maps and illustrations are all extremely good, and serve admirably to elucidate the text. The narrative is brought down to the present, and is as fresh and vigorous as if it were the first history ever written on this subject.

Elliot, G. W. Tariff and wages. Buffalo, N. Y., Moulton, Wenborne & Co., 1888. c. 3-112 p. S. pap., 25 c.

The author says in his introduction: "While as a theoretical free trader I cannot justify an exorbitant tariff, I do believe in a judicious tariff, and in the pages which follow I have tried as simply as possible to explain in homely conversation some of the reasons why Comprises lists of booksellers, stationers, printers, publishers, paper-dealers, bookbinders, paper-box manufacturers and newsdealers, in the U S and Canada, with address, rating, etc. revised up to date; also lists of the purchasing agents of stationery for the railroads in the U S and Canada, and the names of the buyers of wholesale houses. A new feature of this issue is a number of finely engraved maps.

Farmer, Lydia Hoyt. The life of La Fayette, the knight of liberty in two worlds and two centuries. N. Y., T. Y. Crowell & Co., [1888.] c. 7+472 p. il. and por. D. cl., $1.50.

The name of La Fayette is not only intimately connected with our own war for independence, but with the French revolution against vice and tyranny. The story recounts his services to both America and France, giving many graphic scenes from these exciting days, besides including a number of his private letters. As a large portion of the material presented has been gathered from French works never before translated and which are now out of print, and also from original files of newspapers, and various manuscripts written by members of the La Fayette family, a more complete life of General La Fayette is offered than has before appeared, either in this country or in Europe.

General David Forman, of New Jersey, in 1789 entered into a negotiation with the Spanish minister, Don Diego de Cardoque, for his brother Ezekiel Forman, of Philadelphia, to emigrate with his family, and about sixty colored people, men, women, and children and settle in the Natchez country, then under Spanish authority. Major Samuel S. Forman accompanied this emigrating party, and in this narrative gives a minute account of their trip, the places they passed through and at which they stopped, prominent people they met, with many curious particulars.

"Much has been written on the structure of flowers, and it might seem almost superfluous to attempt to say anything more on the subject, but it is only within the last few years that a new literature has sprung up in which the authors have described their observations and given their interpretations of the uses of floral mechanisms, more especially in connection with the processes of fertilization." From Introduction

Sermon Bible (The): Genesis to II. Samuel. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1888. 17+500 p. D. cl., $1.50.
This new series, to comprise 12 volumes, embracing all the books of the Old and New Testaments, will give in convenient form the essence of the best homiletic literature of this generation. This volume, the first issued, is a specimen of the plan of the whole work. Under each text is given: 1. Outlines of important sermons by eminent preachers existing only in manuscript or periodicals, and thus inaccessible. 2. Less full outlines of sermons which have appeared in volumes which are not well known or easily obtained. 3. References to or very brief outlines of sermons which appear in popular volumes such as are likely to be in a preacher's library. 4. Full references to theological treatises, commentaries, etc., where any help is given to the elucidation of the text. Each volume contains at the end 24 blank pages for memorandum notes. Will be published at the rate of 2 volumes a year.

BUSINESS NOTES.

GRANVILLE, O.—Kussmaul & Shepardson have succeeded L. W. Perry, bookseller and stationer.

NEW YORK CITY.—The committee appointed in the Anderson & Krum Stationery Company matter recommend "that the creditors grant such extension of time for the payment of matured obligations as will enable the company to pay their accounts in full. If any hasty settlement is demanded the resources of the company are in such shape that a serious shrinkage will be inevitable. The indebtedness includes between two and three hundred accounts averaging less than $25 each. Ordinarily small claims of this sort might properly be paid in full at once; but as these accounts make a considerable sum in the aggregate, without being burdensome to any individual creditor, we feel warranted in suggesting that payment of accounts of less than $40 be deferred until the last of this year, and that until the company can get in shape to make more definite settlements, we recommend that the creditors consent to accepting a monthly payment of 5 per cent. of the amounts due them prior to August 18, payments to begin September 20. In the meantime the company will pay promptly at the end of thirty days for all current purchases. Your committee reserve the right to maintain an oversight of the progress of the business, and will undertake to report to the creditors, should there be, in their judgment, any change in the general situation." As the members of the committee, Messrs. D. A. Tower, Willy Wallach, E. J. Merriam, and W. B. Boorum, are among the largest of the merchandise creditors, it is reasonable to suppose that their report points to the surest way out of the difficulty, and one that promises satisfaction to all concerned. In the meantime the business of the company has suffered no interruption.

PIERCE CITY, Mo.—Langdon & Co., booksellers and stationers, have removed to this place from Moberly, Mo.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

A. J. HOLMAN & Co., Philadelphia, have just issued their revised catalogue of family and pulpit Bibles for the season of 1888-9, also their catalogue of selected styles of photograph albums of their own manufacture. The new catalogue of Bibles, which is fully illustrated, shows an unusually large number of new styles of quarto Bible bindings, all exceedingly attractive; especial attention being given to the cheaper line of Bibles, on many of which they employ the well-known "Fern Leaf" and "Broken Glass" patterns. They evidently believe in keeping fully abreast of the times, and show in their list a remarkable assortment of Bibles in bindings at prices which range from the very cheap quarto Bibles at $1.80 list, to the magnificent volumes printed in great primer type and bound with all the elegance known to the bookbinder's art. It is interesting to note that this house claims to employ more edge gilders than any other establishment in America. They have received most favorable and complimentary criticisms from those in the trade who, when in Philadelphia, have been interested in looking over their unique establishment, devoted as it is solely to the publishing of quarto Bibles and the manufacture of photograph albums. Mr. Holman has been fortunate in retaining the services of many of his expert workmen, in the various branches of his business, through long periods of time, so that there is a uniformity of excellence in the work produced by this house. The catalogues are sent gratis.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. JAMES R. OSGOOD is back from London for a short visit.

MR. OLIVER DITSON, the well-known publisher of music, is ill at Swampscott, Mass. He has had a stroke of paralysis.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 8, 1888.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

A POLITICAL OPPORTUNITY FOR THE TRADE.

It is a usual complaint that a Presidential year is bad for business, and particularly for the book business. There seems to be less occasion to fear a derangement of business this year than in any previous election for many years past; the transfer of power from one party to another has at least done away with the fear that the country would go to pieces when any such reversal of power took place. We say this not as a matter of politics—which has no place in this journal—but as a matter of congratulation to the business community. The book-trade, it would seem, is not likely to be hurt by the Presidential campaign of this year, except so far as it absorbs time which would otherwise be devoted to the reading of books. It is probable, however, that campaign reading takes time from ordinary newspaper reading rather than book reading, or perhaps takes hours which are not usually devoted to reading at all. Happily the Presidential election is over well before the Christmas season and the long evenings of winter, so that after the excitement has cooled down the people are as ready as ever to buy and to read books.

Whatever be the truth in this respect it is evident that the present is to be a reading campaign. A great issue has come before the people, which has a literature already considerable and rapidly increasing, and the campaign is sure to be one calling for careful thinking and the necessary reading. We are glad to congratulate the trade that an enterprising house, the Brentanos, has recognized this and has already made arrangements to turn it to account in its own interest, and that of the retail trade. Elsewhere will be found an announcement of an arrangement with both the Republican and Democratic National Committees for the sale through the trade of the Campaign Text-books which are the cyclopædias for the time being of the issues of the day.

The Republican and Democratic Campaign Books of this year are announced to be of a much more important sort than usual. It is quite a mistake to suppose that they are mere political compilations of no value outside the temporary demands of the politicians. This has been in a measure true of the publications of previous years, but it is to the credit of the National Committees of the present campaign that they have endeavored to present Text-books of real and permanent value. These works contain a great variety of facts and statistics which will make them of permanent value in political economy, and from the representative writings and speeches of the ablest men and best thinkers that each party can produce, presented in them, the public will get in concise and practical form a comprehensive statement of questions that agitate the country to-day, and are of permanent importance in other countries as well as in our own. If the enterprise of the Brentanos results in inducing citizens to "read the other side" as well as their own, they will have done a service to the country as well as to the trade. In these books each party has stated its points, cited its references, and summed up its case for the verdict of November 7. There is no place in this big country where there are not people who are interested in the subjects here treated. The opportunity thus given the trade has never been offered before and credit is due the Brentanos for their enterprise in the matter.

In addition to these campaign books other publishers and organizations are offering literature bearing on the questions of the campaign, which should also be handled by the trade. Messrs. G. P. Putnam's Sons announce a trade edition of the "Economic Fact Book," a statistical publication on the side of tariff reduction. There are several editions of the President's Message competing for favor in the trade. Messrs. Belford, Clarke & Co. and other houses have issued compilations of speeches and papers on the tariff question, and the topic is throughout a live one, of which the trade should take advantage. Besides this, several political organizations, such as the American Protective League, of this city, the American Industrial League, of Philadelphia, the Reform Club, of this city, and the New York Free Trade Club, are issuing publications, on which most of them would be willing to make sufficiently advantageous terms to the trade to enable a fair profit to be made on a sale of a portion of the supply. A capital list of books and articles on protection and free trade will be found in No. 3 of The Bibliographer, which every bookseller should have for counter use.

We speak of this, of course, as a matter of profit and not of politics; a wise bookseller will scarcely make the mistake of offering the public only the campaign literature on the side of his personal opinion. Booksellers who undertake this field should be very careful to have both sides represented on their counter.

We have often suggested that retailers overlook the advantages to be derived from outside solicitations of trade on the plan carried on by the subscription-book houses. It is true that to a great extent the regular bookseller is dependent on the customer who comes to him; he must do all in his power to offer him inducements to come; but he has too often been blind to the fact that there are times when or books as to which it would pay the local bookseller to turn subscription agent as far as personal or outside solicitation is concerned. The National Campaign Text-books can probably be handled successfully in this very way, and we suggest at any rate that the retail bookseller make the experiment, keep both books on the counter, let a clerk take a run through the place with them at business offices, at committee headquarters, and wherever voters are to be found, and in this way get good out of what is otherwise apt to be a dull season of the trade.

GERMANY'S NEW INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT LAW.

THE following is a verbatim translation from the Deutschen Reichsanzeiger of August 6, 1888, of the ordinance issued July 11 of this year, concerning the fulfilment of the agreement concluded at Bern, September 9, 1886, regarding the formation of an international union for the protection of literature and works of art:

"We, Wilhelm, by the grace of God, German Emperor, King of Prussia, etc., do decree in the name of the empire, and based upon the law of April 4, 1888, concerning the execution of an agreement concluded at Bern, September 9, 1886, regarding the formation of an international union for the protection of literature and works of art, after having been approved by the Bundesrath, as follows:

"§ 1. The following limitations have been placed upon those works published in any of the other provinces of the confederation which have not yet become public property at the time of the enforcement of this ordinance.

"(1) The printing of copies, which were in course of preparation when this ordinance came into force, may be completed; these copies as well as those which were complete at the time indicated may be distributed and sold. It is also decreed that up to the time indicated all existing material, such as stereotype plates, wood-cuts, and steel plates of any kind; as well as lithographic stones, may be used until December 31, 1891.

"(2) Works which have been published before the ratification of the agreement in any of the other provinces of the confederation are not entitled to the protection—as expressed in article 5 of the agreement—of having the exclusive privilege of translation against those translations which have been published in Germany partly or wholly at the time indicated.

"(3) Dramatic or dramatic-musical works which have been published or performed in any of the other provinces of the confederation, either in the original or in a translation, before the enforcement of the agreement, are not entitled to protection against illegal performances in the original or in a translation.

"§ 2. This ordinance will be enforced at the day of its promulgation. It will also hold good for the time passed since the enforcement of the agreement. After the promulgation of this decree (according to § 1, No. 1) the permission of distribution and the sale of copies is conditioned upon the affixing of a designated stamp. The stamping must be done November 1, 1888 at the latest. The specified decrees relating to the stamping as well as to the inventory of the stamped copies will be promulgated by the Chancellor of the Empire.

"§ 3. In case of the accession of other countries to this agreement, on the basis of article 18, the decrees of § 1 and § 2 are also to be applied. As to the time of the enforcement of this agreement: the time of accession to it is the time accorded. Calculated from this time the application of the decrees in § 1, No. 1, is granted for 4 years, and the stamping has to be accomplished within 3 months.

"AUTHORS' BOOK-HAWKING UNION."

THE London correspondent of the Book Buyer says that "the latest notion in the way of book-selling is an 'Authors' Book-Hawking Union,' to consist of a number of respectable and trustworthy boys, who shall perambulate the streets with baskets of books and sell them direct from the author. I do not see exactly how this will answer, though possibly it may be useful in working off unsalable back-stock at a reduced price. Undoubtedly these book-hawkers might be useful in the neighborhood of railway stations, for the following reason: At most of our book-shops there is a strong feeling in favor of the 'nimble ninepence'—that is to say, for cash, you universally get a discount of threepence on the shilling, but at the railway book-stalls they still persist in charging the published price. Thus, if you leave the buying of your book to the time of your departure by train, you usually have to pay five-and-twenty per cent. more than if you purchased it at an ordinary shop. In this case the book-hawkers would prove themselves to be of the highest service. It is a wonder why the railway companies do not themselves retain the lucrative and easy business of bookselling and journal-vending attached to all their stations. I have heard it rumored that steps will shortly be taken in this direction. If all the book stalls were in the hands of the railway companies, and they adopted the discount system, they would doubtless secure large profit for the shareholders."

BOOK-STEALING IN PARIS.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

BOOK-STEALING seems to have been elevated into a regular trade in Paris, for, according to a return drawn up by the Prefecture of Police, the number of persons prosecuted for this offence within the last two years has been 145, of whom only five have been acquitted, while 90 others have been sentenced to fine or imprisonment, and the remaining 50 are still awaiting their trial. The amount of bail lodged and of fees paid for hearing has exceeded £3000, these sums being exclusive of counsels' fees and other legal expenses. The report goes on to say that several publishers have received anonymously sums varying from £20 to £700 from persons who had stolen books from them, but who were impelled by either remorse or fear to make restitution. The publishers of illustrated works, encyclopædias, and dictionaries are the greatest sufferers. Upwards of ten thousand volumes have been seized, and are now collected at the Palais de Justice for distribution among their rightful owners.

THE "LONGFELLOW" OF THE BOOK-TRADE.

ABOUT twenty years ago there was launched into the world of books, from the press of Charles Scribner, a modest little volume of verses bearing the unassuming title of "Hopefully Waiting, and other verses." Unheralded the sombre-clad volume quite diffidently found its way to the bookshelf and slowly into the hands of the bookbuyer. Realizing as little as was expected in the way of pecuniary reward, its author nevertheless had the satisfaction of knowing that his words were received with gladness in many hearts, and that many downcast and hopeless souls were encouraged by its words and stimulated to new endeavor. Here and there the press, that mighty expression of the public feeling, was moved to hail the newcomer in that department of literature which, it seems to us, has always been the spectre of the book reviewer, and to give its hearty approval. The Evangelical Quarterly, among others, expressed the opinion that "the author is a man of taste and genius and some of the pieces will bear comparison with the poetry of Longfellow." As the years went by the volume slowly went out of print.

Hesitating long, the author was finally induced to reissue his book. Some poems which had been written since the first volume was published were added; and, again bearing the imprint of his late friend's firm, the volume, entitled this time simply "Verses," made its appearance. Though the author has a large circle of friends among his brethren in the book-trade we doubt whether any but those immediately associated with him were aware of the fact that such a book had been published. When we say that the author has a large circle of friends among his brethren in the book-trade, we think we fall short of the mark, and perhaps it would be more correct to say that every member of the trade is a friend of Mr. Anson D. F. Randolph, as truly as that he is the friend of every man who takes up the profession of a bookseller. There has never been a call made on that man in vain, whether for advice (which his rare experience so well enables him to confer), for assistance, or for consolation. Warm-hearted, honest in his convictions, impatient of wrong, ever ready to lend a hand in the uplifting of the standard of the profession of which he is so proud, a Christian gentleman in the truest acceptation of that much-abused name, Mr. Randolph, modest and retiring as he is, has gained for himself a reputation in the estimation of his fellow-men that will endure when monuments of brass and marble shall have fallen into the dust.

Though this may be apropos of nothing that immediately concerns the trade in a narrower sense, we think that we are not imposing too much upon the time of our readers, or encroaching too much on the space in our columns (which, even the most rigorous must admit, do not contain too much poetry), by making room for the following touching stanzas recently contributed by Mr. Randolph to the Sailor's Magazine:

MY SHIPS.

I.

Ah, years ago, no matter where,
Beneath what roof or sky,
I dreamed of days, perhaps remote,
When ships of mine that were afloat
Should in the harbor lie;
And all the costly freights they bore
Enrich me both in mind and store.

What dreams they were of argosies,
Laden in many a clime;
So stoutly built, so bravely manned,
No fear but they would come to land
At their appointed time;
And I should see them, one by one,
Close furl their sails in summer's sun.

And then, while men in wonder stood,
My ships I would unlade;
My treasures vast they should behold,
And to my learning or my gold
What honors would be paid!
And though the years might come and go,
I could but wiser, richer grow.

II.

In later years, no matter where,
Beneath what roof or sky,
I saw the dreams of days remote
Fade out, and ships that were afloat
As drifting wrecks go by;
And all the many freights they bore
Lay fathoms deep, or strewed the shore!

While ships of which I never thought
Were sailing o'er the sea;
And, one by one, with costlier load,
In safety all the voyage rode,
And brought their freights to me;
Then what I lost a trifle seemed,
And I was richer than I dreamed.

No wondering crowd, with envious eye,
Looked on my treasures rare;
Yet they were weightier far than gold;
They still increase, though I grow old,
And are beyond compare;
Would all the restless hearts I see
Had ships like these that came to me!

OBITUARY NOTES.

HARVEY BRADBURN LANE died August 28, at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., aged 75 years. His early life was spent in teaching. This he abandoned in 1860 to take a position as assistant editor of The American Agriculturist, which he filled for several years. For the last twenty years, however, he was engaged in selecting rare and valuable books for public and private libraries, in which work he became an authority with the book collectors of the United States.

Eclectic Physical Geography.

151 Cuts and Diagrams.

THE ECLECTIC PHYSICAL GEOGRAPHY differs widely from those in general use:

1. The Charts are distinct and graphically accurate. Each chart presents but a single set of physical features.
2. No scientific knowledge on the part of the young student is assumed.
3. The order of treatment is natural and logical.
4. Phenomena are not simply described, but are traced to proximate causes.
5. The treatment of Erosion is not dismissed with the usual brief paragraph. Nearly every chapter finds in erosion a cause or an effect.
6. It discards the theory that the secular cooling and contraction of the planet is the main cause of the present relief of the globe.
7. The chapters on Life, and on Weather and Climate, are full and in conformity with modern science.

Eclectic German Copy-Books.

A new and complete system of German penmanship, carefully arranged with a view to use in American schools. Engraved on copper in the best style; printed with care on excellent paper. Five Numbers. Wholesale and introduction price, 7 cents each.

To Whom it May Concern:

Brentano's, 5 Union Square, New York City, have been duly appointed as publishers of, and with full authority to handle the Republican Campaign Handbook for the Year 1888. They are the only agents authorized by this Committee to do so; and there is no other official party publication of a similar nature emanating from this Committee.

J. S. FASSETT, Secretary.

In no political campaign heretofore has the question at issue between the great political parties demanded so high a class of literature. Political science covers a vast field. Too much for any ordinary man to attempt to master. Both parties recognize this, as well as the fact, that upon a proper comprehension of the subject, as presented from their point of view, depends their failure or success. Hence their most able political scientists, their most able thinkers and writers, have been called upon to contribute to the different party text-books. No better guide can be secured, for a perfect and masterly representation of this intricate subject, than either of these works. It will be a future work of reference.

Advance-Guard of Western Civilization

By JAMES R. GILMORE ("Edmund Kirke"), author of "The Rear-Guard of the Revolution," "John Sevier as a Commonwealth-Builder," etc. With map, and portrait of James Robertson. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

CONTENTS : On the Outposts ; A Rain of Fire ; The Day Dawning ; A Raid upon the Creeks ; Dark Days upon the Cumberland ; The Spanish Complications ; The Treason of Wilkinson ; A Deceitful Peace ; A Storm on the Cumberland ; Captivity Among the Chickamaugas ; Spanish Machinations ; The Chickamauga Expedition ; Piomingo ; Conclusion.

This work is intended to be a full narrative of an episode which is perhaps the most unique and remarkable in American history—that of the settlement of Middle Tennessee. It is in a measure a continuation of the thrilling story told by the author in his two preceding volumes, "The Rear-Guard of the Revolution" and "John Sevier as a Commonwealth-Builder." The narrative is the result of eight years' careful study of early events in the Southwest, nearly four years of which were passed upon the ground where the events occurred.

The volumes, of which this is the third, cover, says the author in his preface, "a neglected period of American history, and they disclose facts well worthy the attention of historians—namely, that these Western men turned the tide of the American Revolution, and subsequently saved the newly-formed Union from disruption, and thereby made possible our present great republic. This should be enough to secure for their story an attentive hearing, had it not the added charm of presenting to view three characters—John Sevier, James Robertson, and Isaac Shelby—who are as worthy of the imitation of our American youth as any in their country's history."

Best Books.—Lowest Prices.

A Difference Between Cheap Books and Good Books Cheap.

The market has for the past two or three years been so full of books that looked cheap, and were cheap in every respect, that the advertiser "who has the advantage of every-day experience in a retail store" finds a growing demand, not for cheap books, but for Good Books Cheap. With a view to supplying this demand the following books have been made, and the fact that the first editions are already about exhausted is sufficient proof that the trade and public recognize the difference between a well-made book and a mean one.

THE READER'S SHAKESPEARE,

In eight octavo volumes, gilt top, uncut edges, tastefully bound in dark blue cloth, printed from large type, leaded, having explanatory notes and concordance, and illustrated with twenty-three steel-engravings and two photogravures, is the best set that can be offered. The List Price is $14.00, but the Net Price is so much less that it will pay you to find out, either from your jobber or direct.

Also

EMERSON'S ESSAYS.

FIRST SERIES.

SECOND SERIES.

This edition is better made than any you have heretofore handled. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, the set in a box or sold separately. List Price in cloth, $1.00 per volume; half calf, $1.50 per volume. The Net Prices have surprised every one who has examined the books.

THIS IS THE THIRD YEAR FOR

THE LIBRARY SHAKESPEARE.

Four volumes, octavo, gilt top, cut or uncut edges, best Text, Type, Paper, Illustrations. List Price, $10.00. If you have not had it, you have lost sales, and that means money.

The steady demand for good library editions of the standards accounts for the success of the Library Edition of Pepys' Diary. Four volumes, octavo, gilt top, uncut edges. List Price, $8.00. Four portraits on steel, uniform with Library Shakespeare.

There is a bogus incomplete edition of Leaves of Grass on the market. You are doing an injury to both the author and the purchaser if you sell it. The only complete edition bears the imprint of David McKay, Philadelphia.

If you have any customers interested in American Literature, don't forget about the limited edition of Charles Brockden Brown. Six volumes, small octavo, gilt top, uncut, all linen paper, genuine half vellum binding, $18.00, short discount.

DAVID McKAY, Publisher, Philadelphia.

Early Fall (1888) Announcements.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON.

NEW VOLUME (8th) OF THE "BOOK-LOVER'S LIBRARY."

The Book of Noodles.

Stories of Simpletons ; or, Fools and Their Follies. By W. A. COULSTON, making the 8th vol. of this Library, including : I., "How to Form a Library ;" II., "Old Cookery Books ;" III., "Modern Methods of Illustrating Books ;" IV., "Dedication of Books ;" V., "Gleanings in Old Garden Literature ;" VI., "Story of Some Famous Books ;" VII., "The Enemies of Books ;" Each vol. $1.25. Sold separately or in sets.

"NOODLE STORIES" is calculated to prove of value to the students of the History of Humor, the collector of jest-books, and the folk-lorist, as well as entertaining to the book-lover. The author has been engaged during many years in gathering materials, much of which is drawn from sources not generally accessible, and some not even generally known to exist, and has, it is believed, produced a volume which will be gladly welcomed in the series to which it belongs.

The Book-Worm:

An Illustrated Treasury of Old-Time Literature. Tastefully printed in old style, on antique paper, with numerous illustrations and ornamental embellishments. Octavo, cloth, $3.00.

"THE BOOK-WORM is a treasury of knowledge on old-time literature, and presents its readers with stores of wisdom on subjects which are attractive to the book-lover, giving him in a readable form much out-of-the-way and little-known information on the literature of the past. In its pages will be found chapters on Scarce Books, the works of Special Presses, First Editions and Unique Copies, and their former and present value; on the early Book Auctions and old catalogues; on Ancient Bookbinding and old Printing Presses, etc."

THE BOOK-WORM is a most valuable manual of information, and a useful work of reference for bibliographers and book-lovers; a very full index is added which puts this information at the ready command of the reader.

BY ARRANGEMENT AN ENTIRELY NEW WORK BY REV. C. H. SPURGEON. (Ready Oct. 1.)

The Cheque Book of the Bank of Faith:

BEING PRECIOUS PROMISES Arranged for Daily Use. With Brief Experimental Comments. Nearly 400 pages 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"God has given no pledge which he will not redeem, and encouraged no hope which he will not fulfil. To help my brethren to believe this, I have prepared this volume. The sight of the promises themselves is good for the eyes of faith; the more we study the words of grace, the more grace shall we derive from the words. To the cheering Scriptures I have added testimonies of my own, the fruit of trial and experience."—From Author's Preface.

NEW VOLUME, UNIFORM WITH "TALKS WITH YOUNG MEN," ETC. (Ready Oct. 1.)

Sure to Succeed.

By J. THAIN DAVIDSON. 12mo, cloth, illuminated, $1.25.

"These talks are direct, practical, and pungent, such as young men like to hear. They are crowded with points of counsel and direction; they will be invaluable to any young man, and all so plainly and forcibly told, and so fully illustrated, that one can but pursue the reading of them to the end."—Spurgeon.

A NEW AND SUPERB EDITION OF (from New Plates, Large Type)

"Here we have a really great book on an important, large, and attractive subject—a book full of loving, wholesome, profound thoughts about the fundamentals of Christian faith and practice."—British and Foreign Evangelical Review.

NEW AND IMPORTANT BIBLE WORK, EMBRACING THE WHOLE OF THE SACRED SCRIPTURES. NOW READY.—Genesis to 2 Samuel—Vol. I., containing some hundreds of Outlines.

The Sermon Bible.

Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.50. Each volume complete and sold separately.

This series will give in convenient form the essence of the best homiletic literature of this generation. As yet the preacher desirous of knowing the best that has been said on a text has had nothing to turn to but a very meagre and inadequate Homiletical Index. In this he is often referred to obsolete or second-rate works, while he misses reference to the best sources. The new SERMON BIBLE will take account of the best and greatest preachers, and will be compiled from manuscript reports and fugitive periodical sources, as well as from books. Many of the best sermons preached by eminent men are never printed in book-form. It will thus contain much that will be new to its readers.

Lectures on Preaching. (Ready in October.)

By the late Rev. JOHN KER, D.D., with Preface by Rev. WM. M. TAYLOR, D.D. 1 vol., crown 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

CONTENTS:—1. Preachers and Preaching—Advantages of the Study.—2. Ancestry of Preaching in the Old Testament.—3. The Earliest Christian Preaching.—4. Oriental Preaching from 200-800 A.D.—5. Later Oriental Churches.—6. Western Church Preaching, 200-430 A.D.—7. Western Church Preaching, Middle Ages.—8. Preaching Before the Reformation.—9. German Preaching—Luther.—10. Preaching from Luther to Spener.—11. Spener: His Work and Preaching.—12. Pietism: Its History and Lessons.—13. The Offshoots of Pietism—Bengel and Zinzendorf.—14. The Preaching of the Illuminism (Aufklärung).—15. Hidden Life in the Illuminism.—16. Schleiermacher—Transition.—17. Nietzsche and Tholuck—Meditating School.—18. Unbroken Testimony—Hofacker and Sturms.—19. Biblical Researches—Stier and Krummacker.—20. Recent and Present German Preaching.—21. Lessons for Our Preaching.

NEW EDITION, IN NEW STYLES OF FINE BINDINGS, OF THE SMALLEST COMPLETE SHAKESPEARE.

(Now Ready.)

Illustrated Pocket Edition of Shakespeare's

Dramatic Works and Poems, with Glossary and Life. By J. TALFOURD BLAIR. Carefully edited from the best texts. Illustrated with 40 Line Block reproductions of Westall and others. 8 vols., crown 32mo, 4050 pages, from new nonpareil type.

Strongly bound in cloth, gilt back, $3.75; French morocco, $6.00; alligator morocco, $7.50; light and russia calf and full turkey morocco, $10.00; full tree calf, light, $12.50; red morocco, grain, $8.00.

Each style in a neat box, uniform with bindings.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights

American state reports, v. 1; containing the cases of general value and authority, subsequent to those contained in the "American decisions" and the "American reports," decided in the courts of last resort of the several states; sel., reported, and annotated by A. C. Freeman. San Francisco, Bancroft-Whitney Co., 1888. c. 3-973 p. O. shp., $4.

Embraces the cases as originally reported in the following reports: California, v. 72; Connecticut, v. 54; Delaware, Houston, v. 5; Florida, v. 22; Kansas, v. 37; Maine, v. 79; Maryland, v. 67; Massachusetts, v. 145; Michigan, v. 60, 61; Missouri, v. 92; Minnesota, v. 36; New York, v. 107. There are over 130 p. of original notes added on important subjects. The initial volume of a series of reports which commence at the period where the "American reports" were discontinued, and are designed to extend into the future without limit. The number of volumes will be limited to six a year.

Bamford, Mary E. Marie's story: a tale of the days of Louis XIV. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1888.] c. 3-145 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.

A touching story of the suffering brought on a group of young children by the persecution of the Huguenots, which followed the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. Three brothers and a sister escaped when their parents were arrested and their home burned, and fled from Cevennes to Bordeaux, and thence to Amsterdam. The facts referred to are carefully verified and the references to the authorities are given.

*Barlow, J. L. Endless being; or, man made for eternity; with an introduction by Rev. P. S. Henson. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell, 1888. D. cl., 75 c.

Boynton, Julia Holmes. The story of little Johnny Twoboys. Bost., Congregational S. S. and Pub. Soc., 1888. c. 1+57 p. sq. il. D. cl., 60 c.

A little book in large, clear type and with "taking" little illustrations, telling what a time Johnny Twoboys had with Good and Bad.

*Bradley, Mary. Lillian's step-mother. Phil., American Baptist Pub. Soc., 1888. 304 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Browning, Oscar. Aspects of education: a study in the history of pedagogy; ed. by Nicholas Murray Butler. N. Y., Industrial Education Assoc., 1888. c. 129-176 p. O. (Monographs, v. 1, no. 5.) pap., 20 c.

The several chapters of this monograph appeared as separate articles in Science, during 1887 and 1888. After careful revision by the author, they are now reproduced as a single treatise, and offered as a valuable contribution to the critical history of educational doctrines.

Burnett, Frances Hodgson. Editha's burglar: a story for children; il. by H: Sandham. Bost., Jordan, Marsh & Co., 1888. c. 5-64 p. sq. D. cl., net, 45 c.

This pretty story of Mrs. Burnett's has aroused a new interest, through its having been dramatized and having had little Elsie Leslie personate its heroine. This edition contains a number of full-page pictures, one being taken from an original photograph of Elsie Leslie.

Cameron, Mrs. H. Lovett. A devout lover: a novel. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. 2+320 p. S. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 89.) pap., 25 c.

The heroine and the mystery are introduced in the first chapters. Madame de Bréfour, an Englishwoman and a Catholic, lives in an out-of-the-way house near the village of Coddesham, England. She is supposed to be married to a Frenchman, but no one can penetrate the mystery of her life, and she refuses all society. Geoffrey Dane, the son of the vicar, falls in love with Madame, and succeeds by stratagem in making her acquaintance. This love affair is the chief theme of the book. Geoffrey's life in London, as a clerk in a large commercial house, with scenes from village life, form the background.

Campaign text-book of the Democratic party of the United States for the Presidential election of 1888; prepared by direction of the National Democratic Committee; [by G: F. Parker and others]. N. Y., Brentano's, 5 Union Sq., [1888.] c. 5+656 p. O. pap., $1.

"An attempt has been made in this text-book to present all the ideas and policies which the Democratic party has exemplified in the administration of the affairs of the government during the past four years, and to illustrate the principles of the party as established during all the years of its growth and history."—Preface. In 41 chapters are embraced the Democratic platforms of 1888, notifications of candidates, and sketches of Cleveland and Thurman; the speeches, letters, and messages of President Cleveland complete from 1881 to 1888; civil service reform: a résumé of the departments; the vetoed pension-bills, etc., etc.: with over two hundred pages devoted specifically to the tariff question.

Carter, Nellie M. Two girls abroad. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., 1888. c. 244 p. D. cl., $1.

The trip abroad is the regulation trip, England, Scotland, Paris, Switzerland, the Rhine, etc. The girls keep diaries and write frequent letters home, in which they give bright pictures of their little vacation outing, taken without any chaperone.

Catherwood, Mary Hartwell. The secrets at Roseladies; il. by W. A. Rogers. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1888. 5-187 p. il. D. cl., $1.

This charming story of life on the Wabash, which originally appeared as a serial in Wide Awake, will be read by boys and girls with equal pleasure, for the action of the story is pretty well divided between the two. The boys will be immensely entertained with the adventures of the four young treasure-seekers. The girls' secret, which is of a very different character, is just as amusing in its way. The character of old Mr. Roseladies is capitally drawn, and the account of his journey to the depot after Aunt Jane's trunk is really mirth-provoking.

Champney, Mrs. Lizzie W. Howling Wolf and his trick-pony. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1888. c. 3-252 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Howling Wolf is a Ute Indian boy of fourteen, who is the possessor of a pony which he has taught many curious tricks, and which is so swift and clever, that many of the Indians look upon it as enchanted. Howling Wolf's family is encamped near a military post, and one of the officers by a trick secures the pony and claims it for his own. It is stolen one night from the corral by its young owner, who flees with it to the Navajoes, and is pursued by a detachment of cavalry, headed by the officer, and overtaken. He soon escapes, however, and, after a series of thrilling adventures, finds himself among the Apaches, who are on the war-path under Geronimo. At last he is again made a prisoner, his pony shot, and finally he is sent East with other Indian boys to the Indian school at Carlisle, Pa., where the author leaves him.

Dawson, G: Francis, (comp.) The republican campaign text-book for 1888. N. Y., published for the Republican National Committee, by Brentano's, 5 Union Sq., [1888.] c. 9+246 p. O. pap., 50 c.

Contents: The national platforms, 1888; The tariff question, its history, legislation, votes, etc., from 1789 to 1888 inclusive; The protected American farmer; The protected American laborer; Condition of unprotected labor in Europe; The Chinese question; The homestead question; The public land-grants, forfeitures, etc.; Pensions and bounties; Democratic hatred of Union soldiers; Civil service reform; Democratic rascality and Republican honesty; The fisheries and retaliation; statistical tables. Mr. Dawson is late librarian of the U. S. Senate, and comp. of the Republican campaign text-books for 1878, 1880, and 1884.

Dumas, Alex. La tulipe noire. N. Y., W: R. Jenkins, 1888. 304 p. D. pap., 35 c.

This story, which hinges upon the celebrated tulip mania in Holland, is one of Dumas' brightest and most interesting romances, and has long been a favorite with schools, as it is pure in relation, strong in character, entertaining in narration, and historical and picturesque in its atmosphere.

Lowndes, Cecilia Selby. Both sides of the river: a tale. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1888. 3+342 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.50.

Madge Dickson is the daughter of a clergyman with a large family. To help him educate her brothers she accepts the position of governess in her uncle's (Mr. Fleming's) family to his grandchild Rica. Her uncle is wealthy and has a beautiful home. On the other side of the river from "Honesworth" is the country-seat of Mr. Hammond, his dearest friend, and it is Mr. Hammond's supposed son Maurice who becomes the great influence in Madge's life. Rica is the only child of Mr. Fleming's son Fred, who has made an unfortunate marriage and died early. Madge's attempts to protect Rica from her undesirable relatives on her mother's side, gets her into quite a tangle of trouble.

McKee, T: H., and Curry, W. W., eds. Protection echoes from the capitol. N. Y., G. S. Fellows & Co., 25 Bond St., [1888.] c. 590 p. O. pap., $1.

*Morris, C: Broken fetters; the light of ages on intoxication; a historical view of the drinking habits of mankind from the earliest times to the present. N. Y., The Amies Pub. Co., [1888.] 602 p. il. O. cl., subs., $3; hf. seal rus., $4; full seal rus., $5.

*Morris, Ramsay. Crucify her: a story of now. N. Y., The Eclectic Pub. Co., 1888. D. pap., 50 c.

Otis, Ja. Little Joe. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1888.] c. 3-246 p. il. D. cl., $1.

"Little Joe" is a story something in the "Tobey Tyler" line, and by the same author. The hero is a little news-boy, alone in the world, yet with plenty of pluck and perseverance. He is a newsboy not because he wishes to be, but because he is obliged to be. He has to make a living, and that is the only way open to him. He has push, and circumstances aid him, so that he at last finds himself out of the contaminating air of the city streets, on a large farm, where he finds life well worth living. It is a bright, healthy story, which will be read eagerly by boys from ten to fifteen.

*Parker, H. W. The spirit of beauty: essays, scientific and æsthetic. N. Y., J. B. Alden, 1888. 252 p. D. cl., 40 c.

Phillips, Mrs. Alfred. Benedicta. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1888. 4 + 442 p. S. (Lippincott's ser. of select novels, no. 88.) pap., 25 c.

A young girl brought up by her widowed father in the midst of old servants, naturally turns out an entirely unconventional character. Such is "Benedicta." To obtain the polish and restraint society demands, her father places her with Mrs. Blake, a lady of limited means who has raised a large family. The Blakes figure largely in Benedicta's life, and her sweet, honest nature influences all about her. Her father's second marriage, her own love for Gresham Blake, Olive Blake's unfortunate attachment to a married man, Mrs. Blake's impecuniosity and frequent debts, are but a few of the interesting parts of this novel.

*Poor, H. V. Poor's manual of the railroads of the United States for 1888. 21st annual number. N. Y., H. V. & H. W. Poor, 1888. 1500 p. map, O. cl., $6.

*Ritter, J. P., jr. Marle; a seaside episode; il. by Coultaus. N. Y. and Chic., Belford, Clarke & Co., 1888. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Ruffin, Frank G. The negro as a political and social factor. Richmond, Va., J. W. Randolph & English, 1888. 32 p. O. pap., 10 c.

The bias of this pamphlet is found in its concluding paragraph: "My task has been to prove to the people of the south, and to such of the north as choose to examine the evidence, what sort of man the negro is, and what sort of man he is not, and never can be; and therein to warn these Republican politicians and those meddlesome philanthropists that when they commence a policy which will inflame the negro to attempt the destruction of our society, they will be regarded as hostile citizens, and as much worse than foreign enemies, as a civil war is worse than a foreign war."

Rupert, W. W. A guide to the study of the history and the constitution of the United States. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1888. c. 3-130 p. D. cl., 75 c.

The opening 50 pages are devoted to United States history, a skeleton outline being given, with the titles of books that are best to read on special topics. The remainder of the book is taken up with the constitution, which is given in full each clause being followed by an explanatory paragraph. The little book is simply designed as a supplementary work in connection with any text-book on United States history, either for students or teachers.

Secker, Rev. W. The nonsuch professor in his meridian splendor; or, the singular actions of sanctified Christians; with an introduction by Rev. T. L. Cuyler, D. D., [new issue]. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., 1888. 367 p. D. cl., $1.25.

First published over fifty years ago. The book describes a consistent Christian, why he should be so, and how he may become so. Every reason given is based upon a Bible text. The responsibility of those preparing sermons is also dwelt on. The author's similes and metaphors are unusually telling.

Shakespeare, W. Complete works [Reader's ed.], with notes by Malone, Steevens, and others, together with a biography, concordance of familiar passages, index of characters, and glossary of obsolete terms. Phil., D. McKay, 1888. 8 v., 48 + 17-340; 409; 338; 305; 345; 316; 408; 443 p. il. and por. D. cl., $14. hf. Amer. cl., $18; three-fourths English cl., $25.

The il. by Smirk and other artists are steel-engravings and photogravures. The text is that of Malone and Steevens, recognized as one of the most complete. All the poems and sonnets are included. The volumes are well bound and printed from large, open-faced type on first-class paper. The design of the concordance is not to give a complete concordance of Shakespeare's words, but rather to select all the desirable quotations and insert them under what was the most prominent word, thus avoiding endless duplicating and the inserting of thousands of trivial passages.

*Shaw, E. R. The pot of gold: a story of Fire Island beach; il. by Hatheway and Graves. N. Y. and Chic., Belford, Clarke & Co., 1888. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Trowbridge, Miss C. M. Changing places: how one boy climbed up, while another slipped down. N. Y., American Tract Soc., [1888.] c. 217 p. il. D. cl., 90 c.

Robert Jenkins, the son of a rich widow, and Lewis Fleming, the son of a poor intemperate man, are introduced in their Connecticut home when about fifteen. Both boys go into business and Lewis gets ahead, marries, becomes partner, gets rich and finally helps his former chum to rise from a life of intemperance and become a useful man also.

*Waite, Arthur E., ed. Elfin music: an anthology of English fairy poetry; selected and arranged with an introduction by A. E. Waite. N. Y., T. Whittaker, 1888. 273 p. sq. S. cl., 40 c.

TRAVEL.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 15-22, 1888.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

THE TRADE OUTLOOK.

THERE has not been for a long while so good a feeling in the Presidential year throughout the book-trade as is reported at present. The announcements for the current year, which will be found in full elsewhere in this special number, are certainly not less than usual, and the only criticism which the bookseller and the bookbuyer will be apt to make upon them is that they announce more items than the one can possibly handle or the other possibly read. All the year, while other people have been taking their vacation, the publishers have been busy in planning and working out attractions for the fall and holiday trade. In fact, the difficulty is that our publishers nowadays keep ahead of our authors and fall back on presenting old standbys in new shape by remaking books in new combinations as well as presenting really fresh and original books. This condition of things is not likely to be altered until an international copyright law gives our own authors more encouragement than they have now. The hope that this will be passed in time to go into operation in the year 1888 has now been abandoned; but it is yet to be hoped that the year will not go by without a successful attempt to put such a law on our statute-books. After the Presidential election, and with the opening of the new session, a fresh attempt will be made to again interest our legislators in this question.

The condition of the retail trade throughout the country seems to be about as usual; there is no relief as yet from the evils from which the booksellers have chronically been suffering. On the other hand, the people of the United States have not ceased to buy books because the trade has had reason to grumble, and with our increasing population, sales of books undoubtedly increase, although the trade is not what it should be. When the book-trade has a fair chance under a better trade system from top to bottom, it will then be a business of which every member of it, be he of high or low degree, may well be proud. Until then the bookseller must make the best of it he can.

As usual, the announcements for the fall and holidays are scheduled by subject in our lists and by name of publisher in our reading-matter columns. Going carefully over both, the bookseller will be enabled to present his customers with a very good knowledge of what he will have to lay before them in the next few months.

It is suggested that the book-trade should not be behind the other callings which have so heartily and generously coöperated in doing what can be done to aid the yellow fever sufferers in Florida. The suggestion is the more worthy of attention because it comes to us from Mr. H. B. Barnes, the Treasurer on behalf of our trade of the Hospital Sunday collection, who has already done so much good work in these directions, and the house of A. S. Barnes & Co. heads the list with $100. Any contributions of which we are advised will be acknowledged in these columns and notified to the authorities at Jacksonville, and the funds will be collected and transmitted in due time. Checks sent us should be made payable to the order of James M. Schumacher, who is the chairman of the Yellow Fever Relief Fund at Jacksonville.

THE "TRADE LIST ANNUAL, 1888," of which we have now delivered most of those called for by advance subscriptions, contains the lists this year of 178 publishers and includes above 250 pages more than last year, although the considerable stationery catalogue of Anderson & Krum does not appear in this volume. The present issue is the most representative for some years: with the exception of the catalogues of Cassino, Lovell, Knox, Lea, and Ward & Drummond, few catalogues of importance will be missed, while among the additions over last year are the Alden, Cassell, Cupples & Hurd, Gottsberger, Hubbard, Longmans, Potter, and Van Nostrand catalogues, which last has been missing from the Annual since 1879, to the no small grumbling of the trade. Both Messrs. Macmillan & Co. and Scribner & Welford have their full catalogues this year instead of partial ones. We should be obliged if those intending to order the Annual would send in their orders at once.

CHARLES T. DILLINGHAM'S NEW QUARTERS.

We have had occasion to refer from time to time to the enterprise of Mr. C. T. Dillingham. In this issue we print a view of the new quarters occupied by him since the spring, which marks not only another step upwards geographically, but also in the enlargement of his business. His new store affords him better warehouse room and space for the display of his immense stock, and gives him greater facilities for the prompt despatch of all business intrusted to him, from a single "pick up" to that of one hundred cases, or from one volume to the thousand. He is now the special agent of fifteen important publishing firms, besides being the exclusive agent in New York of Belford, Clarke & Co., of whose stock he carries a large and complete line.

NORTH CAROLINA BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE.

THE N. C. B. and S. Board of Trade held their annual session at Wilmington, N. C., on Aug. 28-31, 1888. Nearly four-fifths of the regular dealers in the State were represented by proxy or in person, and the entire Board were united in their intention to accomplish the objects of the organization.

The President, Eugene G. Harrell (A. Williams & Co., Raleigh), presided over the session, and Mr. E. S. Hoyt of Washington, was elected Secretary in place of Mr. W. A. Muse, of Durham, who had resigned on account of a change of business.

Among the matters of business transacted was a petition to the Southern Freight Traffic Association to create new classification for released shipments of goods in the line as follows: Books, 4th class; stationery, 6th class; ink in wood, glass, or stone, 6th class; school-slates, 6th class. The reasons given are that at most points in the South where facilities for transportation are small all the profits are consumed by the freight charges.

A resolution was also adopted asking publishers to withdraw from circulation in North Carolina all wholesale price-lists of school-books, except to the regular dealers. And when lists of school-books are issued for the public or teachers they contain retail prices on a basis of wholesale prices with one-fifth added.

A considerable amount of executive business was transacted looking to the protection of the trade from various abuses and a general improvement of business plans and methods.

The Board of Trade has already proven of great benefit to the dealers, and is likely to result in much more good in many ways where reform is sadly needed.

The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year, Eugene G. Harrell, Raleigh, President; P. Heinsberger, Wilmington, Vice-President; E. S. Hoyt, Washington, Secretary; M. E. Robinson, Goldsboro, Asst. Secretary; M. E. Howard, Greensboro, Treasurer; J. B. Whitaker, Jr., Durham, Corresponding Secretary. Executive Committee: E. G. Harrell, Raleigh, Chairman; Theo. Buerbaum, Salisbury; S. W. Paisley, Reidsville; Rev. A. T. Latta, Monroe; M. C. Ball, Greensboro; P. W. Mellich, Elizabeth City.

The next session will be held at Ocracoke Beach on second Tuesday in August, 1889.

OBITUARY.

RICHARD ANTHONY PROCTOR.

RICHARD ANTHONY PROCTOR was born in the district of London, called Chelsea, on March 23, 1837. He was a delicate child, and for this reason was taught at home until his eleventh year. In 1848 he was sent to a large academy, and there remained until his father's death necessitated his withdrawal. This sorrow was followed by a complicated series of suits in chancery concerning a large estate which would have come into his father's possession had he lived a little longer. The young man determined that later in life he would gain a university education, but for the moment entered as clerk in a bank, devoting all his leisure time to the study of mathematics, in which he had always led his class

After a little more than a year, his mother having come into a small fortune, Mr. Proctor became a student at King's College, London. At the Christmas examinations, when scarcely eighteen, he held the first place in his class in mathematics, history, literature, classics, divinity, French, and German. His mother died at that time, and her loss so affected her son that he abandoned mathematics, in which he had always studied hard because his mother took such pride in his achievements. In 1860 he graduated and in the same year married. Upon the death of his first child he returned to the study of mathematics to distract his mind from the blow. That same year he published a paper on "Double Stars," and ever after was a most prolific writer. In 1866 Mr. Proctor lost all his money, and depended entirely upon his pen for the rest of his life. In 1870 he achieved his first notable success with his "Other Worlds Than Ours." He did much to popularize astronomy by his lectures. He visited America for this purpose in 1873 and 1875. After the death of his first wife he married a lady from Missouri, and in consequence settled permanently in America. Mr. Proctor was a man of genial personality and most bright and versatile. He even employed his science of figures to poker, whist, and horse-races, and wrote some little books on the science of chances. His works are too many to give the entire list. The most known are: "Saturn and its System," "Gnomonic Star Atlas," "Handbook of the Stars," "Constellation Seasons," "Sun Views of the Earth," "Charts of Mars," "Half Hours with the Telescope," "Half Hours with the Stars," "Other Worlds than Ours," etc. Most of his books have been published in this country, and the names most frequently seen on his title-pages are Appleton, Lippincott, and Putnam. Mr. Proctor was member of many scientific societies, and an acknowledged authority throughout the world. The doctors diagnosed the disease of which he died as yellow fever, contracted during a recent trip to the South. He died on the 12th in New York City.

COMMUNICATIONS.

"FERN LEAF" AND "BROKEN GLASS" PATTERNS.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10, 1888.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

GENTLEMEN: In your review of our catalogue you say, "On many of which they employ the well-known 'Fern Leaf' and 'Broken Glass' patterns."

This is an error. On many of the cheap Bibles we have new patterns of bindings and only on two of the cheapest of them all do we use the well-known patterns alluded to.

Will you kindly correct in your next issue and greatly oblige, very truly yours,

A. J. HOLMAN & Co.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

PHILADELPHIA is to have a high-class weekly journal for young folks, similar in scope and tone to St. Nicholas and The Youth's Companion of Boston. A well-known writer of juvenile literature will be its editor, and already many prominent contributors and illustrators have promised their support.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

A NEW volume of poems by Mr. Swinburne is in press in London and will be published soon.

THE POPE, assisted by Abbot Pesento, as editor, is said to be writing a history of Rome in the Middle Ages.

"THE COUNTESS EVA" is the title of a new story by J. H. Shorthouse to be published by Macmillan & Co. before the end of the present year.

MR. LELAND is preparing a revised edition of his "Ballads of Hans Breitman," in which will be included a number of new Anglo-German pieces.

THE poems and letters of the late David Gray, the poet and journalist of Buffalo, are to be published in two volumes this fall. A biographical sketch by J. N. Larned (not Lamed, as our exchanges have uniformly printed it), of the Buffalo Library, will be included.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ATLANTIC, IA.—James M. Bursen, bookseller, has sold out.

BALTIMORE, MD.—M. J. Des Forges, the well-known bookseller and stationer, sold his business on the 1st inst. to Wm. V. Pippin, who has been managing the same for him for the last eight years. Mr. Pippin will continue the business at the old stand under his own name.

FRESNO, CAL.—Thomas Yost, bookseller, has been burnt out.

GRIFFIN, GA.—Brawner, Deane & Co. succeed Jas. M. Brawner, bookseller. Mr. Brawner will give his personal attention to the business until the 1st of January next, when he will give his services to cotton manufacturing, in which he has been interested for a number of years.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—It is reported that J. W. Anvelink, bookseller, has had his business closed up by the sheriff.

WATERTOWN, WIS.—We learn from the Western Stationer that Wm. Schoppe's book and stationery store was closed on an execution August 25, by Sheriff J. D. Bullock. Liabilities amount to $3000, with assets estimated at $4000. August Niedermeyer, of Milwaukee, is the principal creditor, his claim amounting to $2212.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

MR. F. W. CHRISTERN'S new catalogue of standard French books is not only tastefully and neatly printed, but admirably arranged so as to give in alphabetical order a guide to the leading French authors in fiction and belles lettres, with the titles and prices of their works. The catalogue is in fact a "Books of All Time" of French literature (though without notes) and will be a capital guide both to dealers in, and readers of, French literature. Indeed, it would be well for those booksellers who do not keep a stock of French books to have it on their counters as an order list from which they can answer questions of chance customers as to French books and fill such orders as may reach them. A brief list of dictionaries and encyclopædias is printed on the cover.

DESCRIPTIVE SUMMARY OF THE FALL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

THE descriptive summary which here follows presents as usual, in its alphabetical arrangement by publishers, a survey of the entire field, so far as the necessary information is at hand. Other books, not yet fully determined upon, will find mention in subsequent issues. In our announcement lists proper, the books will be found arranged by classes, while the advertising pages will afford further detailed information as to prices, sizes, styles, etc.

THE ALDINE BOOK PUBLISHING CO., Boston, will bring out "The Ebers Commentary," consisting of photogravure plates illustrating the best-known scenes in Ebers' great novels, which have made Egyptian history and Eastern life so interesting. Descriptive text accompanies the plates. The well-known "America Illustrated" will receive a companion volume in "Europe Illustrated," which is said to be fully as attractive as its predecessor. A new volume of "Young America," made up of the best things from "Chatterbox," may also be looked for, and its enthusiastic editor, Mr. Frederick I. Davis, promises it shall be fully as good as the last.

ALLEN & BACON have in preparation "Charadena's Second Course," and "Exercises for Advanced Pupils," etc., by the same; Xenophon's "Anabasis," edited by Professors F. W. Kelsey and A. C. Zenos; also, "A Short German Course," containing Grammar and Exercises, by Prof. H. G. C. Brandt, of Hamilton College, N. Y.

THE AMERICAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION will issue shortly "The Christian Unity of Capital and Labor," by H. W. Cadman, the $1000 prize book, interesting alike to employer and employee, abounding in facts carefully compiled from governmental and other trustworthy sources, and made interesting by argument and illustration, bringing out the rights and duties of both capital and labor in vigorous language; "Biblical Antiquities," a handbook for seminaries, Sunday-schools, and all readers of the Bible, a trustworthy, scholarly, and instructive book compiled by Prof. E. Cone Bissell from the latest accepted results of scientific study and exploration; "Home Work by the Rivers of Eden," a narrative of the scenery, people, and life in the valleys of the Euphrates and Tigris Rivers, as seen in twenty-five years of mission work, by the Rev. M. O. Parmelee, of the American Board of Missions; and "Old Stories with New Lessons," in which Benjamin B. Comegys, a busy bank president and man of business, tells once more the "old stories" of some of the most noted characters of the Bible, giving them new and useful meanings for the delight and profit of our day and generation. The publishers are fortunate in having secured a book by the late Rev. Richard Newton, which they will entitle "Heroes of the Early Church," telling for children the story of each of the great fathers of the early church, from Clement to Augustine. The International Sunday-school lessons for the first half of 1889 will again take up the Gospel of St. Mark, to which an entire year was devoted not many years ago. In view of this, three books by Rev. Edwin W. Rice are made ready: the regular "Scholar's Handbook in the International Lessons for 1889," covering the Old Testament half year also, and prepared with the skill which has made it for sixteen successive years invaluable to Sunday-school teachers; the "People's Question-Book on Mark," containing forty-eight lessons, covering every verse of the Gospel in consecutive order; and a revised edition of the author's "Pictorial Commentary on Mark," with some new matter. "The Golden Text-Book for 1889," giving also many valuable hints and facts for Sunday-school teachers, is also nearly ready. "Blossoms from a Believer's Garden" are culled from the prose writings of Frances Ridley Havergal; "In Safe Hands," by Mary Hubbard Howell, introduces Jewish characters in good social positions and points out how they are influenced by Christianity; and "The Story of Moses" is written by Mrs. Mary A. Hallock, the wife of the late Dr. Hallock, of the American Tract Society. There will also be a revised edition of "Cloe Lankton" bringing the life of this remarkable sufferer down to 1888.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOC. announce two pretty booklets for the fast approaching holiday season: "The Sea is His" will have words of comfort for sea and shore, by Susan A. Brown, printed in ten colors and gold, giving views of sea and shore and sea-mosses interspersed with Bible texts and verses from the poets; and "Garment of Praise" will be a monotint booklet by Helen P. Strong, author of "His Abiding Presence," composed of the words of church services illustrated by harmonious designs and neatly gotten up with covers in colors and gold. The International S. S. Lessons for the year 1889 devote half the term to St. Mark's Gospel, and teachers will find a useful aid in their preparation in "Studies in St. Mark's Gospel," by Rev. C. S. Robinson, which will be ready very soon. A "Pictorial Wall Roll" (13 x 20 inches) will have thirty-two full-page pictures mounted on walnut roller and will be useful and ornamental for Sunday-school furniture. For young people's home reading and for Sunday-school libraries the following announcements are made: "Judge Havisham's Will," by I. T. Hopkins; a story boys will enjoy by the author of "Good Times Girls;" "Margie at the Harbor-Light," by Rev. E. A. Rand, a sequel to "Her Christmas and her Easter;" "Changing Places," by Miss C. M. Trowbridge, who tells how one boy climbed up and another slipped down, and gives boys many useful hints how to succeed in life; "Bernie's Light," by Minnie E. Kenney; "From the Forecastle to the Pulpit," a new edition of Rev. C. J. Jones' popular story; "Dear Old Stories Told Once More," forty Bible Stories by Faith Latimer, with full-page illustrations; "Stories Told by a Doll," in handsome chromo cover; and "Apples of Gold," with two hundred pictures, four of which are colored.

THE AMIES PUBLISHING CO., 17 Murray St., N. Y., are issuing the edition of Shakespeare edited by William Cullen Bryant assisted by Evert A. Duyckinck, which was first published in twenty-five parts, in three sumptuous volumes with one hundred photogravure illustrations from the original paintings of F. O. C. Darley and Alonzo Chappel. The house will also make ready a bound edition of "America's Standard Shakespeare," originally brought out in fifty-six parts. The text of this edition was carefully collated and compared with the editions of Halliwell, Knight, Collier, and others, with the comprehensive Life of Shakespeare by Charles Knight. The work is illustrated with numerous steel-engravings from original drawings, chiefly portraits in character of the most distinguished American actors. It is printed on toned and calendered paper made expressly for the work, and is sold in various styles of binding at remarkably low prices. The second and concluding volume of Benson J. Lossing's "Our Country," a household history of the United States, with illustrations by F. O. C. Darley drawn especially for the work, will also be ready. "The Household Book of Nature," containing descriptions of the animal kingdom, edited by Hugh Craig, of Trinity College, Cambridge, from the writings of Audubon, Wallace, Brehm, Wood, and others, published in parts, is now complete and will be sold in bound volumes. A valuable work for those interested in temperance reform movements will be "Broken Fetters," by Charles Morris, with numerous realistic and appropriate illustrations by F. M. Howarth, a work said to exhaust the subject of intoxication from historical, political, and social standpoints.

W. H. ANDERSON & Co. will issue Whittaker's "Annotated Ohio Probate Code," a companion volume to his "Annotated Ohio Civil Code," published by them last season. The new volume gives all sections of the revised statutes of Ohio relating to any branch of practice in the Probate Court, thoroughly annotated, with references, not only to Ohio decisions, but to the published decisions of all States having similar procedure. They also announce Thornton and Ballard's "Annotated Indiana Practice Code," of which the accuracy is guaranteed by the names of the editors, who have also made an exhaustive index, that most necessary feature of all law-books.

ANDREWS & Co., Ann Arbor, Mich., will publish early in November a new edition of J. C. Rowell's "The Sonnet in America," in which the reference list to the sonnets published in American magazines is brought down to July 1, 1888.

D. APPLETON & Co. announce several works of educational and scientific value and about half a dozen good novels. In their International Education series they will issue "Outlines of Pedagogics," by Col. F. W. Parker, "The Development of the Intellect," from the German of W. Preyer, which forms Part 2 of "The Mind of the Child," and "Memory: what it is and how to improve it," by David Kay. "Electricity," by Prof. Sylvanus Thompson, and "The Senses, Instincts, and Intelligence of Animals, with special reference to insects," by Sir John Lubbock, will be added to the International Scientific series. Other announcements of scientific interest are "Diamagnetism and Magnecrystalline Action," by Prof. Tyndall, and "Astronomy with an Opera Glass," by Garrett P. Serviss, which is fully illustrated. "The Advance-Guard of Western Civilization," by James R. Gilmore, with portrait and map, and "Florida of To-Day," by James Wood Davidson, describe two widely separated portions and periods of United States history and enterprise. "Westminster and Other Sermons," by the late Archbishop Trench, will lack nothing of the clear thought and literary finish that made so telling every word written or spoken by this talented and busy prelate. Of interest to medical men will be a "Handbook of Historical and Geographical Phthisiology," by Dr. George A. Evans. Forthcoming works of fiction will be "Aristocracy," of which the author is not given; "Mr. Fortescue," an Andean romance, by W. Westall; "Orthodox," a tale, by Dorothy Gerard, the author of "Reata;" and "The Master of Rothkelly," by Captain Hawley Smart.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON announce the eighth volume in the Book-Lover's Library, to be known as "The Book of Noodles," compiled by W. A. Coulston, who has made a most valuable collection for students of the history of humor, the collector of jest-books, and the folk-lorist, having spent many years gathering materials from sources not generally accessible, and from some hardly known to exist. The volume will be gotten up in the very attractive style of the series. Book-lovers will also look forward to "The Book-Worm," an illustrated treasury of knowledge on old-time literature, presenting its readers with stores of wisdom on subjects which are attractive to the book lover, and giving them in a readable form much out-of-the-way and little-known information on the literature of the past, such as chapters on scarce books, the works of special presses, first editions, and unique copies, their former and present value, early book auctions, old catalogues, bookbinding, old printing-presses, etc. A very full index puts all this tempting information at ready command of the reader. The book is produced in a style adapted to its subject, being tastefully printed in old style on antique paper, with numerous illustrations and ornamental embellishments. The house again will furnish three monotypic booklets for the holiday season, uniform with "As Time Glides On" the success of last year: "The Voice of Nature" will be made up of descriptive poetry by Longfellow, Thomson, Montgomery, Eliza Cook, etc., illustrated with sixteen full page monotypics in six printings, very neatly bound with illuminated cover, "He Leadeth Me," containing texts and twelve full-page colored pictures from ten printings; and "Threefold Praise and Other Pieces," by Frances Ridley Havergal, with monotypic and finely-colored illustrations. These are all very attractive small quartos. In religious works, to which the house always devotes great attention, are announced an entirely new book by Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, to be called "The Cheque Book on the Bank of Faith," made up of promises quoted from the Bible and arranged for daily use, with brief comments, giving the celebrated preacher's personal experience of the truth that "God has given no pledge which he will not redeem, and encouraged no hope which he will not fulfil;" a companion volume to Dr. A. B. Bruce's "The Humiliation of Christ," "The Parabolic Teaching of Christ," etc., entitled "The Training of the Twelve," a collection of passages from the Gospels, with comments exhibiting the training of the disciples for the apostleship, a book full of loving, helpful thoughts about Christian faith and practice, "Lectures on Preaching," by the late John Ker, and the initial volume of a new and important work, embracing the whole of the Scriptures, to be known as "The Sermon Bible," which will take account of the best preachers, and give their sermons on the portions of the Bible covered, many of which will necessarily be compiled from manuscripts and fugitive reports. The first volume covers the ground from Genesis to II. Samuel. New editions of the "Illustrated Pocket Shakespeare," "The Prose Tales of Edgar Allan Poe," and "The Works of Josephus," are also ready in new bindings of various original designs. I. Thain Davidson, the author of "Talks with Young Men," which received such warm praise from Charles Spurgeon, has made ready a companion volume, to be called "Sure to Succeed."

HENRY CAREY BAIRD & Co. have just ready "The American Steam Engineer, theoretical and practical," by Emory Edwards, with examples of the latest and most approved American practice in the design and construction of steam-engines and boilers, intended for engineers, machinists, boiler-makers, and engineering students. They have in preparation "Metallic Alloys," a practical guide for the manufacture of all kinds of alloys, amalgams, and solders used by metal-workers, especially by bell-founders, bronze-workers, tin-smiths, gold- and silver-workers, dentists, etc., etc. edited chiefly from the German of A. Krupp and Andreas Wildberger, with many additions by William T. Brannit. Both books are fully illustrated.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR Co. have just ready a paper edition of "Evangelistic Work in Principle and Practice," by Rev. Arthur T. Purim; and "South Dakota: resources, people, statehood," by Frank S. Child, in which the author gives the gleanings of a journey through the northwestern part of the United States, a section of country which to-day is attracting much attention, and about which accurate information is much needed. For early publication several works of religious character are announced: "Keystones of Faith, or, what and why we believe," a book by Rev. Wolcott Calkins, designed for young Christians and busy people who need a brief outline of the great doctrines in which all evangelical denominations agree; "Coöperation in Christian work" and "Problems of American Civilization," each containing a series of selected addresses delivered before the General Christian Conference held at Washington, D. C., Dec. 7-9, 1887, under the auspices of the Evangelical Alliance, in which many important social, political, and religious perils and opportunities were discussed by such men as Bishop Harris, Rev. Drs. Storrs, Gladden, and Schauffer, Presidents McCosh and Gates, Bishop Cox, Hon. Seth Low, Prof. Boyesen, etc. "What Jesus Says," by Rev. Frank Russell; "The Working Church," by Charles F. Thwing, a careful treatise by a successful church administrator on the best methods of making the church organization an efficient instrument; and "Under French Skies, or, sunny fields and shady woods," by Mme. de Gasparin, which has all the well-known charm of this lady's best writing.

THE BALTIMORE PUBLISHING Co. have in press a new "Catholic Vest-Pocket Prayer-Book," somewhat shorter than their successful "Vest-Pocket Manual;" and an entirely new edition of the "Imitation" of Thomas à Kempis, printed from new type, in 24mo shape. They call special attention to their new edition of "Father Ryan's Poems," printed from new electrotype plates, with additions of some poems and a biography of the poet-priest of the South, who died in 1886. These successful poems will be published in ten or twelve different styles of binding.

C. W. BARDEEN, Syracuse, N. Y., who makes so successful a specialty of works on education, has completed arrangements with the London publishers Sonnenschein & Co. for the simultaneous publication in this country from duplicate plates of most of their forthcoming works. The "Cyclopedia of Education," now publishing in parts by the London house, will be issued here in book-form about January 1. It will be an octavo of about 680 pages, uniform in binding with the handsome edition of Comenius "Orbis Pictus" issued last season. Mr. Bardeen has contributed several articles copyrighted in the United States in order to protect the copyright of the volume. From Sonnenschein & Co. the publisher has also purchased plates and American rights for the following standard books for teachers: "The Autobiography of Froebel," translated and annotated by Emilie Michaelis and H. Kealty Moore; "The Child and Child Nature," by the Baroness Marenholz von Bülow; "The First Three Years of Childhood," by Bernard Perez, with introduction by Prof. James Sully; "The Kindergarten," the principles of Froebel's system and their bearing on education, by Emily Sherreff; and "Essays on the Kindergarten," ten lectures read before the London Froebel Society. Besides introducing these valuable works into this country Mr. Bardeen contemplates bringing out some important works on his own responsibility, of which the most remarkable is "The Tree of Mythology, its growth and fruitage," giving the genesis of the nursery tale, the laws of folk-lore, etc., by the Rev. C. D. B. Mills, whose "Buddha and Buddhism" and "Gems from the Orient" take high rank with scholars. The new volume represents the work of a lifetime and will be an authority in its special field. The edition is limited to 500 numbered copies uniform with the "Orbis Pictus." Of books intended for schools Mr. Bardeen thus far announces "Orthöpy Made Easy," by Mrs. Hall, in which the pronunciation of difficult words is shown in a series of exercises involving the words, constructed with some ingenuity, which will be followed by a vocabulary giving the pronunciation of Webster and Worcester, and a new singing-book to be called "The Song Century," as it contains just one hundred songs, which is pronounced even superior to its predecessor, "The Song Budget," which is said to have sold last year to the number of 50,000.

P. BLAKISTON, SON & Co.'s announcements for the fall comprise several new and valuable works, of which the titles will be found under heading of Medical Science in the classified list preceding this department.

IRA BRADLEY & Co. have the following Sunday-school books in preparation: "Caudalaria," by J. A. Owen; "Sukey's Boy," by Sarah Tytler, "Lyle Harcourt," by H. E. W.; "A Great Mistake," by Rev. F. S. Wellington, "Two Enthusiasts," by Evelyn C. Green; "Cost What it May," by Emma E. Homibrook, "Her Husband's Home," by Evelyn E. Green; "Ten Millions," by Madeline Leslie; and "Estella," by an anonymous author.

BRENTANO'S, New York, have just issued George Moore's latest sensation, "Confessions of a Young Man." The work has met with an extraordinary success in England, and has been very highly reviewed by all the prominent critics. It is a large 12mo, with etched portrait. About the middle of September the first volume of Brentano's Romantic Library will be issued, being a collection of short stories from the French of Gautier, Féval, and Sardou, to be entitled respectively, "Jettatura," "A Noble Sacrifice," and "The Black Pearl," translated from the French by M. de L—. This will be followed about the latter part of October, by volume second of the series, which will contain "The Indictment" and "The Mass of an Atheist," by Honoré de Balzac, and "Militons," by Théophile Gautier, being translated from the French by Benjamin Lewia. It is the intention of the publishers to issue in this series the most prominent works that appear by the best authors, and are of such a character that they can be recommended to all classes of readers. They will be published with choice designs on the covers. They announce shortly, in paper and cloth, "Will," by George Ohnet, the author of "The Ironmaster," "Countess Sarah," etc. This is the latest and strongest story Ohnet has written. As these books have been selected with great care, they will undoubtedly meet with a large and steady sale. The two strongest books on their lists this fall, however, are the Campaign textbooks of the Democratic and Republican parties. These books, to which we have already made extensive reference, ought to prove as profitable to the bookseller as to the publisher.

ROBERT CARTER & BROS. will publish "Gospel Sermons," by Dr. James McCosh, ex-President of Princeton College, whose name has hitherto appeared chiefly upon philosophical works, but who now brings his well-trained reasoning faculties to bear upon the Gospel of Jesus Christ; "Christianity According to Christ," by Dr. J. Munro Gibson; "The Gospel According to St. Paul," by Dr. J. Oswald Dykes, both London preachers of fame, and a new edition of "Henry's Commentary," in three imperial quarto volumes of one thousand pages each, which they will sell at a remarkably low figure. They will also bring out a book by the Rev. William Secker, under the title of "The Nonsuch Professor in His Meridian Splendor," which Dr. Cuyler pronounces "a wonderful book, full of pithy aphorisms that combine the sententiousness of Benjamin Franklin with the sweet, holy savor of Samuel Rutherford." For the young there will be "Bible Animals," by the late Dr. Richard Newton, the last piece of work he did for the children who owe so much to his marvellous talent in interesting and instructing them in religion. His sermons to children have sold in fabulous quantities and some of them have been translated into sixteen different languages. Mrs. Nellie M. Carter, who has been "abroad," tells her experiences, interwoven with a connecting thread of fiction, for the benefit of girls not so fortunate, under the title of "Two Girls Abroad;" "From Flax to Linen" is a new story by Mrs. J. M. Drinkwater Conklin; and Emily Sarah Holt provides two historical tales, "Out in the Forty-five, or, Duncan Keith's vow," a tale of the last century, and "The King's Daughter, or, the maiden martyrs of Essex."

CASSELL & CO. announce a long line of fine art books and juveniles, two specialties with which the firm-name is always identified. "As You Like It" will be the volume in their édition de luxe of the most celebrated plays of Shakespeare. The illustrations are by Emile Bayard, and are reproduced in the highest style of photogravure, and printed on Whatman's paper, each impression a perfect copy of the original drawing. The text of the plays is printed in black and red. A limited édition de luxe of "American Art" promises to be a wonderfully beautiful publication. The plates will be signed and numbered. The three series of "Character Sketches from Dickens," with Frederick Barnard's inimitable illustrations, are this year to appear in one volume, royal quarto, giving all the eighteen plates, and showing all the characters which Dickens' genius made real personalities to all his readers. "Gems of Art" will give upwards of a hundred choice engravings, including photogravure, lithographic tint plates, etc.; "Italian Pre-Raphaelites in the National Gallery," by Cosmo Monkhouse, will contain eleven full-page engravings and numerous smaller illustrations representing famous pictures of the pre-Raphaelite school; "Modern Art and Artists" is edited by Wilfred Meynell and very fully illustrated; "Modern Printing Machinery," by Fred J. F. Wilson and Douglas Grey, will be a practical treatise on the subject, with general hints as to treatment, method of working, etc., but it will contain so many and such fine engravings, so handsomely executed, that it will deserve a place among the fine art books; as will also "Marine Painting," by Walter W. May, with sixteen colored plates; and a limited édition de luxe of 250 copies of Cozzen's "Yachts and Yachting." The house also announces an edition of Robert Wilson's "Life and Times of Queen Victoria," complete in two volumes, with several hundred illustrations representing the chief events in the life of the Queen and portraits of the many celebrities of her eventful reign; "How to Shoot," by Caroline B. Le Row, compiler of "English as She Is Taught;" "Cassell's Miniature Cyclopædia," containing 30,000 subjects, and "Vaccination Vindicated," by Dr. John C. McVail, who answers the arguments of the leading anti-vaccinators. There will also be new editions of Walter Scott's "Christmas in the Olden Time" in special and unique bindings, W. Davenport Adams' "Dictionary of English Literature;" "The Treasury of Art;" and wonderfully cheap editions of Doré's masterpieces. "The Inferno," "La Fontaine's Fables," "Paradise Lost," and "Purgatory and Paradise," which will really put it within the power of those who have long envied afar off, to become possessors of these coveted works of art. In fiction may be expected "Autrefois," a tale of New Orleans and elsewhere, by Prof. James A. Harrison; "Another's Crime," in the Byrnes-Hawthorne combination series; and Sylvanus Cobb's celebrated story of "The Gun-Maker of Moscow," which now appears for the first time in book-form. Besides all the above, there will be the regular issue each week of a new volume in the Cassell's National Library, of which the editor week by week shows fine discrimination and great catholicity of taste. When we strike the juveniles of this house we always take a long breath, made up of about equal parts of admiration and bewilderment. The manager of the New York house has this branch specially at heart, and year after year surpasses himself in the excellence of the material selected and the beauty of its manufacture. A full list of forthcoming books for children will be found in our classified list preceding this department, and we can only here mention a very few of the most important announcements: "Fairy Tales," with fifty full-page engravings by Gustave Doré; "Heroes of the Indian Empire," by Gustav Foster; "Joy Days and Play Days," by Olive Patch; "Legends for Lionel" in pen and pencil, by Walter Crane; "The Palace Beautiful," a story for girls, by L. T. Meade; "Twilight Fancies," by Mary D. Brine; "Christmas Cracker Series" and "Little Madcap Series," each containing six books in a box; and entirely new editions of "Cassell's One-Syllable Books," from new plates, etc., etc.

S. E. CASSINO'S announcements for the holiday season are: "Artists of New England and Their Work," an elegant and sumptuous work, compiled and edited by Frank T. Robinson, the well-known art amateur. Each artist represented has contributed a full-page illustration, presumed to be characteristic of his work, which have been reproduced by process. In addition a biography of each artist has been prepared by Mr. Robinson, each having a head and tail piece executed by the artist himself, and a portrait in pen and ink. The fact that most of these portraits are from drawings made by the artist represented gives additional interest. A partial list of the artists includes L. D. Eldred, W. F. Halsall, D. J. Strain, W. L. Taylor, F. P. Vinton, Frank T. Merrill, Scott Leighton, F. Child Hassam, W. B. Closson, J. Appleton Brown, J. M. Gaugengigl, L. K. Harlow, W. F. Lansil, Ross Turner, H. Sandham, and J. Foxcroft Cole. Four different limited editions will be issued in various styles and on different paper, and one edition will give the autograph signatures of all the artists. "My Garden," an original poem by Simeon Tucker Clark, M. D., illustrated by Lena J. Ringueberg and F. S. Matthews, is a superbly illustrated work containing beautiful cuts of our wild flowers and sketches of scenery. A limited number will have artistically decorated hand painted covers by Miss L. K. Harlow. "The Wings of the Morning" is the new volume in the Bracken-Light Text-Book series, and is considered to be the best of all. It is the work of Louis K. and Lizzie K. Harlow, and contains thirty-one texts, with full-page illustration to each. The work is bound in a variety of styles—bronze, ivory, and red seal. "A Little Bird's Song on My Birthday" is a charming booklet, by Mrs. J. Pauline Sunter, with 12 designs. "Illustrated Devotional Hymns," handsomely illustrated, includes "Lead, Kindly Light," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," "Rock of Ages," and "Jerusalem the Golden." "Whittier Gems," a beautiful souvenir of Whittier with 12 designs illustrating his most popular poems, with extracts from the same, is designed by H. K. Harlow, and has a fine etched portrait of the poet. Besides these there are: "A Souvenir of Miss Alcott," a short account of the life of Louisa May Alcott, by Mrs. Harlow, illustrated with many sketches and three etchings, one of which is a portrait of Miss Alcott; "Old Plymouth," a series of ten very picturesque sketches of this quaint and interesting place, by Wm. Goodrich Beal; "Salem Sketches," a series of etched views in Salem, Mass.; a new edition of "A New Basis for Chemistry," by Dr. T. S. Hunt, with over 100 pages of new matter and many important changes; a new and revised edition of the "International Scientist's Directory," a list of scientific men throughout the world with their addresses, which now contains 20,000 names. Mr. Cassino has also in preparation an Art Series of Etchings, which includes "Summer and Winter," "Morning and Evening," four fine etchings (9½ x 12), "Coast Sketches," a series of views of the New England coast, nine in number, printed on Japanese paper and satin; "Thames Sketches with Pen and Needle," eight etchings (9½ x 12); and "Etchings from Nature," a series of six brochures, each containing two views, all etched by L. K. Harlow. A book for children is "The Tin Army of the Potomac," a kindergarten of war, by W. H. Downs, illustrated by J. F. Goodridge.

THE CENTURY CO. this season will make a handsome volume of Theodore Roosevelt's articles on "Ranch Life and the Hunting Trail," with which all readers of the Century Magazine are familiar. These articles have been thoroughly revised, and several others have been written especially for this book to round out the plan and make it a complete and thoroughly accurate description of the life of a ranchman and hunter. With these additions, also illustrated by Frederick Remington, who has done such spirited work in this series, it is expected to make a book of about 200 pages, which will be printed and bound in the best style of the Century Co., and make as handsome a book as may be looked for from the combination of the De Vinne Press and the taste, experience, and means of the publishers. Edward Eggleston's "The Graysons" will also be issued in book-form, and this interesting record of life in Illinois is sure of permanent popularity. The house does not issue one of its chef-d'œuvres for children this year, but its former triumphs are again made ready, and when "Baby World," "St. Nicholas Songs," Maurice Thompson's "Sports for Boys," and Palmer Cox's "Brownies" can be had, there seems small need of a brand-new Christmas book for 1888.

THE CONGREGATIONAL S. S. AND PUB. SOC. have almost ready "Chubby Ruff," by Rev. George Huntington; "Marie's Story," a tale of the days of Louis XIV., by Mary E. Bamford; "Bertha Gordon," by Mary Kingston; "Little Johnnie Twoboys," by Julia Holmes Boynton; "Odds and ends, or gleanings from missionary life," by the Rev. C. H. Wheeler, missionary to Harpoot, Turkey; "Pilgrim Letters," by Rev. J. E. Roy; and "The Transfiguration of Life and other sermons," a memorial volume by Rev. E. S. Atwood, all of which are suitable for replenishing Sunday-school libraries of all denominations, for although the Society shows a sectarian name, its books can be read with pleasure by every Christian sect.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have just brought out "Nôtre-Dame" and "Toilers of the Sea" in the same style as "Les Misérables" issued in last year's holiday season. These will soon be followed by "Ninety-Three," "History of a Crime," and "By Order of the King," making a handsome illustrated edition of Victor Hugo's six great novels in fifteen volumes, with upwards of 600 full-page illustrations, printed on calendered paper, and bound as desired in cloth, half calf, half crushed morocco, or half crushed levant. There will also be a popular edition of these novels compressed into six volumes and bound in cloth or half calf. This house has for some years made a specialty of Russian literature, and succeeded in getting excellent translations of some remarkable books. A uniform edition of Count Tolstol's novels in thirteen volumes will be brought out this season, a careful reading of which will more and more impress upon the reader the personality of one of the greatest writers of the century, who as novelist, philosopher, historian, religionist, humanitarian, and above all as a man, challenges deep consideration, and whose untiring work has created a literature that will live and help others to live. In children's books, which, with translations from foreign fiction, form the specialties of this house, there will be "The Life of Lafayette," by Lydia Hoyt Farmer, "The Search for the Star," a tale of life in the wild woods, by Edward Willeit; "Wrecked on Labrador," dor," a story of shipwreck and adventure for boys, by W. A. Stearns; "The Scotch Caps," by J. A. K., the author of the Birchwood series; and "The Captain's Dog," translated from the French of Louis Enault by Huntington Smith. All these juveniles are illustrated. "Golden Words for Daily Counsel" will be a little volume of daily readings selected and arranged by Anna H. Smith, with introduction by Huntington Smith.

JOHN DELAY, 816 Broadway, N. Y., has just issued an interesting volume entitled "Hon. Uncle Sam," by Viscount Valrose. It consists of twelve witty, anecdotic chapters on the leading living orators, journalists, rhymesters, poets, preachers, diplomats, pamphleteers, caricaturists, wits, financiers, philosophers, and ladies of the United States, written from a well-informed foreigner's point of view.

DR WOLFE, FISKE & Co. have now ready for the fall and holiday season "The Artist's Year," poems of the months, by Margaret P. Jones and others, with an illustration for each month by a representative American artist; and a new edition of "Songs of Bird Life," from the German, translated by Josephine Pollard, with illustrations by Giacomelli.

G. W. DILLINGHAM, New York, makes a specialty of novels and seems to gauge public taste successfully, for almost every book he issues has a surprisingly rapid sale. He has in preparation "Lava Fires," by Abram Lent Smith; "Zahar," by Mansfield T. Walworth; "The Midnight Queen," by May Agnes Fleming; and "Dick Broadhead," a new book by P. T. Barnum, illustrated uniform with "Lion Jack" and "Jack in the Jungle." An edition of Mrs. Southworth's "Hidden Hand," owned exclusively by Robert Bonner and published three times in the N. Y. Ledger, will by special arrangement be published in book-form. "Carleton's Treasury of Knowledge," a condensed encyclopædia heretofore published by subscription only, will now be put in the trade at much lower price. Mr. Dillingham calls attention to his "Fireside Dickens," a cyclopædia of the best thoughts of Charles Dickens, by F. G. De Fontaine, arranged alphabetically by subject for half-hour readings and for complete reference to his entire works. The book has forty-eight appropriate illustrations.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have made arrangements with Sampson Low, Marston, Searle & Rivington, and purchased the right in America for a limited number of a limited edition of "The Compleat Angler," to be published this autumn. The edition will also contain a reprint, by permission, of "The Chronicle of the Compleat Angler," a bibliographical record of the various editions and imitations, by Thomas Westwood and Thomas Satchell. It will be known as the Lea and Dove edition. We reserve for another issue a full description of this sumptuous work. The house further announces "Rembrandt's Etchings," giving fifty of the most notable ones, reproduced in Paris, with a biography of the painter and notes to each picture by Charles B. Curtis, of which the regular edition will be in vellum, but of which fifty copies will be on Japan paper; "Etchings by French Artists," ten in number, by Détaille, Casanova, Martial, Jazet, Guinard, Cortazza, and others, of which also there will be fifty Japan-paper impressions, mounted in portfolio; and new students' editions of Woltmann and Woerman's "History of Painting;" and Mrs. Mitchell's "History of Sculpture," each in two volumes, with all the illustrations of the larger edition. An edition of Halévy's "Abbé Constantin," translated into English, but wholly manufactured in France, will be limited to 750 copies, of which 500 have been bespoken for America. It will have all the illustrations of the French édition de luxe of last year and appear in a silk wrapper. Two dainty books may be expected in "Through the Woods and Fields with Tennyson" and "Under the Greenwood Tree with Shakespeare," each furnished with eighteen illustrations from dainty designs in colors by Wedworth Wadsworth, and gotten up in a neat box. There will also be a new edition of Roe's "Nature's Serial Story," with all the original illustrations by Gibson, Dielman, and others, at a surprisingly low price. In fiction, several popular writers make contributions. The lamented E. P. Roe's "Miss Lou" will be brought out uniform with his former works; Marion Harland has written "A Gallant Fight;" and E. Garrett, "John Winter." The three remaining volumes needed to complete the set of the works of Besant and Rice will also be forthcoming. Important historical works will be "Henry III., King of France and Poland," by Martha Walker Freer, in three volumes, and "War Reminiscences," by the late Col. John S. Mosby, with ten double-page illustrations by W. C. Jackson. A popular exposition of the phenomena of weather, illustrated with engravings and charts, is by Gen. A. W. Greely, and will be published under the name of "American Weather." This house makes a feature of instructive and entertaining books for young people, and this year promises "A Frozen Dragon and Other Tales," a story-book of natural history, by Chas. F. Holder, author of "The Ivory King;" "Blue Jackets of 1776," by Willis J. Abbott, a companion to "Blue Jackets of 1812" and "Blue Jackets of 1861," of which there will be new editions. "The Chantry Priest of Barnet," the new volume in Prof. Church's stories, "Christmas with Grandma Elsie," who still seems able to stand all the relatives provided for her by Martha J. Finley; "Marooner's Island," by W. R. Goulding; and "Woodruff Stories," a combination of the same author's "Sapelo," "Marcooche," and "Saloquah." New editions of Abbott's "Pioneers and Patriots of America," Rossiter Johnson's "Minor Wars of the United States," and "Tales from Many Sources" are also promised. It goes without saying that all their juveniles are lavishly illustrated and printed and bound and made attractive by the generous publishers.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. confine their announcements strictly to holiday books and juveniles. The beauty of the publications of this house has been dwelt upon year after year until all adjectives are exhausted. A member of the firm has this year taken two trips to Europe to choose books for the coming season, and again to inspect the workmanship. Though decidedly favoring home manufacture, we are bound to say that we have seen little work done better on this side the water. Most imposing volumes will be "The Cathedrals of England and Wales," with sixteen full-page colored plates and sixty-four monotypes, and "Midsummer-Night's Dream," a companion volume to "Undine," by the same artist. "All Things Bright and Beautiful" must be seen to convey any idea of its beauty of get-up in cloth and also in Japanese calf. "Sweet Nature" is a companion to "The Treasures of Art and Song" of last season. There is a bewildering array of booklets, souvenirs, etc., all printed in monotint and color and bound with rare taste and finish. Of these we rapidly mention: "Floral Friends," familiar flowers with appropriate verses by prominent poets; "Onward," a text-book for every day of the month; "As Thy Days So Shall Thy Strength Be," a text-book for a month, illustrated by Fred Hines; "Talking with Jesus;" "By the Right Way;" "The Better Land;" "Life's Pathway;" "In the Service of the King;" "Everlasting Love;" "Songs of Love and Joy;" and "Songs For Life's Journey." Mary D. Brine, whose "Grandma's Attic Treasures" was so beautiful, has prepared a companion volume fully as bewitching, to be called "Grandma's Memories." A line of monotint books, booklets, and novelties, to be had from 15 cents to $1.25 retail, includes an endless variety of pretty hymns and verses, classified as the Walking with God series; Heavenly Wisdom series; Poetic Gem series; In the Poet's Garden series, etc. "Ways of Pleasantness;" "Evening Bells;" Gray's "Elegy;" "Village Blacksmith;" "Falling Leaves;" "Christmas Roses;" "Violets Sweet;" "Golden Leaves;" "Sweet Pansies;" "The Message of the Dove;" "Christmas Song," etc., etc., ad infinitum, make a collection of pretty gifts and souvenirs that will satisfy every taste and desire both in literary matter and mechanical execution. Referring to their books for the young, special mention should be made of Dutton's Annual for 1889, of which the initial volume last year is quite out of print. The second is fully up to the mark, giving new and original wood-cuts, prose and poetry, and six full-page colored illustrations, with covers printed in finest lithography. Miss Bennett, who did such appreciated work in "All Around the Clock" and "Through the Meadow," has prepared a little book called "Jack in the Meadows." "The Christmas-Box" of pictures, prose, and poetry, with six full-page illustrations, is also a pretty book. There is a long line, as always, of juveniles in boxes, ranging from fifteen to sixty cents, including almost every subject boys and girls take interest in, all choicely gotten up and remarkably cheap.

JAMES H. EARLE will publish in October "The Biography of John Alden," with genealogical tables of his descendants, compiled by Mr. Lamb, of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society.

GEORGE H. ELLIS' new books are "The Fourth Gospel, and other critical essays," by the late Ezra Abbott, D.D.; "Jesus and the Men About Him," by Rev. Charles F. Dole; and "Religious Reconstruction," by M. J. Savage. He will have new editions of "Tender and True," by the editor of "Quiet Hours;" "A Year of Miracle," by Rev. W. C. Gannett; and P. C. Mozoomdar's "Oriental Christ."

ESTES & LAURIAT announce some fine holiday publications. Their gift-book of the year will be an artistic triumph in book-making. Keats' "Endymion" has been illustrated by W. St. John Harper, from whose drawings photogravures have been made and printed in delicate tints throughout the charming text. The publishers have spared neither time, thought, nor money to make this a beautiful art edition of one of the most beautiful creations of Keats' genius. Tennyson's "Fairy Lillian" has also been dressed for conquest together with twelve other short poems by the Laureate, and provided with illustrations by distinguished artists of to-day, executed under the supervision of George T. Andrew. The volume does credit to the printer's art, showing on each page a delicate border in tint surrounding the tint or illustration in black ink. This pretty book will be bound in many attractive ways. Tennyson's "Bugle Call" is also to appear in holiday attire. "European Etchings" will be a collection of twenty etchings by the most noted artists of Europe, such as Volkhart, Grotiohann, and others, with descriptive and biographical text in royal quarto size, elegantly bound. The edition will be limited to 350 copies, of which some will have proofs on genuine parchment, text on vellum paper, in satin cover, some proofs on satin, vellum paper and satin cover, others proofs on India, Japan, or Holland paper, with vellum, parchment, or half morocco bindings. The "Recent French Art," published last season, this year receives a companion in "Recent Italian Art," a portfolio of sixteen photo-etchings from favorite paintings of modern Italian artists, including the names of Cassioli, Gaetano, Chierici, and Tito Conti, with descriptive text by an authority. A charming collection of French masterpieces will be "The Goupil Gallery of Photogravures," presenting ten of the recent Salon favorites in photogravures by Goupil of Paris, and also giving descriptive text by an art critic. Another interesting art work will be offered in "The Napoleon Gallery," giving one hundred outline proofs from foreign paintings of scenes in the life of the First Napoleon. These drawings were made by the celebrated French artist Reveil, who also etched them in steel. Many of the pictures here copied were painted for the national galleries of France by artists of world-wide reputation, by order of the government, and they have immense historic value. The publishers will also supply unbound copies in sheets, so that collectors may add further illustrations. A series of sixteen etchings from drawings by Millais, Birket Forster, and other well-known English artists will be brought out under the title "Voices of the Summer;" and a series of delightful essays on out-door life, recalling Thoreau and Burroughs, has been illustrated by a celebrated foreign artist and will be called "Song-Birds and Seasons." By special arrangement with Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., the house has obtained the right to print the text of Longfellow's exquisite poem "Maidenhood," which has been illustrated by Stanley in a series of delicately colored leaflets, which make the "maiden with reluctant feet" charmingly attractive. Warren F. Kellogg has compiled an exciting and amusing series of adventures in search of large game, which he christens "Hunting in the Jungle." It has over one hundred pictures of gorillas, elephants, tigers, lions, etc., engraved on wood by our best modern book illustrators. For children this house always provides lavishly. All its annuals will of course be ready for the holidays of 1888-89, and it is a goodly list, including the troublesome "Chatter-box," "Oliver Optic's Annual," "The Nursery-Q," "The Prize," "The Little One's Annual, 7," etc. All the well-known travellers this firm keeps constantly moving to cheer the stay-at-homes by their vivid descriptions of things seen abroad have again furnished their yearly reports under the titles of "Zigzag Journeys in the Antipodes," giving a picture of Siam and instructive details of animal worship in that country; "Three Vassar Girls in France," which describes the siege of Paris; "The Knockabout Club in the Antilles," describing the delightful islands that extend in graceful lines from Florida to South America, and "Great-Grandmother's Girls in New Mexico," the second of Elizabeth W. Champney's recollections of former times, illustrated by "Champ." Of special interest to boys will be "The Sailor Boys of '61," in which Prof. J. Russell Soley, author of "The Boys of 1812," gives vivid and accurate accounts of the naval engagements of the great Civil War; and "The Young Moose Hunters," by C. A. Stephens, an exciting account of a hunting trip through the Maine woods. Of equal interest to boys and girls will be "Hans Christian Andersen's Wonder Book," to be published as companion volume to his "Fairy Tales," published last season. Other pretty juveniles announced thus far are "Supper Under the Apple Trees," "Jimmy's Happy Family," "How the Cucumber Got into the Bottle," "Tommy's Fright," "Bertie's Corn-Popper," and "How the Goslings Rode Out."

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT announce four volumes of "Henry Ward Beecher's Sermons," delivered between September, 1873, and September, 1875, of which the first has been already issued in book-form. These sermons were preached during the period when Mr. Beecher was going through the severe mental strain of his long trial and are of special interest to all who can appreciate the task of steadily preparing sermons on a vast variety of subjects while heart and mind are fettered by an all-absorbing idea. A volume of sermons by Rev. Amory H. Bradford, of the First Congregationalist Church, Montclair, N. J., entitled "Spirit and Life: thoughts for to-day," will include the four sermons on "The Holy Spirit" which were published in the Christian Union and attracted great attention by their good sense and catholicity of thought. During October this house expect to bring out "The Human Mystery in Hamlet," an "attempt to say an unsaid word," with suggestive parallelisms from the elder poets, by Martin W. Cooke. There will also be new editions of "The Democratic Party," by Prof. I. H. Patton; "The Gospel History," by Lyman Abbott and J. H. Gilmore; and of that delightful book of insect life, Dr. Henry C. McCook's "Tenants of an Old Farm," which will now be made a cheaper book, but will retain all the illustrations. This popular but thoroughly trustworthy work has recently been republished in England under the auspices of Sir John Lubbock, who pronounces it a most desirable work for the young.

THE FOWLER & WELLS CO. continue the publication of the Phrenological Journal and works in their special line. The fifty-fifth thousand of "Heads and Faces" is on press, also the twenty-fifth edition of "For Girls." Among their new announcements are a book of "Birthdays of Eminent People," a collection of biographical notes of eminent people of all ages, arranged according to the days of the year, for general reference and for the use of Chautauquans and schools, prepared by Amelia J. Calver, an experienced teacher; "Masterpieces," which was announced for last season but not brought out, comprising "The Rime of the Ancient Mariner," by Coleridge; "The Traveller," "Hermit," and the "Deserted Village," by Goldsmith;

"Cosmos," by Milton; "Pope's Essay on Man;" and "Æsop's Fables," in one volume, finely illustrated, is announced for early issue. "Forward Forever" is a response to Lord Tennyson's "Locksley Hall Sixty Years After." "Heaven on Earth" and other poems, by William J. Shaw, "the poet hermit," will attract attention on account of its sentiment and its uniqueness.

FUNK & WAGNALLS have just issued "Nobody Knows," a series of vigorously and quaintly written papers, giving facts that are not fictions in the life of an unknown. The author is said to be an untiring helper of laboring and oppressed people and to feel the importance of his mission in the spirit of Tolstoi. The author of "Battle of Bietigheim" has compiled a satire which he calls "The Presidential Campaign of 1896," which is made up of supposed newspaper clippings, political programmes, and extracts, edited by a newspaper man of the day (1896), tracing events in the presidential campaign of that year, in which the forces of socialism, anarchy, and atheism are finally to be overcome by an honest, upright spirit of fearless American patriotism. Two forthcoming works of social, moral, and political interest are announced in the "Political Prohibitionist for 1888," a handbook of facts and figures concerning prohibition in the various States, the attitude of the Democratic and Republican parties on temperance, a short history of the national Prohibition party, election statistics, etc.; and "The Drink Problem," a series of four lectures delivered in Exeter Hall, London, Eng., during November and December, 1887, under the auspices of the Central Young Men's Christian Association, by Axel Gustafson, who dwells in the first upon the effects of drink on the individual and on society, and in the three remaining ones upon considerations of the right way of removing this far-spreading and soul-and-body destroying evil.

GINN & Co. announce a good list of text-books which will be found in the classified list in this issue under the heading of Education, Language, etc.

S. C. GRIGGS & Co., Chicago, have just issued an "Eclectic Shorthand Dictionary," by Prof. J. G. Cross, which will be particularly useful to beginners on account of the phonic spelling given and of which H. G. Stripe, Kansas court reporter says: "the work in itself is complete and of such paramount importance to every writer, young or old, of the eclectic system as to be absolutely indispensable." Early in October the house will issue "Wit and Humor: their use and abuse," by William Matthews, author of "Men, Places, and Things," and "Getting on in the World," etc., which is announced as "an able, scholarly work and not a mere collection of anecdotes and newspaper clippings."

HARPER & BROS. announce several most interesting books, chiefly to be classified under works of description and travel and fiction and juvenile literature. Edwards Roberts has prepared "Shoshone and Other Western Wonders," to which Charles Francis Adams furnishes a delightful preface. The Yellowstone and other far-off places of the Wild West have already received a full quota of description by word and illustration in the newspapers and magazines, but this volume now promises to give, in attractive and durable shape, authentic descriptions of most points of interest lying between Denver and Yellowstone, and to make them real by numerous illustrations. "Peninsular California" has been treated by Charles Nordhoff, an acknowledged authority on the physical and political geography and history of the Pacific coast, who has classified his facts and descriptions, and made them interesting to general readers, and especially to those who temporarily or permanently are meditating a flight to warmer and more even temperatures, by tables of statistics in regard to life on the peninsula, and exhaustive reports on climate, health, etc. An almost unknown country is made most fascinating in Madame Gerard's "The Land Beyond the Forest," a valuable work on Transylvania from the pen of the wife of an Austrian cavalry officer for many years stationed in that part of the world. The English edition of the book has already been favorably noticed in many leading journals, and the American edition, sanctioned by the author, cannot fail of a grateful reception. Many illustrations of people and places and an excellent map add much to the interest and intrinsic value of this work. "Modern Science in Bible Lands," by Sir J. Wm. Dawson, is a study of the physical and geological peculiarities of Italy, Egypt, and Syria, which have influenced their political history, and special care is given Scripture history, which is made fascinating by the well-known charm of the author of "The Story of the Earth and Man," "The Origin of the World," etc. A book adapted for younger readers as well as for adults will be Sophie B. Herriek's "The Earth in Past Ages," a series of papers on geology, in which the author has presented a vast amount of accurate information in a most fascinating way. William Black's novel, "In Far Lochaber," which is now running as a serial in Harper's Magazine, will be brought out in book-form. The author's knowledge of Scotch character is shown to great advantage in his story, which turns upon the prejudice felt by Scotch Presbyterians when it comes to a question of marriage with a Roman Catholic; and his fascinating word-painting has made real the scenery, people, and customs among which his well-conceived plot is skilfully unravelled. New editions of Walter Besant's "All Sorts and Conditions of Men" and "The World Went Very Well Then" will soon be followed in book-form by "For Faith and Freedom," at present running as serial in Harper's Bazar. In juvenile literature, which is specially dear to one of the members of this great firm, there will be "The Household of Glen Holly," by Mrs. Lucy C. Lillie, which has run through the pages of Harper's Young People, and earned its right to become a companion book to her widely-read "The Colonel's Money," "Rolf House," "Nan," etc., of which it is said to be easily the leader in interest and charm. Thomas W. Knox has guided "The Boy Travellers in Australasia," and the bright boys have seen these beautiful islands of the Pacific to advantage, and also spent much time on the great Australian Continent, which is told with all the interest of the former volumes. "The Drumbeat of the Nation," in which Charles Carleton Coffin told of the beginning of the Rebellion, receives a companion volume in his "Marching to Victory," in which the story of the Civil War is brought down to the end of 1863; and the beautiful legend of "The Boyhood of Christ," told by Gen. Lew. Wallace, will be richly illustrated and prepared as a most appropriate Christmas book for children. The "Franklin Square Song Collection, No. 5," compiled and edited by J. P. McCaskey, will be ready, and contain 200 songs and hymns with music; and one of the most important books, which is mentioned last as the leading actress is mentioned last, will be "Old Songs," a collection of old English songs and ballads, illustrated by E. A. Abbey and Alfred Parsons, which, from an artistic point, will take rank with the leading holiday books of the year, and be issued in very handsome binding.

D. C. HEATH & Co.'s announcements will be found in the classified list preceding this department under the heading of Education, Language, etc.

HENRY HOLT & Co. announce several interesting works in their two special lines of educational works and fiction. They have just ready "Dissection of the Dog," by W. H. Howells, intended as a basis for the study of physiology; and will immediately bring out "Das Wesentliche der Deutschen Grammatik," by A. W. Spanhoofd; also, the second part of Prof. C. P. Otis' "Elementary German Grammar and Exercises for the Second Year." In October they will publish "La Fontaine's 'Fables Choiesies,'" edited with introduction and notes by Leon Dellos, and La Motte Fouqué's "Undine," with introduction and notes by Prof. H. C. G. von Jogemann. In November will be issued Prof. Ira Remsen's "Chemistry," which will be a volume of the advanced course of the American Science series. Four leading novelists whose names already appear on many of the title-pages of the Leisure Hour and Leisure Moment series will again furnish material for new volumes in them. Jessie Fothergill has written "From Moor Isles;" W. E. Norris, "The Rogue;" L. B. Walford, "Her Great Idea, and other stories;" and Mrs. Alexander, "Fleeting Fortune." Spielhagen's novels, "Problematic Characters," its sequel "Through Night to Light," "Hammer and Anvil," and "Hohensteins," have also been issued in Leisure Hour and Leisure Moment shape and ought to have the success their intrinsic merit and attractive exterior would seem to insure.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co.'s announcements for the coming season include very much the same variety and grade of books which the public is accustomed to expect from this house. In the department of history two books will be added to the Commonwealths series, namely, "Indiana," by J. P. Dunn, Jr., and "Ohio," by Rufus King, both natives or residents of those respective States and specially qualified to prepare books suited for this excellent series. Much of the same character will be a book on Tennessee, by Hon. James Phelan, member of Congress from the Memphis District. He, however, devotes a larger portion of his book to topics of purely local interest than is given in books of the Commonwealths series. John Fiske will have a book of unusual value on "The Critical Period in American History, 1783-1789," shedding a great deal of light on the years between the close of the Revolution and the adoption of the Constitution. W. R. Bliss has prepared a book entitled "Colonial Times on Buzzard's Bay," which is largely devoted to the actual records of the locality, but incidentally gives much information concerning the people, life, and habits of the colonial era in New England. Additional volumes of history will include a book on Woodstock, Vt., by Henry S. Dana; a "History of the Old South Church in Boston," one of the notable historical buildings of America, by Hamilton A. Hill; and succeeding volumes of the important "Narrative and Critical History of America," edited by Justin Winsor. In biography will be commenced a series entitled "American Religious Leaders," of the same general character as the series of American Statesmen and American Men of Letters. The volumes will be of the same general size, 16mo, and each will be devoted to some man who has been in a good degree a representative of a special theological belief, or of the methods and special views of a particular religious denomination. Care has been taken that the writers shall be persons of unbiassed judgment, who will not treat their subjects either as advocates or opponents, but judicially, with a desire to get at the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. Prof. A. V. G. Allen, of the Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge, will treat Jonathan Edwards; Pres. Patton, of Princeton, Dr. Chas. Hodge; Prof. Murray, of Princeton, Dr. Wayland; Prof. Geo. Prentice, of Wesleyan University, Wilbur Fisk, the eminent Methodist divine; Hon. J. G. Shea, Archbishop Hughes; and John Fiske, Theodore Parker. Theodore Bacon, of Rochester, has written the life of Delia Bacon, who began the discussion over the authorship of Shakespeare. In the book will be included many highly interesting letters from Emerson, Carlyle, Hawthorne, and others. "Young Sir Henry Vane," one of the most interesting characters of the colonial history of Massachusetts, and intimately connected with the leaders of the Commonwealth in England, is the subject of an octavo volume, by Prof. James K. Hosmer, author of the admirable life of Sam. Adams in the series of American Statesmen. In the departments of belles-lettres and philosophy, there will be a volume of essays on "Poetry, Comedy, and Duty," by Prof. C. C. Everett, of the Divinity School at Harvard University, a clear thinker and admirable writer; "Books and Men," a series of seven excellent and charmingly written essays by Agnes Repplier; a volume entitled "The Law of Equivalents, in its relations to political and social ethics," by Edward Payson, a work somewhat philosophical in character, but yet not so abstruse as to be devoid of interest to the average reader. Judge Holmes, of Cambridge, who wrote one of the books best worth reading on the authorship of Shakespeare, has prepared a work in two volumes entitled "Realistic Idealism in Philosophy Itself," which is cordially commended to the attention of those who like solid reading. A new edition is in press of Rowland G. Hazard's three philosophical works, namely, "An Essay on Language, and other papers," "Freedom of the Mind in Willing," and "Two Letters to John Stuart Mill, with other papers." Mr. Hazard was a man of great clearness and force of mind, and his writings are well worth reading. Mrs. Silsbee has prepared a new edition of her "A Half Century in Salem," making considerable additions to it. Percival Lowell has prepared a little book entitled "The Soul of the Far East," devoted to the mental habits, the imagination, and the religion of the people of eastern Asia, Japan, and Corea. In the department of fiction there will be a new volume entitled "The McVeys," by Major Kirkland, author of "Zury" and in some respects a continuation of that noteworthy story; "The Peckster Professorship," by J. P. Quincy, a book which will be especially interesting to those who are studying spiritism and other occult mysteries; Charles Egbert Craddock's [Miss Murfree's] East Tennessee story, "The Despot of Broomsedge Cove," which is one of the best and strongest novels she has written; "The Guardians," an anonymous story, of which it can only be said that the plot, characters, and incidents, and especially the style in which the story is told, promise an excellent success; "Molly Bishop's Family," one of Catherine Owen's books, in which a story is made to carry a great deal of information in respect to housekeeping; "Our Phil, and Other Stories," by Katharine Floyd Dana, consisting of three stories which appeared many years ago in the Atlantic, and which are so good that they deserve to be reproduced in the form that they will now have; and "The Chezzles," a story of young folks in America and France, told and illustrated by Lucy Gibbons Morse. The department of poetry is unusually small. It includes a little volume of "Romances, Lyrics, and Sonnets," selected from Mrs. Browning's poetical works, to be brought out in the same style as Browning's "Lyrics, Idyls, and Romances," published last year; and an entirely new edition of Whittier's works, in seven volumes, uniform with the Riverside edition of Longfellow, containing many notes by Mr. Whittier himself, and in every way made as complete and perfect as possible. Houghton, Mifflin & Co.'s special holiday book for this season will be "The Courtship of Miles Standish," with illustrations by Geo. H. Boughton, Frank T. Merrill, and other artists. The book will be similar to "Michael Angelo," published some years since, and will be in every respect as perfect as the Riverside Press can produce. Another book which will be sufficiently handsome for holiday use, although not primarily intended for it, is "Ancient Rome in the Light of Recent Discoveries," by Rudolfo Lanciana, who superintended the excavations at Rome for many years, and has now prepared an extremely interesting account of these discoveries, which is supplemented by many excellent illustrations and fac-similes. Other volumes in this announcement are the first supplement of Poole's "Index to Periodical Literature," including an index to English and American periodicals for the last five years, a work of great value, especially in libraries; a little book of selections from Mrs. Stowe's writings, entitled "Flowers and Fruit;" a little book for people in declining life entitled "After Noontide," selections from a wide reading by Mrs. Margaret E. White; "The American Book of Church Services," prepared more especially for such Congregational churches as desire a liturgy, by Rev. Edward Hungerford, of Burlington, Vt.; "A Birthday-Book" selected from Dr. Holmes' writings; a translation of Dante's "Divine Comedy," with notes, by John A. Wilstach, who translated the entire works of Virgil a few years since; a translation by Mrs. M. Payne of "Sigurd Slembe," a dramatic trilogy by Bjornson, and by many critics accounted his greatest work; a single calendar, entitled "The American Poets' Calendar for 1889," comprising selections from and portraits of Longfellow, Whittier, Emerson, Hawthorne, Holmes, and Lowell; a new edition of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar very thoroughly revised by Professor Henry Preble, of Harvard University; additional volumes of the Riverside Literature series for school use; and "Second Lessons in Arithmetic," by H. N. Wheeler, a book intended to follow Colburn's First Lessons, the two to form a concise yet sufficient arithmetical course for schools.

HUBBARD BROS. announce three juveniles with text and illustrations by Palmer Cox, whose "Brownies" made such a hit last season. All three bear the general title of "Queer People." In one these queer people are "Goblins, Giants, Merry-men, and Monarchs;" in another they are "Queer People with Wings and Stings," showing every variety of bird and insect dressed in the artist's inimitable style; and in the third are "Queer People with Paws and Claws," giving all the four-footed animals in characteristic positions and costumes. The publishers are justly proud of these volumes, and have gotten them out in very handsome shape, worthy to take a place with the beautiful volume gotten up by the Century Co. last season. The three books will also be published in one, but that will be sold only by subscription.

WM. R. JENKINS has made arrangements for the simultaneous appearance here and in Paris of Zola's new work, "Le Rêve," which is said to be as pure as "La Terre" was of the earth, earthy. A cheap and pretty edition of Dumas' "La Tulipe Noir" is just ready; Molière's "L'Avare" and "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme" and Corneille's "Le Cid" will be issued as the opening numbers in a series to be entitled Théâtre Français Classique, which will be carefully annotated; and English notes will also be made to the different numbers in the Théâtre Contemporain. "Mlle. Solange," a story crowned by the French Academy under the title of "La Terre de France," will be added to the Romans Choisis. "Le Seconde Livre des Enfants," by Paul Bercy, and a collection of verses for children compiled by Henri Michaud are also forthcoming. In the other specialty of the publisher, veterinary surgery, there will be two books on horses. Dr. A. Liautard, of the American Veterinary College, has prepared a book on "Lameness in Horses," said to be the only modern work on the subject in the English language; and Dr. George Fleming has written upon the "Roaring of Horses," a subject not yet treated of at all, but which the author has thoroughly investigated and claims the results obtained will be valuable.

ORANGE JUDD CO. announce three valuable books in their special line of literature for American agriculturists: a new revised and enlarged edition of "Peach Culture," by Hon. J. Alex. Fulton; an illustrated volume on "The Family Horse," author not given; and a volume on "The Hog," by Dr. H. E. Chase, also fully illustrated.

E. L. KELLOGG & Co., the New York and Chicago educational publishers, announce a goodly list of new publications, of which the titles can be found in the classified list under Education, Language, etc.

THE MOSES KING CORPORATION, Boston, will shortly issue "King's Handbook of Public Art Galleries in the United States," compiled by Mr. Walter Rowlands, which will contain outline histories of all the public art museums and their buildings, with descriptions of their contents, useful information regarding the location of the buildings, the hours during which they are open, admission charges, catalogues published, etc. The book will have about a hundred illustrations and should prove indispensable to every one interested in art matters. "King's Handbooks" are steadily being put together, and Mr. King shows great discrimination in his selection of compilers for useful additions to the already immense stock of his noteworthy specialty. There are handbooks of American cemeteries, hotels, industries, newspapers, churches, and of almost every city and river and harbor of the United States.

LEA BROTHERS & Co., of Philadelphia, have in preparation some volumes of which the titles appear under the heading of Medical Science in the list preceding this department.

LEE & SHEPARD, hardly ten years since, made an enviable success in art publications suited to the holiday season. Their lead has been followed by all their brother publishers, but they still succeed year by year in getting up a decided success in the special field in which they were pioneers. Miss Jerome, who for three years has furnished their best selling Christmas book, will have nothing new this year. She is not resting, but busily at work in preparing one of her specialties for next year. In the meantime her four well-known successes will be formidable rivals to the fresh young beauties that are coming out this year. The house has had many works of decided merit submitted, and from the "embarrassment of riches" has selected original illustrations by Margaret MacDonald Pullman, to be published as "Days Serene," and to consist of natural scenery, illustrating household words of well-loved poets. Competent writers vouch for her poetic, literary, and artistic fitness for her work. The engraving on wood will be done by Geo. T. Andrew, and the printing will be under his direction. The thirty full-page illustrations,  $10\frac{1}{2} \times 14\frac{1}{2}$ , will be gotten up in cloth, turkey morocco, tree calf, and English seal style with emblematic cover designs in colors. J. Pauline Sunter, who is possessed of originality and finished workmanship, has furnished illustrations for three appropriate souvenirs, which will be printed on heavy board in sepia-tint and gold, and make quite a feature in the rich and tasty novelties provided for the season. In the calendar to be known as "All Around the Year" the artist shows taste and judgment, and ornamented with rings and chains in silver and silk tassels it will not be overlooked in the holiday rush. Miss Muloch's little gems, "A Christmas Carol" and "A Psalm for the New Year," have been chosen for the Christmas and New Year's souvenirs. It would seem impossible that the Favorite Hymns, Songs, and Poems could devise a new costume for the coming season, but this year the eight special favorites will be known as The Regal Beauties, and reappear in covers of heavy bristol board with pebbled surface, ragged edges, and two original water-color designs by American artists. Twenty others will hold their own in new rich binding of ribbed leather, gilt edges, and gold titles, to be called for under the name of The Golden Persian. From the above, twelve are again selected and dressed as Dainty Miniatures and Golden Miniatures and furnished with every outside charm imaginable. Rosa Hartwick Thorpe's "Curfew Must not Ring To-night" has been translated into German by Hugo Erichson, and will be brought out with all the original illustrations of the English reading. In miscellaneous literature will be issued "From Lady Washington to Mrs. Cleveland," a series of instructive and entertaining sketches by Miss Gordon, giving studies of social Washington life in the various administrations, offering much matter never before made public. Passing from the first ladies in the land to travellers and outlaws, a series of episodes in American history will be treated by Thomas Higginson, who gives an appendix of authorities for the strange facts he chronicles. The titles are self-explanatory, viz.: "The Old Salem Sea Captains," "A Revolutionary Congressman on Horseback," "A New England Vagabond," "The Maroons of Jamaica," "The Maroons of Sumatra," "Gabriel's Defeat," "Denmark Vesey," and "Nat Turner's Insurrection." Miss Douglas will have a bright, amusing, sensible novel under the title "A Modern Adam and Eve in a Garden," which will be uniform with her other helpful books; and G. M. Baker gets ready No. 19 of "The Reading Club and Handy Speaker." Dr. Nathan Allen has prepared a book on "Physical Development," treating of the laws governing the human system, and discussing college sports, the education of girls, vital statistics, heredity, sanitary science, the prevention of crime and insanity, the New England fiend, the normal standard of physiology, and physical degeneracy, subjects on which he is a recognized authority. A new edition of Thackeray, in ten volumes, has the author's illustrations, new type, superior paper, and excellent binding. This house always makes arrangements to give the young people entertainment and instruction. Jules Verne's "Adventures of a Chinaman" will be added to the Popular Series. In spite of all that has been said, written, and spoken by educators, etc., about Oliver Optic and J. T. Trowbridge, these writers continue to write, sure of a delighted audience, who cannot fail to gather much useful information from their spicy narratives. Oliver Optic starts a new series, The Blue and the Gray, volumes founded on events in the Civil War, with "Taken by the Enemy," telling of the fall of Sumter and consequent movements of the actors in that tragedy. J. T. Trowbridge will have ready "A Start in Life," a story of early border life, and "Biding His Time," telling of Andrew Hapwell's fortunes. Penn Shirley, who told such a pretty story in "Little Miss Weezy," has now something to say of "Little Miss Weezy's Brother." Mrs. Thorpe, author of "Curfew Must not Ring To-night," has prepared a collection of stories in prose and verse to be called "The Year's Best Days," intended to cultivate the love of literature in the young. Jane Andrews writes the "Story Mother Nature Told Her Children;" Henry Clarke Wright gives a collection of pleasing stories entitled "A Kiss for a Blow," and Captain Charles A. J. Farrar has completed "Up the North Branch," the fourth volume in his Field and Forest Stories. Besides these new treasures there are innumerable new editions of old favorites, and a general furbishing up, clearing out, and getting ready among the well-known \$1.00 sets and 75-cent sets, which generally manage sooner or later to absorb all the juveniles of the house that have served their apprenticeship and been found worthy of the title of "favorite."

J. B. LIPPINCOTT CO. announce several fine editions of standard books for the holidays. The great success of their wonderfully beautiful "Lamia," with Mr. Will H. Low's illustrations, has decided them to bring out a new and cheaper edition, retaining all the illustrations, in small quarto size; Mrs. A. L. Wister has translated Eichendorff's "Good for Nothing," and given all its original color to this popular German love-story, which will be brought out with many full-page and small photogravures printed on fine plate paper; Goldsmith's "The Traveller," with etchings by M. M. Taylor, will be issued uniform with his "Deserted Village;" and Goethe's "Hermann and Dorothea," with etchings by Faber, will be a companion volume for the "Faust" published last season. An edition limited to one thousand copies, of which two hundred and fifty have already been placed in England, will be made of selections from Béranger's "Songs and Poems," compiled by W. S. Walsh, with the steel-plate illustrations from the beautiful French edition. The same compiler has written a sketch of Adah Isaacs Menken, which will preface the poem, "Infelica," illustrated by Darley, which will also be ready for the gift-giving season. An edition of 780 copies will be brought out of "Memoirs of Count Grammont," by Anthony Hamilton, edited with notes by Sir Walter Scott, with portrait of the author and thirty-three etchings by Boisson from compositions of C. Delort, which will make one of the handsomest books of the year. In connection with Messrs. Griffith, Farran & Co., of London, a series of artistic gift-books and booklets in monotint, illustrated by English artists of celebrity, under the general editorship of Mr. George C. Haité, a member of the Council of the Society for the Encouragement of the Fine Arts, will be published. The publishers take pleasure in bringing forward this new series, printed in England on English-made paper, which they believe will equal, if not excel, their artistic publications of the last two years and hold their own easily among the books of this order which now flood the market with the returning holidays. There will be a 75-cent series of thirty-two pages, small 4to each, containing "Seven of Us," the history of seven puppies and seven kittens as described by themselves, with illustrations by Fannie Moody and Christine and Gertrude Demain Hammond; "The Story of the Cross," pictured by F. Hamilton Jackson; "Lasses and Lads," rustic child-life, drawn by Edith Stanley Berkeley; and "The Message of Love," consisting of English landscapes by John Fullwood. A 50-cent series of twenty-four pages each will give "Playmates," studies and scenes of child-life, by Florence Maplestone; "He Loveth All," illustrated by Rosa Jameson and Alfred W. Strutt; "The Traveller," scenes of Old England, by J. Finnemore; and "Our Father's Promises," by Geo. C. Haité and C. Ricketts; while a 25-cent series of sixteen pages each will contain "Golden Love," by Charles Hards; "A Chaplet of Gems," by Edith Maplestone; "A Summer's Day," by Annie and Louise Manville Fenn; and "Art Thou Weary?" by Eveline and William Lance. "The Complete Works of Percy Bysshe Shelley," edited, prefaced, and annotated by Richard Hume Sheppard, will also be a handsome set of books. In general literature quite a number of new books are under way. Fiction will be represented by "Sinfire," by Julian Hawthorne, and "Douglas Duane," by Edgar Fawcett, which will be bound together as No. 3 of the series of American Novels, having originally appeared as the complete stories in Lippincott's Magazine for January and April, 1887, respectively. "The Owl's Nest," translated by Mrs. Wister from the German of E. Marlitt; a new novel by Mrs. H. Lovett Cameron, of which the title is not yet announced; and an edition in seven volumes of the "Brontë Novels," uniform with the Handy edition of Thackeray and Dickens. In poetry there will be "A Marriage of Shadows, and Other Poems," by Margaret Veley, with biographical preface by Leslie Stephen. In biography, the "Life of Henry M. Stanley," by Rev. H. W. Little; and the "Life of the Right Hon. W. E. Forster," by T. Wemyss Reid. In description, "With the Camel Corps Up the Nile," by Count Gleichen, a nephew of Queen Victoria; and in history, "Memoirs of a Royalist," a work of the time of Louis Philippe, in two illustrated volumes, by M. De Falloux. Of literary value will be "Half-Hours with the Best Foreign Authors," translations selected and arranged by Charles Morris, published in four volumes uniform with the "Half-Hours with the Best American Authors," and also in an édition de luxe limited to one hundred copies. A very valuable and handsome work is promised in "A Popular History of Music," by James E. Matthews, describing musical instruments, ballet, and opera from St. Ambrose to Mozart, with one hundred and fifty illustrations, consisting of portraits, musical instruments, fac-similes of rare and early musical typography, etc. A text-book for academies and colleges will be "Botany," by Annie Chambers Ketchum, with two hundred and fifty illustrations showing plant development and structure, from sea-weed to clematis, and also containing a manual of plants, including all the known orders with their representative genera; and books for medical students are forthcoming in "A Cyclopædia of Diseases of Children," describing them and their treatment, medical and surgical, by Dr. J. M. Keating; "Inebriety," giving its causes, its results, and its remedy, by Dr. Franklin D. Clum; and "An Elementary Treatise on Human Anatomy," by Joseph Leidy, Professor of Anatomy in the University of Pennsylvania. Of political interest will be "Tenure and Toil, or, the rights and wrongs of property and labor," proposing such remedial legislation as is necessary to limit ownership of land, restrict capital, destroy trusts, and protect labor, by John Gibbons, of the Chicago Bar; and of religious importance, "Jesus in Modern Life," by Algernon Sydney Logan, author of "A Feather from the World's Wing." A very useful book for literary workers will be "The Writer's Handbook," a general guide to the art of composition and style, uniform with "Brewer's Reader's Handbook;" and the many ladies who for pleasure or profit take interest in the subject will find an excellent book in the translation of Ernest Lefébvre's work on "Embroidery and Lace," containing upwards of one hundred and fifty illustrations. In juveniles the house provides two books for boys and two for girls: "Boys' Book of Indoor Sports," "Boys' Book of Outdoor Sports;" "Girls' Own Book," and "Aunt Diana," a new story by Rosa Nouchette Carey.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. last year brought out a beautiful Library edition of Victor Hugo's "Les Misérables." In the same style they this year issue his "Nôtre-Dame," in two volumes, with two additional chapters and the note to the last edition specially translated—these contain four beautiful plates from "The Book of Gold;" "The Man Who Laughs," in two volumes, with portrait of Hugo and frontispiece; "Toilers of the Sea," in two volumes, with two plates, and "Ninety-Three," translated by Aline Delano, with two plates. Thus the complete set of Hugo's romances is now ready in twelve volumes, printed in large, handsome type on clear white paper and bound in choicely decorated cloth covers of various pretty shades. They can also be had in half calf and half morocco. The house has nearly ready a cheaper edition of Barrère's "Argot and Slang," a new French and English dictionary of cant words, quaint expressions, slang terms, and flash phrases used in high and low life in old and new Paris, a work that will be very helpful when reading such writers as Balzac or Victor Hugo in the original. They are also preparing new editions of Grote's "History of Greece from the Earliest Period to the Close of the Generation Contemporary with Alexander the Great," in ten volumes, with portrait and plans; a new and cheaper edition of "Shakespeare's Works," by Richard Grant White—this edition is in six volumes, has most valuable notes, and includes the plays and poems, White's biography of Shakespeare, an essay on "The Rise and Progress of the English Drama," and much matter not found in other editions; also a new edition of Rev. A. P. Peabody's translations from Cicero, comprising his "Senectute," "Officiis," "Amicitia," and "Tusculan Disputations."

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have in press "The Life of the Right Hon. Stratford Canning: Viscount Stratford de Redcliffe," edited from his memoirs and private papers by Stanley Lane-Poole; "The Illustrated Optical Manual," by Surgeon-General Sir T. Longmore, a handbook of instruction for testing quality and range of vision, and of guidance in dealing with optical defects in general, illustrated with seventy-four drawings and diagrams by Inspector-General Dr. Macdonald; "A Handbook of Cryptogamic Botany," by A. W. Bennett, Lecturer on Botany at St. Thomas' Hospital, and George R. Milne Murray, of the Natural History Department in the British Museum, a work covering the most recent discoveries and observations; "Graphics, or, the art of calculation by drawing lines," by Robert H. Smith, Professor of Civil Engineering at Birmingham, England; "Practical Socialism," by Rev. S. A. Barnett, Vicar of St. Jude's, Whitechapel, and Henrietta O. Barnett; "Our Kin Across the Sea," by J. C. Firth, with preface by James A. Froude; and "Uncle Pierce," a novel, by Charles Blatherwick, said by the Scotsman to be a curiously interesting story. The house announces as nearly ready "The Son of Man in His Relation to the Race," a reëxamination of the 25th chapter of the Gospel of St. Matthew, from the 31st to the 46th verses, and "Great Circle Sailing," by Richard A. Proctor, indicating the shortest sea-routes, and describing maps for finding them in a few seconds, the charts of which are published separately. Later on may be expected "The Son of a Star," a romance of the second century, by Benjamin Ward Richardson, founded upon events in the lives of Bar-Cochebas or Bar-Cohab, the last great leader of the Jewish people in the final struggle for national independence; and "The Private Correspondence of Daniel O'Connell," consisting chiefly of the hitherto unpublished letters of the great emancipator, merely connected by sufficient narrative to explain their occasion. Many of these letters are to his wife, but they are all on topics of public interest. Besides these miscellaneous works, the house publishes a big line of school-books, of which the titles can be found in our classified list under Education, Language, etc.

THE D. LOTHROP CO. is making extensive preparations for the holiday business, and getting up some illustrated books that are sure to prove attractive. "Old Concord: her highways and byways," is made up of a charming series of papers on that famous, patriotic town, by Mrs. Margaret Sidney, in which this industrious writer, whose identity with Mrs. Lothrop is now an open secret, gives the traditions and recollections of the oldest inhabitant, and of photographs by A. W. Hosmer and L. J. Bridgman. The publishers have spent time and money on this book, and take some pride in its publication. Rose Porter, whose nice taste makes all her compilations so satisfactory, has prepared an outline "Story of Mary the Mother," as told in Bible language and in historical and legendary art, which will be illustrated by eleven full-page engravings of celebrated pictures of the Holy Family. A work of great interest will be the "Longfellow Remembrance Book," in which E. S. Brooks, the literary member of the firm, gives an outline of the poet's life, and Samuel Longfellow the story of his brother's boyhood and relations with children, to which are added Whittier's poem on the occasion of the unveiling of the memorial in Westminster Abbey, Miss Guiney's poem on the same occasion, and many portraits and illustrations. Mr. Brooks is also the editor of the Story of the States series, begun in the spring, in which two new volumes will appear during the season: "Story of Louisiana," by Maurice Thompson, and "Story of Vermont," by John L. Heaton. Charles Lamb's immortal "Dissertation upon Roast Pig" will be brought out with twelve characteristic designs by L. J. Bridgman; "Pansies for Thoughts" is compiled by Grace Livingston from the writings of "Pansy;" "Here and Beyond: beautiful words of life," is a collection of quotations from upwards of one hundred and forty authors, edited by Carrie A. Cooke; Warwick Brooks' "Pencil Pictures of Child Life" will have biographical reminiscences by T. Letherbow; and J. T. Trowbridge has prepared a volume of verse to be called "The Lost Earl, and Other Poems and Tales in Verse," and to appear in quarto form with numerous illustrations. In the always popular souvenirs and booklets the house promises some pretty novelties, among which we briefly mention: "The Star Bearer," by Edmund Clarence Stedman, illustrated by Howard Pyle, printed in black, red, and gold, and tied with Japanese gold cord; and Count Tolstol's "What People Live By" and "Where There is Love There is God" have been handsomely decorated and tastefully gotten up, and will make tasteful gifts to people of cultured taste. "Glimpses into Great Fields" is said to be a book of interest, written by Rev. J. A. Hall. Throughout the year this house furnishes children with handsome and instructive books, but at Christmas-time it fairly floods the market with this special branch of its industry. Of especial charm to boys will be "My Uncle Florimond," by Sidney Luska, illustrated by G. W. Edwards; "Little Joe," by James Otis; "Howling Wolf and His Trick Pony," by Lizzie W. Champney, illustrated by Frank T. Merrill, a genuine Indian story; "A Young Prince of Commerce," a lesson in business life by Selden R. Hopkins; "The Ring in the Cliff," by Frank West Rollins, illustrated by Bridgman; "A Schoolboy's Pleasure Book," full of illustrations; "Across Lots," by Horace Lunt, with introduction by John Burroughs; "Off for Boyhood" and "White Sails," by Emily Huntingdon Nason, a favorite writer in Wide Awake; "Ned Harwood's Visit to Jerusalem," by Mrs. S. G. Knight; and last but by no means least "The Story of the American Sailor," by E. S. Brooks, who sketches the rise and progress of American seamanship and teaches many historical facts in his ever-popular and improving manner. Girls have not been neglected either, and many of the authors identified with Wide Awake will have their contributions to that enterprising periodical brought out in pretty books. "Judge Burnham's Daughters," by "Pansy," is just ready, and will be followed in rapid succession by "Some Successful Women," by Sarah K. Bolton; "Schoolgirls' Pleasure Book;" "A Queer Little Princess," a quaint story by Frances Eaton; and "The Secrets of Roseladies," by Mary Hartwell Catherwood, illustrated by Rogers. Of equal interest to boys and girls will be "A Strange Company," stories of all kinds of animals, by C. F. Holder, illustrated by Beard; "Dog Tales" and "Cat Tales," both profusely illustrated, and "Tiny Folk in Red and Black," giving stories of red and black ants and their curious ways; "Christmas-tide Stories and Poems," by Hezekiah Butterworth, a handsome book; "Luck of Edenhall," by Amanda B. Harris; and the family edition of "The Pilgrim's Progress," profusely illustrated. But there are still many more announced for which we have not space, of which the titles will be found in our classified list under Juvenile Literature. The publishers this year call special attention to their sets of books in boxes, to which many excellent additions have been made.

A. LOVELL & Co.'s announcements being all intended for schools will be found in the classified list in this number under Education, Language, etc.

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. will have three new volumes in the French Writers series, which they are having specially translated by Melville B. Anderson, not being satisfied with the translation published in England. "George Sand" and "Mme. de Sévigné" were the first issues, and will be followed by "Montesquieu," by Albert Sorel, in whom the learned writer of the "Spirit of the Laws" has found a worthy biographer; "Turgot," by Leon Say, who also does full justice to the French Comptroller of Finances, whose integrity and benevolence cost him his place, and deals most fearlessly with the timely topics of finance, trade, and labor now agitating the civilized world; and by "Victor Cousin," by Jules Simon, who, although a metaphysician writing the biography of a metaphysician, has made a bright and often amusing book. A "Life of Shelley," written by Felix Rabbe, a Frenchman, and translated by Mrs. Cashel Hoey, will meet a recognized want for a compact, comprehensive biography of Shelley, inexpensive in form and popular in style. Of great literary interest also will be Sir Philip Sidney's "Astrophel and Stella," edited by Alfred Pollard, a little volume uniform with the "Sappho" selections issued last year, a book in which the editor will tell the origin of these sonnets and their relation to the real life of the brilliant young courtier, and supply nearly sixty pages of carefully prepared notes. George P. Upton, who has done such good work in his volumes on "Standard Operas," "Standard Oratorios," and "Standard Cantatas," has now devoted a book to instrumental music, which will be issued as "The Standard Symphonies," giving an insight into their stories, their music, and the lives of their composers. A novel and happy idea has been incorporated in a little volume compiled by Agnes Stevens, who in about 150 extracts from leading English and American novelists gets her statistics for "How Men Propose," and works up an uncommonly piquant book. "The Viking" is a dramatic romance of the North, by Elwyn A. Barron, written in verse, for which Lawrence Barrett has furnished a most flattering preface; and "A Handbook for Pilgrims" will be a small and pretty volume of selections of a religious character adapted as a gift-book for old and young. Rev. J. H. Crooker has written a book on the problem of problems, which will be issued under the name of "Jesus Brought Back," giving some of the most important results of recent scholarship, and interpreting his character and teachings in a way to have a powerful effect on human lives. A wholly rewritten, greatly enlarged edition of David Starr Jordan's "Manual of the Vertebrate Animals of the United States, inclusive of the marine species," a work that has become a standard authority, printed from entirely new stereotype plates, completes an unusually attractive list, and may be truly said to give "backbone" to the lighter material of which it is chiefly composed.

DAVID MCKAY, Philadelphia, calls special attention to his Reader's Edition of "Shakespeare's Complete Works," in which the text of Malone and Steevens has been used and all the poems and sonnets included. This edition includes a biography, index to characters, glossary of obsolete terms, and a concordance covering over 3200 familiar passages, designed not so much as a complete concordance of Shakespeare's works but as a selection of all the desirable quotations, inserted under the most prominent word, thus avoiding endless duplicating and the inserting of thousands of trivial passages. There are also added explanatory notes selected from the works of Johnson, Reed, Farmer, and other commentators. The edition is in eight octavo volumes, illustrated by steel-engravings and two photogravures, carefully printed on best plate paper. Mr. McKay also mentions particularly an edition of Emerson's "Essays," in two volumes, each complete in itself and sold separately if desired, in which he takes some pride for neatness of print and get-up. The remainder of the books on this publisher's growing list can scarcely be inserted in announcements of new books, as they have all already been recorded. A new volume by Walt Whitman called "November Days" is spoken of, but is not yet officially announced.

MACMILLAN & Co.'s fall announcements are devoted chiefly to educational books, the titles of which will be found in our classified list under Education, Language, etc. In miscellaneous literature there will be "A Popular Handbook to the National Gallery," in two volumes, by Edward T. Cook, with a preface by John Ruskin, of which there will also be a limited large-paper edition; "Eighteenth Century Literature," by Edmund Gosse; "The Elements of Politics," by Henry Sidgwick, Knightbridge Professor of Moral Philosophy in the University of Cambridge, and author of "Methods of Ethics," "Principles of Political Economy," etc.; and a new edition of Rev. J. P. Mahaffy's and Rev. J. H. Bernard's "Commentary on Kant's Kritik."

The English text of "The Epistle to the Hebrews" will be edited with commentary by Rev. F. Rendall, formerly Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge. The house will add to its long list of first-class fiction "The Weaker Vessel," by J. Christie Murray, and "The Mediation of Ralph Hardelet," by Prof. W. Minto, author of "The Crack of Doom."

JOHN P. MORTON, Louisville, Ky., has just ready the third Filson Club publication, the title of which is "The Pioneer Press of Kentucky." The book was written at the request of Kentucky's historical association, the Filson Club, by William Henry Perrin. It takes up the history of the press with the establishment of the old "Kentucke Gazette," over one hundred years ago, following it down to the first daily newspaper, and mentioning more or less extensively every paper printed in the State during that period; also sketching the lives of all the prominent editors from John Bradford to Shadrach Penn and George D. Prentice. It is gotten up uniform with the "Life of John Filson" and "The Wilderness Road" and issued in limited numbers. The Filson Club have also taken in hand the labor of preparing a series of biographies of leading pioneers in the settlement of Kentucky, of which some, having general interest, will be printed and published by this firm. Of these "The Life and Times of Hon. Caleb Wallace," Judge of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, will be brought out. It will contain correspondence with Hon. John Breckinridge and Gov. Patrick Henry. Judge Wallace was one of the founders of Hampden-Sidney College and of the Washington and Lee University. The biography is by Prof. Wm. H. Whitsitt, of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, who gives an exhaustive account of the part Judge Wallace took in organizing the Presbyterian Church in Kentucky. "Home Life in Florida," by Helen Harcourt, will also be published by this house.

JOEL MUNSELL'S SONS, if subscriptions received offer sufficient guarantee of success, will publish "A Supplement to the Index to American Genealogies," by D. S. Durrie, which they brought out in April, 1886; also the journal of a director of Northwest Co. of Montreal, kept in 1806, during a visit to the Mandan Indians, with an introductory essay and annotations by Rev. Dr. Edward D. Neill, Professor of History and Political Science in Macalister College, St. Paul, Minn. This is a work which will not only interest the ethnologist, but will give valuable facts to the settlers of Dakota and Montana. It will make a book uniform with the former works of the author published by the house. "Virginia Co.," "Virginia Vetusta," and "Virginia Carolorum."

THE NATIONAL TEMPERANCE SOC. AND PUB. HOUSE will publish at once "Slaying the Dragon," by Mrs. D. O. Clark, and in October "Trumpet Notes for the Temperance Battlefield," by J. N. Stearns and H. P. Main. They also announce any quantity of handbill tracts, children's illustrated tracts, packets of temperance tracts, and all kinds of miscellaneous publications devoted to the fight against the most powerful enemy of society.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS will have ready in October a new volume in the Pen and Pencil series, which this year is devoted to "Irish Pictures" drawn by the Rev. Samuel Manning, Rev.

S. G. Green, and others, whose taste and talent will find many a thing of beauty to transfer to paper in words and pictures in that beautiful and troublesome island, for which nature has done so lavishly and man with such niggardly hand. In color gift-books now ready for the trade there is a series beautifully printed in monotypes comprising "Little Friends," "Serving the King," by Cecilia Havergal and others; "Under the King's Shadow," by W. A. Garratt, M. A. Spiller, and others; and "When to Trust Jesus, and Other Hymns," a companion volume to "Communion, or, a little talk with Jesus," composed of beautiful landscape designs in colors and tints. In religious and devotional books there will be "Lyra Christiana," a treasury of sacred poetry, selected and arranged by H. L. L., author of "Hymns from the Land of Luther;" "Religious Life in Scotland," from the Reformation to the present day, by Prof. Lindsay, Rev. Charles G. McCrie, Rev. Dr. Blair, Rev. Dr. Landels, and Rev. Norman L. Walker, "Why Weepst Thou?" a book for mourners, containing a choice collection of appropriate hymns and sacred poetry; and three pretty little text-books, entitled respectively "Our Daily Bread," "Our Daily Duty," and "Our Daily Food," gotten up in various styles in cloth with red edges, Persian calf, limp, cordage design, frieze design, new engine turned, round corners, etc., at remarkably low figures. For young readers this house always provides extensively. Athol Mayhew has written a sketch of "The Emperor of Germany," which has been illustrated with eight full page pictures by R. Caton Woodville; "What Shall We Talk About?" is for the very young, with thirty-four illustrations; "Whatsoever" is an every-day story by M. A. Paull, author of "Tim's Troubles," and "Great Authors, from Goldsmith to Wordsworth," and "Great Authors, from Macaulay to Browning," contain biographies and copious selections calculated to cultivate the literary taste of youthful readers. Into the long array of books in sets and boxes and books of every kind, ranging in price from ten cents to five dollars, we cannot enter. Everything the Nelsons publish is good in tone and good in manufacture. The house evidently believes that Bibles and Prayer-Books should be used as faithfully as clothing and calculate on steady wear and tear and also upon a constant change of fashion. They have a variety of sizes and bindings that must be puzzling to the stock clerks, and to the uninitiated might almost as well be catalogued in cipher. But any kind of Bible in any size and any binding and at any price they have, and one of the greatest temptations is to go and look at them, and it properly displayed by even small dealers many customers might be found who cannot resist the "outside" of these temptations. This year there is also on hand the Jubilee Bible, of which a fac simile was sent to Queen Victoria and accepted graciously on the fiftieth anniversary of her accession to her kingdom on which now the sun never sets. This is a square 16mo Bible without the many teacher's aids, handsomely bound, containing all the important maps and references and index to the same.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. will issue a translation of Zola's latest work, "Le Rêve," which tells the history of a young girl in perfectly unobjectionable form according to the verdict of home and foreign papers. The continued popularity of Mrs. Southworth's books have induced Messrs.

Peterson & Bros. to issue four of her best known novels, "The Maiden Widow," "Family Doom," "Cruel as the Grave," and "Tried for Her Life," in paper editions at 25 cents each. They have also issued in the same style and at the same price Zola's "Nana," "L'Assommoir," "La Tègre," "Nana's Daughter," and "Germinal."

PORTER & COATES this year add a new volume to their Bells Series in "Gems from Tennyson," illustrated with twenty six engravings from drawings by Hammatt Billings, and gotten up in all the dainty costumes that have thus far made the series tempting, of which the "ivory surface," introduced last year, seemed to meet with pronounced appreciation. A new edition of Henry T. Coates' "Fireside Encyclopedia of Poetry," which makes number twenty-seven, will be brought out, thoroughly revised, giving portraits of prominent American poets and fac-similes of their handwriting. About one hundred and fifty new poems have been inserted, all the old material has been revised, and the volume will be furnished in half a dozen different styles of binding. Their well-known series of Octavo Poets, comprising all the classic English names, has been treated to a new suit of embossed leather, with padded sides and burnished yellow edges, and makes a rich, tasteful appearance at a remarkably reasonable price. In young people's literature the house announces "Wyoming, or, the valley fugitives," by Edward S. Ellis; "Bob Burton, or, the young ranchman of Missouri," by Horatio Alger, Jr.; and "Esther's Fortune," a romance for girls, by Lucy C. Lillie, who has already had a good story published this year under the title of "My Mother's Enemy."

JAMES POTT & Co. have in press "A Guide to the Observance of the Canons of the Church Affecting Those Who are Seeking Holy Orders," by Rev. Wm J. Seabury; Stubbs' "Manual for the Training of Boy Choirs," with preface by Rev. J. S. B. Hodges; "Analytics of a Belief in a Future Life," by L. P. Gratacap; "A Life of Christ for Young Readers," by Cunningham Geikie, fully illustrated, a limited edition of the "Hymnal" as revised and supplemented by the joint committee of the General Convention, on large paper, and also a popular edition; and the second edition of Geikie's "The Holy Land and the Bible." They have just ready a new and cheaper edition of "The Sermons of Padre Agostino," delivered to congregations averaging eight thousand souls, which have been carefully translated and edited by C. M. Phillimore, and give the thoughts of this modern Savonarola on God, the soul, the spirituality and immortality of the soul, the purpose of life, the claim of God on our lives, family life, pain, hope, Sunday liberty, the working classes, etc. Volume 9 in "The Contemporary Pulpit," published semi-annually, covers from January to July, 1888, giving sermons, expositions, outlines of texts, sermons on subjects of the day, etc., by the best preachers, teachers, and scholars of the present day in England; "Alive unto God" is a series of sermons by Holland, Luckock, Benham, Dover, and others, intended specially for Lent and Eastertide, edited by T. B. Dover; and "Twilight Memories" is a pretty little booklet, selected and arranged by G. Thompson Hutchinson, illustrated by G. H. Edwards and A. Woodruff with thirty-two pages of original drawings, printed in five workings on a specially made plate paper, with a cover printed in ten colors and tied with silk ribbon. Two very pretty stories for the young are "The Dragon of the North," a tale of the Normans in Italy, by E. J. Oswald, of which Miss Yonge says: "I have read nothing like it since Sintram;" and a new gem by the author of "Miss Toosey's Mission" and "Laddie," to be called simply "Pen: a new story." The house is also ready to supply a very large selection of Bibles and Prayer-Books and Hymnals. They have the Cambridge Bibles and Testaments, the Bagster Polyglot Bibles, and the Child's Pictorial Bible, with forty-eight illustrations. These are gotten up in B. Collins & Sons' London bindings in many styles. The publishers have also just ready "The Lambeth Conference, 1888," containing the Encyclical letter, the resolution and reports, which will be of great interest to all members of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

L. PRANG & Co. are again preparing many things of beauty for the fall trade. Year by year it would seem almost impossible to get up new ideas in art color books, a field now worked by so many of our leading publishers. Still this house, by forethought, energy, generosity, and good taste, always holds its own in its special line. This year a specially appropriate thought is given to children in a charming book entitled "Louisa May Alcott—the children's friend," giving a biographical sketch of the lamented author by Edna D. Cheney, with some characteristic poems and illustrations by Lizbeth B. Comins. The frontispiece shows Miss Alcott surrounded by troops of children, a very fine piece of color printing. Miss Comins also shows pretty work in "The Birds' Christmas," a lovely story written and illustrated by this talented lady. Louis K. Harlow, whose work met with such favor last winter, has been untiring, and nine of the new publications are illustrated by his graceful pencil. "The Voice of the Grass," a poem by Sarah Roberts, with six full-page illustrations in color, and seven monochrome plates, offered in paper cover with hand-painted title and also in silk plush and satin; "Mount Desert—autographs," with twelve illustrations and many blank leaves for autographs; "Golden Milestones," poetic selections, with ten monochrome plates; "Flotsam and Jetsam," four plates in color and four in monochrome with appropriate verses, fastened in the form of the mainsail of a yacht, the mast, gaff, and boom being nickel-plated, with a sail of silk with hand-painted title; "Come, Sunshine, Come," a poem from the French, with six full-page illustrations; "The Home of Shakespeare, containing eight full-page illustrations after water-color sketches painted on the spot, giving charming views of Stratford-on-Avon, appropriately dedicated to all lovers of Shakespeare, and especially to George W. Childs, of Philadelphia; "The Christmas Processional," a poem by Tertius, and "The Home of Evangeline," profusely illustrated with water-color sketches taken on the spot; and "Echoes in Aquarelle from Along Shore," giving illustrations in aquarelle and monotint of the scenery of Mt. Desert. A pretty novelty is "Autograph Recipes," a book for the reception of cooking recipes, containing blank leaves of white paper, appropriate, humorous verses and illustrations by Alice G. Sheldon and Jean H. Ward. "A Gay Day for Seven" is a juvenile story profusely illustrated; Rose Terry Cooke's "Old Garden" has been illustrated by Harriet D. Andrews and Mary K. Talcott; and a very handsome publication is "Baby's Lullaby Book—mother songs," by Charles Stuart Pratt, illustrated in water-colors by W. L. Taylor, with music by G. W. Chadwick, in which full justice is done to the touching subject by composer, artist, musician, and publisher. Besides these books there are numbers of etchings prepared, and an array of Christmas and New Year's cards, novelties, and satin art prints of which the cold list of titles would give a most inadequate idea. Every poet, every land, every season, every hour of day and night seem to have found interpretation.

THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION will have ready "The Lost Faith and Difficulties of the Bible," two explanatory articles by T. S. Childs bound in one pretty little volume; and Mrs. T. S. Childs, in a little book called "The Altar of Earth," explains the meaning of the Old Testament sacrifices, in a series of letters that purport to be written from a Bible class-teacher to a pupil confused on the subject. "Who Wins?" is a story for boys, by Belle V. Chisholm, pointing the value of noble plans and steady application; in "Ruthie's Story," Charles Stedman Newhall lets one child tell the story of Jesus to other children in a very pretty way; "Saved by Grace" is a biographical sketch of Davis Johnson, Jr., told by Rev. John D. Wells; and "Mrs. Darwing's Daughter," by Helen B. Williams, tells the story of the numerous trials and final success of a motherless girl in her struggle with the world. The "Westminster Question-Book" for 1889 is again ready to help teachers using the "International Sunday-School Lessons."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS' announcements always include the whole field of literature, and the poetic and literary works this year selected by them show the well-known, inherited, cultured taste of this veteran house. In history and biography they will bring out "The Writings of George Washington," edited by Worthington C. Ford, to be completed in fourteen volumes uniform with Lodge's "Hamilton" and Bigelow's "Franklin," and like these forerunners also only to appear in limited edition; "Omitted Letters from American History Disclosed in the Papers of Edmund Randolph," by Moncure D. Conway, who can do more work in a given time than most literary men; the first part of "A History of Greece," by Evelyn Abbott, Fellow of Balliol College, covering the subject from the earliest times to the Ionian revolt; and "The Story of Boston" in the Great Cities of the Republic series, written by Arthur Gilman, another untiring producer. The next volumes announced in their excellent Story of the Nations series are: "The Story of Mediæval France," by Gustave Masson; "Holland," by J. E. Thorold Rogers; "Mexico," by Susan Hale; "The Hanse Towns," by Helen Zimmern; "The Crusades," by T. A. Archer; "Phœnicia," by George Rawlinson; and "Early England," by Alfred J. Church. The only work strictly biographical is "The Life of Dr. Wells Williams," by Frederick Wells Williams. A descriptive work of interest will be "Sketches from the Saddle by a Septuagenarian," by John Codman. Religious works are covered by "Some Chapters of Judaism and the Science of Religion," by Rabbi Louis Grossman, and "Christian Doctrine Harmonized," by John Steinfert Kedney, Professor at the Seabury Divinity School. In fiction the announcements are "Behind Closed Doors," by Anna Katharine Green, that skilled writer of detective stories; "The Tory's Daughter," by A.

G. Riddle; "Would You Have Left Her?" by Wm. F. Kip; and "Our Uncle and Aunt," by A. Martin. In poetry may be expected "Madeleine," a collection of poems by Chauncey D. Brewer; "The Prophet, and Other Poems," by Isaac Baxley; "Tancred's Daughter, and Other Poems," by Charles G. Blonden; "Idyls of the Golden Shore," by Hugh Maxwell; and "Rebel Rhymes," by Elizabeth J. Hereford. In general literature the house will have a second edition of "The Best Books," a reader's guide to the choice of the best available books in all departments of literature down to 1887, with the dates of the first and latest editions, and the prices, sizes, and names of publishers of every book, compiled and now considerably enlarged by Swan Sonnenschein; the second part of "American Literature," by Chas. F. Richardson, covering the subjects of poetry and fiction from 1607 to 1885, and completing the work; "British Letters Illustrative of Character and Social Life," in three volumes, edited by E. T. Mason, uniform with "Humorous Masterpieces;" "Popular Tales from the Norse," by George Webbe Dasent, with an introductory essay on the origin and diffusion of popular tales; "Proverbs and Phrases of All Ages," classified by subject and arranged alphabetically in two volumes; "Selections from the Prose Works of Lessing," edited by Horatio S. White, of Cornell; a reissue in new form of "The Complete Works of Washington Irving," known as the Spuyten Duyvil edition, in 24 volumes; and the "Sketch-Book of Geoffrey Crayon, Gent.," beautifully printed from new plates in the Katrina edition, one of the many beautiful reissues of the works of this author, who personally made his bargain with the late G. P. Putnam for the publication of the works that made much money for himself and his publishers. In the dainty little Knickerbocker Nuggets series are just ready or soon to be issued "Undine and Sintram," by La Motte Fouqué, that exquisite story of the finding of a woman's soul; Thackeray's "Ring and the Book;" Moore's "Irish Melodies;" Lamb's "Essays of Elia;" and "Stories from the Italian Poets," by Leigh Hunt. Of medical value will be "Suggestive Therapeutics," a study of the nature and use of hypnotism, by Prof. Bernheim, of the University of Nancy, translated by Dr. Christian A. Herter. The present head of this house is known as an untiring worker for reform and good legislation. A long list of publications which in the nature of things can yield but little profit testify to his enthusiasm. In the Questions of the Day series will be issued "The President's Message, 1887," with annotations by R. R. Bowker. There is also a small édition de luxe of the "President's Message" with illustrations by Thos. Nast; "The Tariff History of the U. S., 1789-1888," by F. W. Taussig; "Essays on Practical Politics," by Theodore Roosevelt; and "Friendly Letters to American Farmers and Others," by J. S. Moore. Works of economic and political science will be the first part of "An Introduction to English Economic History and Theory," by W. J. Ashley, devoted to the Middle Ages; "The Present Condition of Economic Science," by Edward C. Lunt; "The Centennial of a Revolution" and "The Economic Interpretation of History," by Thorold Rogers, being his lectures delivered at Oxford. Several interesting volumes are also promised to younger readers, of which the most important are "Three Greek Children," by Prof. A. J. Church; "Tales of King Arthur and His Knights of the Round Table," by Margaret Vere Farrington; with illustrations by Fredericks and others; "Great Thoughts for Little Thinkers," by Lucia T. Ames; and "Silver Treasury of Poetry for Home and School," selected and arranged by Anna C. Bracket and Ida M. Eliot, also well illustrated.

RAND, McNALLY & CO. announce a copyright illustrated translation of Zola's "The Dream," by Mrs. Eliza E. Chase, to appear at the same time the original is put on the Paris market. In their Globe Library they will have "Joe: a remarkable case," by E. R. Roe, author of "The Gray and the Blue;" "Danira," translated from the German of E. Werner by M. J. Safford, who also has translated Countess Schwerin's "Three Years" for the same series; "The Unpopular Public," by the author of "Her Daily Bread," published last season; and "Raleigh Rivers," a tale of the new South, by O. O'B. Strayer. Geo. Ohnet's "The Ironmaster" will be published with illustrations in illuminated cloth cover; and in 50-cent paper editions there will be "Daniel Trentworthy," a story of the great fire, by John McGovern; and "Merze Mignot," the story of an actress' life, by Marah Ellis Ryan. The publishers expect to make a handsome book of "Wild Fowl Shooting," by Wm. Bruce Leffingwell, profusely illustrated and bound in half morocco. Charles G. Leland has edited "Minor Arts and Industries," a series of illustrated and practical manuals for school use and for self-instruction, including "Drawing and Designing;" "Wood-Carving;" "Embroidery;" "Leather Work;" "Agriculture;" "House-Keeping;" "Metal Work;" "Modelling;" "Carpentering;" "Commerce," etc. A useful publication will be Croll's "Railway Speed, Chart, and Time Table Calculator."

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. will print the first American from the eleventh London edition of "Historical Memoirs of Canterbury," by Arthur Penrhyn Stanley, and issue it uniform with the large-paper edition of the "Memorials of Westminster Abbey," which proved so great a success last season. This famous book, like the one of last year, will be printed in the best style of the University Press and will contain in addition to the illustrations of the English edition a fine etched portrait of Dean Stanley. The edition will be strictly limited to 600 numbered and registered copies, which, considering the elegance of manufacture, will be sold at a most reasonable price. "Fifty Years of English Song," edited and arranged by Henry F. Randolph, with biographical and historical notes, will be brought out in a large-paper edition limited to 250 copies, elegantly printed and handsomely mounted in boards, which cannot fail to be appreciated by such students of English literature as are among the favored mortals that are allowed to collect fine books. The same excellent editor has selected and arranged "The Book of Latter-Day Ballads," giving the best American and English ballads published within the last thirty years. The arrangement is chronological, and full biographical and explanatory notes have been appended, making the volume of service to general readers and students of English literature. A work which will be full of interest, especially to elder Gothamites, will be the "Autobiography of Samuel Irenæus Prime," the writer of the telling "Irenæus Letters" and for many years the talented editor of the New York Observer, a position now held by the editor of the volume in question, Wendell Prime, who up to a certain period allows his father to tell the story of his life in his own words and later has made excellent use of the material left by him in manuscript in filling out and rounding out the story of a most useful and busy life. A portrait of Dr. Prime in his later years prefaces the volume. Several volumes of religious speculation will also be of interest to the fair-minded of every creed and persuasion. "Our Celestial Home" is subtitled "An Astronomer's Views of Heaven," and is written by I. I. Porter, Director of the Cincinnati Observatory, who treats an old theme from a new point of observation, and refutes the common opinion that heaven is beyond the stars by reverent and scholarly reasoning which has brought him to the conviction that heaven is nearer than we think. "The Way Out" is a story of doubt and belief by Rev. L. P. Keyser, who sets forth the life and experience of a college student to show some of the phases of modern doubt and its effects on life and character, and then presents the only "way out" of the perplexities of unbelief; "Rest Awhile," by Rose Porter, contains discussions with a friend on certain questions relating to religious life, written in the same attractive manner as her previous work, "In Quietness and Confidence," to which it forms a fitting companion volume; "The Peerless Prophet," a vivid picture of the time immediately preceding the advent of John the Baptist, by Rev. Archibald McCullagh; and "The Testimony of Justin Martyr to Early Christianity," which consists of the lectures delivered on the L. P. Stone foundation at Princeton Theological Seminary in March of this year, by Geo. T. Purves, whose clear views of earlier and later Christianity are reasoned from to give readers new confidence in an intelligent reading of the New Testament, the foundation of Church unity. A quaint, old-fashioned book is promised in "Sunday Rhymes from the Days of Our Grandmothers," seventeen of the "Original Poems," by the Taylor family, a famous book in its day, which have been selected by George Wharton Edwards for illustration, and most successfully has he accomplished his task, preserving in illustrations, tail-pieces, title-page and half-title that great appropriateness, which earned him so much praise in his work on Dr. Holmes' "The Last Leaf," a year or two ago. The form of the book is long and narrow, and in every respect the old-fashioned look is retained, which cannot fail to attract the readers of the present generation to the rhymes that delighted their grandmothers. The new volumes in the Men of the Bible series will be "Isaiah," by Canon Driver; "Gideon," by Dr. Lang; and "Jeremiah," by Canon Cheyne. New and cheaper editions are forthcoming of "The Memorials of Westminster Abbey" and "The Inn of Rest." All the cardboard booklets and pretty birthday-books and text-books will also be gotten ready in new and tasteful forms.

FLEMING H. REVELL makes a specialty of evangelical literature, and announces several works in that line for fall publication. "Bible Stories and Pictures" will be a large square quarto containing twenty-four full-page colored plates and about forty pages of vignettes in sepia tint, besides well-printed letter-press pages; "New Notes for Bible Readings" were prepared by J. H. Elliott and the late S. R. Briggs, and will be published with a biographical sketch of the latter by Rev. J. H. Brookes; "Daily Food for Daily Life" will be printed tastefully with red line border, and will be bound in cloth and also in white enamel covers, bevelled gilt edges, and silk tied; D. L. Moody's "Bible Characters," embracing the lives of Daniel, Lot, John the Baptist, Joseph of Aramathea, and others, will be added to their long list of books by the great revivalist; "How I Reached the Masses" will give twenty-two lectures delivered in the Birmingham Town Hall on Sunday afternoons by Rev. Chas. Leach; "Robert Morrison," the pioneer of Chinese missions, and "John Griffith," the founder of the Kankow Mission, Central China, will be the subjects of the two new volumes in the Missionary Biographical series; "Foreign Missions of Protestant Churches" gives a clear and comprehensive résumé of the methods and conditions of missionary enterprise, written by Dr. J. Murray Mitchell; and "Papers on Preaching," by Bishop Baldwin, Rev. Principal Rainy, and Rev. J. R. Vernon, should be studied by preachers of every denomination. Valuable as works of reference will be "A Complete Dictionary of Synonyms and Antonyms," by Rt. Rev. Samuel Fallows, with an appendix embracing a dictionary of Briticisms, Americanisms, colloquial phrases, etc., in current use; the "Works of Flavius Josephus," translated by Wm. Whiston, with life, portrait, and notes; "Revell's Imperial Globe Atlas of Modern and Ancient Geography," containing thirty-three imperial quarto maps and an alphabetical index of 20,000 names; a new edition of "Smith's Bible Dictionary;" and a "Students' Handbook of Topical Texts." Very useful in Bible study will be "Scripture Questions and Answers," a series of 4000 questions covering the entire Bible; and three volumes of "Text-Books for Bible Classes," one by Rev. J. Gurney Hoar and the other two by Flavel S. Cook, each forming a year's course of instruction for Sunday-schools, Bible-classes, or home study. An entirely new edition from new plates of Hannah Whitehall Smith's "The Christian's Secret of a Happy Home" will also be ready this season.

ROBERTS BROS. have in preparation a fine edition of Edward Everett Hale's "Man Without a Country," that wonderfully touching picture, written in 1863, of which nearly 400,000 were circulated during the war, and which did so much to inspire patriotism and bring recruits to the army. Twenty-five years from the time of its first issue the publishers choose it as their holiday book, have had it illustrated by Frank T. Merrill, and will get it up appropriately. An interesting and timely holiday publication will be "The Book of Christmas," by Frank K. Hervey, giving descriptions of the different customs, ceremonies, traditions, superstitions, noble thoughts, fun, and festivities of the Christmas season as kept in different lands, with illustrations by R. Seymour. Oscar Wilde has taken time from his various reforms to write five fairy tales, which have been illustrated by Walter Crane and embellished with vignettes and tail-pieces by Jacomb-Hood. A handsome 12mo volume has been made of the late Edward Lear's "Book of Nonsense," "Nonsense Songs, Stories, etc.," "More Nonsense Pictures," and "Laughable Lyrics," that charming and wonderful series of utterly nonsensical rhymes, illustrated by the genial landscape painter during his stay in San Remo, Italy, where he died in January of this year, after a twenty years' residence.

The book will contain all the original illustrations, and a good portrait of the author will also be given. The house has undertaken the publication of a new series to be known as The Handy Library, to contain companionable books for home and travel in several departments of literature, and have issued the first volume, "The Story of an African Farm," by Ralph Iron (Olive Schreiner), which will be followed at intervals by "Glorinda," by Anna Bowman Dodd; Arthur Helps' strong stories, "Casimir Maremma" and "Realmah;" "Counter Currents," by the author of "Justina," in the No Name series; "The Truth About Clement Ker," by the author of "Kismet" and "Mirage;" "One Hundred Romances of Real Life," selected and annotated by Leigh Hunt; "Sylvia Arden," by Oswald Crawford; Thomas Browne's "Religio Medici;" and Silvio Pellico's "My Prisons," giving a sketch of the author's life by Epes Sargent. A volume of selections from the pithy writings of George Meredith will be entitled the "Pilgrim Scrip," and will give a portrait of the poet and novelist and a biographical introduction by the compiler. The next issues in the handsome edition of Balzac published by the firm will be "Cousin Beth," "Louis Lambert," and "Seraphita." A work of interest to theatre-goers will be "Our Recent Actors," consisting of recollections, in many cases personal, and always critical, of recently distinguished performers, both men and women, giving many incidental notices of living actors. A good book, in view of the dissipation planned for the coming gay season, will, be Andrew Holt's "Fancy Dresses Described, or what to wear at fancy balls," which will have sixteen richly-colored full-page plates and many smaller ones. The second volume of "Franklin in France," edited from original documents, by Edward E. Hale and Edward E. Hale, Jr., will be brought out, covering the period from the surrender of Yorktown until his return to America. An edition of Walter Savage Landor's "The Pentameron, Citations from Wm. Shakespeare, and Minor Prose Pieces and Criticisms" has just been put on the market. For the young there is always a complete set of Miss Alcott's works, to which no more can ever be added; "Clover," a sequel to the "Katy Did Stories," by Susan Coolidge, illustrated by Jessie McDermott; "Raymond Kershaw, a story of deserved success," by Maria McIntosh Cox, illustrated by Frank T. Merrill; "Sparrow, the Tramp," a fable for children, by Lily F. Wesselhoeft, profusely illustrated; and "Prince Vance," a story of a prince with a court in his box, written by Arlo Bates and his late wife, Eleanor Putnam, and illustrated by Frank Myrick.

HAROLD ROORBACH makes a specialty of theatrical publications, suitable for church entertainments, school exhibitions, and social gatherings, and gets them up in neat 12mos with generous expenditure on print, paper, and presswork. This season he will furnish "Saved from the Wreck," a drama in three acts, by Thomas K. Serrano; "Between Two Fires," three acts, by E. J. Barnes; "The Gypsies' Festival," a musical entertainment for young folks, by N. Earle; "The Court of King Christmas," a juvenile operetta, by L. A. Higgins, and "The Japanese Wedding," a costume pantomime of wedding ceremonies in Japanese high life, by W. M. Lawlace. A very useful book for those whose pastime is acting will be "The Actor's Make-Up Book," by N. Helmer, who has prepared a comprehensive and systematic treatise on the art of forming theatrical character masks, with special chapters on wigs and beards, typical character masks, treatment of the features, special hints to ladies, etc.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS will continue their finely illustrated editions of translations from French fiction with Sue's "The Wandering Jew," Hugo's "The Man Who Laughs," and Hugo's "Ninety-Three," in uniform style with their "Les Misérables," "The Count of Monte Cristo," "The Toilers of the Sea," and "Nôtre-Dame," previously published. The illustrations for these new volumes are by Ferdinandus, Vierge, Rochegrosse, Bayard, Brion, Hugo himself, and other leading French artists, and are fully up to the high mark of those in the earlier volumes, whose reception was so flattering. The beauty of typography, paper, and presswork, which has given this edition a place all its own, is as noticeable in these later issues as in those that preceded them. Another of their French translations will be a quarto edition of "The Romance of a Poor Young Man," by Feuillet, with a portrait of Feuillet and a hundred illustrations designed by Mouchot, and engraved by Méaulle. The binding is canvas, with stamped colored designs. Two new books by Daudet will be published in two different styles. His "Thirty Years of Paris," in which he charmingly recalls and recites some of his experiences and struggles when he first had his way to make in the great capital, is in the shape made so familiar by the "Tartarin" volumes and "Sappho." His other book, "Robert Helmont," is on larger and heavier paper, and the edition is a strictly limited one. Later on the publishers propose to issue this also uniform with "Tartarin." Ranging with the "Helmont" are two other works from the French, George Sand's "Francis the Waif" and "Madame Chrysanthème," by Pierre Loti, the pseudonym under which Lieut. Viand, of the French Navy, has written a number of novels. The latter is Japanese in scene and incident, and correspondingly Japanese in illustration. The designs for these three volumes and for the "Thirty Years" are by the same hands that pencilled those for Daudet's other works, and possess the same exquisite delicacy which was such a delight to all who saw "Tartarin," "La Belle Nivernaise," and "Sappho." Laurence Sterne's ever favorite "Sentimental Journey" will be another of the choice editions of the house. Jacque and Fussell have made the illustrations, seventy-five in number, and Bastin and G. P. Nicholls have engraved them on wood. The volume will be of the size of "Carmen," published by them a year ago, and of Nerval's "Sylvie," which unfortunately came out too late last season to receive the attention it merited, both for its perfection in manufacture and beauty of style. Randolph Caldecott, the appreciation of whom has so steadily risen since his death, will be represented by "Gleanings from the Graphic," the concluding volume of the Graphic series that this firm have for some years been publishing. Like its predecessors it is overflowing with good-natured laughs at man's follies and weaknesses. "Mars" (whoever he may be) has prepared a companion volume to "Our Darlings" of last year, entitled "Friends and Playmates," in which the graceful and varied illustrations so throng the page as to leave the text but scant room to say its say. These illustrations as well as those for "Gleanings from the Graphic," are in colors, as are also those in "Our Country House" and in "A Journey Round the World." The latter two are companion books for children, both printed by Meissner & Buch, of Leipsic. Cowper's immortal ride of "John Gilpin" has been illustrated by a young American artist (H. Rosa), who somehow seems to catch the very spirit in which the poem was conceived and written, as does Miss Greenaway in the designs she has furnished for Browning's "Pied Piper," another of the new books. This will be printed in colors by Evans, who has printed so much of Miss Greenaway's clever work, and who also prints Caldecott's "Gleanings." For their One-Syllable Historical Course Miss Josephine Pollard has written Histories of the Old and New Testaments (2 vols.), which will be as copiously illustrated as the others in the series, and like them will have map-linings and lithographed double covers. The success of "Stories of Persons and Places in Europe" has led to the publication of a similar book containing "Stories of Persons and Places in America," in which Miss Helen A. Smith presents in a shape to attract the young entertaining descriptions of the natural features of the country, and of striking events in its history and in the lives of its most prominent men. Beginning with a tea-pot and ending with a double wedding, "Pythia's Pupils" recounts the amusing and serious adventures of a cooking-class, with a moral so deftly tucked in that the girls will hardly realize the lesson they are learning while absorbed in the book. The story is a translation from the German of Eva Hartner by Mrs. J. W. Davis. While their sisters are reading this, the boys can be reading more stirring tales, of which the Routledges can furnish them a number: "The Hunting of the Hydra" has its scenes of adventure in South Africa; "Harry Treverton" in Australia; and "From Keeper to Captain" takes the reader to various parts of the world with Her Majesty's Dragoons. "Every Boy's Annual for 1889" and "Little Wide-Awake for 1889" must not be passed, perennial favorites as they are. For younger children Mrs. Acton's (Jeanie Hering) "Put to the Test," Miss Mulock's "A Hero," Evans' "Jimmy," and a new edition of Miss Martineau's "The Billow and the Rock," should all be popular. Among their books for older people, not fiction, are two on travel: one by W. S. Caine, M.P., "My Trip Round the World," to which the author has contributed some two hundred and fifty illustrations; and the other a new and revised edition of Miss Edwards' "A Thousand Miles up the Nile," with numerous illustrations by the author. Miss Edwards' authority as an Egyptologist and the length of time this work has been out of print will give the edition an exceptional value. An atlas which will go on the shelf with 12mo volumes has long been a desideratum in a library. This Bartholomew's "Handy Reference Atlas of the World" will do. It comprises a hundred maps (strongly mounted on guards) made from the latest surveys, and containing not only the most recent geographical and political information, but also the principal physical and commercial features of the world. There are about fifty pages of statistics and a copious and ingenious index which indicates both the map and the exact spot on it where any given place can be found. A translation by Bulwer, Coleridge, and others of Schiller's complete works, in one volume; a new series, The Carisbrooke Library, edited by Morley; Grace Aguilar's "The Women of Israel;" and a cheap edition of Carlyle's writings, we have room only to mention. "Guiding Lights," by Margaret Haycraft, comprises poems of a religious character faced by appropriate full-page illustrations, and with graceful head- and tail-pieces on each page of text. "The Artistic Language of Flowers" has two vocabularies, one arranged by names of flowers and the other by the sentiments they symbolize, both accompanied by suitable poems or verses. Lady Lindsay will give the songs, facts, and legends "About Robins," with colored illustrations; and Christian Burke, in "Roses and Lilies of Christendom," sketches the lives of some of the saintly women of the first thirteen centuries. These do not exhaust by any means the announcements of the house, but they exhaust our available space. But we cannot pass by their almanacs. That by Kate Greenaway has all the inexpressible charm which seems never to leave her pencil, and which makes the children of her brain welcome wherever they wander; and the other, "The Kirmess Almanac," shows the same delightful novelty which the "Cotillion" and the "Japanese" had before it. It is printed in colors and gold, and in its torchon binding displays to full advantages "the dances of all nations."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS' fall announcements include a number of works of the highest importance. Chief in the list stands volume I of the "Cyclopædia of Music and Musicians," edited by William F. Apthorp, of Boston, and John Denison Champlin, Jr. The work is to consist of three quarto volumes, this edition being limited to 500 copies, and is planned upon the same lines as the "Cyclopædia of Painters and Paintings," the extraordinary success of which led the publishers to extend the idea to music. The illustrations will form an important feature of the work; hundreds of portraits of musicians, many of them now printed for the first time, and of singers, many of whom are in costume, fac-simile reproductions of famous scores, views of birth-places, etc. Each of the three volumes will contain twelve full-page portraits especially etched for this edition. Two works of great historical and personal interest are also in preparation. One is entitled "The Diary and Letters of Gouverneur Morris," member of the Continental Congress, Constitutional Convention, Minister to France, etc., in two volumes, edited by Anne Cary Morris. The work is not a biography, the editor supplying merely the thread upon which Morris' letters and the pages from his diary are hung. The narrative really begins when, on his arrival in Paris, in 1789, this keen-witted American saw that momentous events were impending, and began to record in a daily journal his impressions of the people around him and of what was doing. He was in Paris through the Revolution and until the Terror. The gaps in his diary are filled by his private correspondence, which was extensive. Another work, the scope and interest of which are, as its title indicates, both personal and political, is by Hugh McCulloch, Secretary of the Treasury in the administrations of Lincoln, Johnson, and Arthur. The title of the book is, "Men and Measures of Half a Century: reminiscences, sketches, and comments." The few extracts from the book which have appeared in Scribner's Magazine, where they attracted wide attention, constitute only a small portion of its varied contents. "The Viking Age" is the title of a work by Paul B. du Chaillu, to which the author has devoted seven years of incessant labor. It relates to the early history, manners, and customs of the ancestors of the English-speaking nations, illustrated from antiquities discovered in mounds, cairns, and bogs, as well as from the ancient Sagas and Eddas. Vast quantities of curious and beautiful objects in wood and in metals have been unearthed, and, with the literary and historic records of the Sagas and Eddas, present a wonderfully vivid idea of the manners, customs, laws, traditions, and domestic life of a bygone age. Over 1200 illustrations are used to embellish this work, which will be published in two octavo volumes. With the second volume of Thomas Stevens' "Around the World on a Bicycle" is completed the most fascinating work of its kind ever published. The sub-title, "From Teheran to Yokohama," indicates the countries traversed, and suggests the innumerable perils and adventures that befell the daring explorer. The illustrations are numerous, and represent some of the most exciting and picturesque phases of the unique journey. The popularity of the first volume foreshadows a cordial reception for this record of the more dangerous and novel half of the trip. The need of an authoritative and comprehensive account of the origin, growth, and influence of the modern schools of French painting is met in an important book by Mrs. Clara H. Stranahan, entitled "A History of French Painting, from its earliest to its latest practice." An account of the French Academy of Painting, with its salons, schools of instruction, etc., is included, and the location in private and public galleries of all the French masterpieces is pointed out. Every one who has read those bright and entertaining books, "How To Be Happy Though Married" and "Manners Makyth Man," will be interested in a new book by the same author, the title of which is "The Five Talents of Woman: a book for girls and women." Although the book is crammed with entertaining anecdote and quotation, the purpose of the author to help his readers by genial counsel and friendly hints is steadily maintained, his rich fund of illustration being used to this end. In fiction there will be a new volume of tales by that master of the art of story-telling, Frank R. Stockton, entitled "Amos Kilbright: his adscititious experiences, with other stories." The tales in addition to the title-story are: "The Reversible Landscape," "Plain Fishing," and "Dusky Philosophy: In Two Expositions. First Exposition, 'A Story of Seven Devils'; Second Exposition, 'Grandison's Quandary.'" These stories are on a plane with the distinguished author's best work. Then there will be "First Harvests," the brilliant novel by F. J. Stimson, which has been so favorably commented upon while appearing serially in Scribner's Magazine, and which is without question the most important story yet from the pen of this author. Two new theological works are promised. One is the first volume (the sixth in the author's "History of the Christian Church") of the "History of the Reformation," by the Rev. Dr. Philip Schaff, of the Union Theological Seminary. This volume deals with the German Reformation, 1517-1530. The subject is treated exhaustively, and evidences of the ripe scholarship and original investigations of the author are apparent upon every page. "Dogmatic Theology" is the title of a new work in two volumes by the Rev. Dr. William G. T. Shedd, of the Union Theological Seminary. This treatise, the fruit of forty years of severe and most comprehensive study, is a monument of logical argument and subtle discrimination in the field of systematic theology—a formulation of the older Calvinistic and Augustinian doctrines, as derived from the teachings of the fathers of the Church rather than the speculations of recent years. Four new juvenile books are included in the Scribners' list. Howard Pyle has written and illustrated a charming story of mediæval life in Germany, with the title "Otto of the Silver Hand." The sweet and lovable character of the little hero is brought into strong relief by the rough natures and savage ways of the robber baron and his mercenary retainers. The numerous full-page illustrations represent some of the most stirring scenes in the book, and are in Mr. Pyle's best manner. Thomas Nelson Page's "Two Little Confederates," with many illustrations, describes the adventures and incidents, tragic, comic, and pathetic, that happened to two lads who were left at home on a Virginia plantation while the men went forth to fight. The plantation was the scene of numerous raids, and the boys had some exciting times with both the blue and gray coats, the picture of home life in the South during the war being spirited and interesting. The boys and girls will find a deal of entertainment in "Little People and Their Homes in Meadows, Woods, and Waters," by Stella Louise Hook; a book that takes one into the fairyland of all kind of insects, the habits and lives of which are described with dainty grace. The illustrations by Dan and Harry Beard are both helpful and decorative. Miss Henrietta Christian Wright is the author of a new book, "Children's Stories of the Great Scientists," which deals in a simple, entertaining manner with sixteen of the great men of science, giving a brief, readable account of their lives and of the important discoveries they made. Numerous full-page portraits are given. With this volume appear also new and cheaper editions of Miss Wright's two popular books, "Children's Stories of American Progress" and "Children's Stories in American History." Prominent among the new editions which the Scribners will publish is the great popular success of last season, the "Collection of Letters of Thackeray," in a dainty 12mo form, gilt top, with a portrait of Thackeray, and with a reproduction in facsimile of one of the most characteristic of the author's illustrated letters. It is a volume that collectors will prize. A new and uniform edition of J. T. Headley's historical works is also in preparation. A new edition in uniform binding is also published of Donald J. Mitchell's (Ik Marvel's) eight volumes. An edition is also in preparation of Mr. Mitchell's most popular book, "Reveries of a Bachelor," with the original illustrations of F. O. C. Darley, which represent that famous artist's best work. A new and cheaper edition, with numerous maps and illustrations, of "Corea: the hermit nation," by William Elliot Griffis, is also in hand. That clever humorist, A. B. Frost, has drawn many new illustrations for a fresh edition of his side-splitting book, "Stuff and Nonsense," which took the popular fancy by storm several years ago, and which the author has entirely remodelled. New editions are also forthcoming from the presses of the Scribners of two books of stirring adventure for boys, "A Tale of the Indian Mutiny, or, the serpent-charmer," by Louis Rousselet, with nearly seventy illustrations, and "Wild Men and Wild Beasts, or, scenes in camp and jungle," by Lieut.-Col. Gordon Cumming, of the famous family of lion-hunters. New and cheaper editions of James Baldwin's "Story of the Golden Age," in which the Homeric legends are gathered in the form of a tale, "The Story of Siegfried," and "The Story of Roland," are also to be published under the general title for the set of "Heroes of the Olden Time." Charles F. Holder's "Living Lights," "Marvels of Animal Life," and "The Ivory King," are also to be issued in a new and cheaper edition under the general title "Marvels of Animal Life Series."

SCRIBNER & WELFORD announce several important works, especially covering the fields of biography, art, and religious philosophy, most of which will be gotten up as unusually handsome volumes. In biography "The Reminiscences and Recollections of Captain Gronow" will give a view of the court, the camp, clubs, and society from 1810 to 1860, illustrated by a portrait, four wood-cuts, and twenty etched and aquatint reproductions from contemporary sources, by Joseph Grego, all to be in duplicate, one on plate paper and the other on Whatman paper, colored by hand, altogether a magnificent work of art as well as biography, in two volumes. "The Correspondence Between Wagner and Liszt, 1841-1861," in two volumes, will interest many outside of the circle of musicians, both these fearless geniuses having occupied so prominent a place with the kings of the earth that their descriptions of their lives and surroundings cover many episodes of general interest. All readers who enjoyed the "Memoirs of the Margravine of Beireuth" will hear with pleasant anticipation of "The Correspondence Between the Margravine of Beireuth and Voltaire," translated from the German by Princess Christian; and the "Life of Matthew Fontaine Maury," United States Navy, and then of the Confederate Navy, will throw new light upon some of the vexed questions of the Civil War. Besides these new volumes of biography there are promised new, cheaper, and in some cases revised or enlarged editions of "The Life and Times of Savonarola," by Prof. Pasquale Villari, translated by Linda Villari, with portraits and illustrations in photogravure; a newly edited edition of "Napoleon at St. Helena," by Barry E. O'Meara; and cheaper revised editions of "The Life of Benvenuto Cellini and of Francis I. and His Times," by Julia Pardoe. Of both biographical and religious interest will be "Lives of Twelve Good Men," by John W. Burgon, Dean of Chichester, giving chapters on such men as Samuel Wilberforce, Hugh James Rose, Martin Joseph Routh, Richard Greswell, etc. In this field there are also promised the second volume of "History of the Christian Philosophy of Religion," by Prof. Punjer, translated by W. Hastie, with introduction by Prof. Robert Flint; "The Hibbert Lectures for 1887," "Leaves from an Egyptian Note-Book," by Isaac Taylor, Canon of York, a new, original, and valuable work on Egypt, also exhaustively covering Mohammedanism; and "The Apocrypha," edited by Henry Wace, which will be uniform with "The Speaker's Commentary." In works of and on art the announcements are: "Pictures from Ireland," the new book in the Pen and Pencil series; John Leech's "Pictures of Life and Character," complete in one magnificent volume; Caldecott's "North Italian Folk," illustrating the sketches of Italian town and country life written by Mrs. Comyns Carr, a new issue of 250 copies, colored by hand, and numbered; and D'Anvers' "Elementary History of Art," in two volumes, with a preface by Dr. Roger Smith—the first volume treating of architecture and sculpture, the second of painting. Of descriptive value will be Prof. Henry Drummond's "Tropical Africa," with six maps and illustrations, and "Chronicles of Bow Street Police Office," giving an account of the magistrates, runners, and police, and a selection of interesting cases, by Percy Fitzgerald, a book which will be fully illustrated. Vols. 4 and 5 of the remarkably beautiful Henry Irving Shakespeare will also be ready, and the remaining volumes will follow regularly at intervals of three months; and a new and cheaper edition may be expected of "Some of Shakespeare's Female Characters," described in a series of letters by Helen Faucit (Lady Martin), which gives much matter for reflection on Ophelia, Juliet, Portia, Imogen, Desdemona, Rosalind, and Beatrice. "Lyrics from the Song-Books of the Elizabethan Age," edited by A. H. Bullen, will also be of great literary interest. Several new volumes will find their way into the Bohn's Libraries. Much thought has also been given to the wants and wishes of young people, and several new works have been planned. Three new volumes will be added to their beautiful edition of the works of Mr. Henty, who, according to the London Academy, stands in the very first rank of writers of stories of adventure for boys: "Captain Bayley's Heir," describing California gold fields; "Lion of St. Mark," teaching many lessons about Venice; and "Cat of Bubastes," explaining Ancient Egypt to young minds. George Manville Fenn has also prepared two books for boys, to be brought out in the attractive style of the Henty books: "Quicksilver, or, a boy with no skid to his wheels," and "Dick o' the Fens," a tale of the great East Swamp. Harry Collingwood has also prepared something fascinating in "Missing," a tale of the merchant marine. All these books have a dozen or more illustrations by Frank Dadd. For girls there will be "Under False Colors," by Sarah Doudney, and "Giannetta," by Rosa Mulholland, with eight illustrations by Lockhart Bogle. The Annals published in the holiday season, one for boys and the other for girls, will also be ready for the season of 1888-89.

W. J. SHUEY, agent for the United Brethren Publishing House, Dayton, O., announces a third work in the series of Rev. E. S. Lorenz, which already includes the "Gospel Worker's Treasury" and "The Coming Revival." The new work is called "Getting Ready for a Revival," and in it the President of Lebanon Valley College gives concise and pointed hints to ministers and laymen. "The Doctrine of Christian Baptism," by Rev. J. W. Etter, will give an exposition of the nature, mode, and duty of baptism, offering the questions asked by many, and answered by a large majority of Christian scholars. There will be new editions of "Journeys in the Old World," by Rev. J. W. Hott; "Great Invasion," by J. Hoke, giving a history of the Gettysburg campaign. "The Gospel Worker's Treasury" and "Garnered Sheaves for the Sunday-School." For the holidays will be made ready "Christmas Selections No. 3," by E. S. Lorenz, and "The Messiah's Star," by Rev. A.

Baltzell, a new Christmas service with original, sprightly music, introducing quotations from "Ben-Hur." A new book of missionary songs and concert exercises will also be ready shortly, but the title has not yet been made public.

WILLARD SMALL has just issued "British Novelists and their Styles," a critical sketch of the history of British prose fiction, by David Masson; also, "Three Essays on English Literature" (1) "The Study of Literature," by John Morley, (2) "Hints on the Study of English Literature," by Henry J. Nicoll, (3) "The Study of English Literature," by Leslie Stephen, with notes and introduction by Albert F. Blaisdell, M.D., author of "The Study of English Classics."

E. & F. N. SPON will have ready some very valuable books, of which full titles will be found under Arts and Sciences in the classified list preceding this department.

FRED. A. STOKES & BRO. announce additions in every department of their publications, which include a vast range of subject and a gratifying variety of mechanical execution. In the department of etchings, to which they devote much thought and more money, they will have "Genre Etchings," comprising "My Ain Fireside," by S. G. McCutcheon, "The Book-worm," by Joseph F. Sabin, "Never Too Late to Mend," by J. Wells Champney, and "Souvenir of Cairo," by J. J. Calahan, after Gerome; "Etchings—Winter Scenes," comprising "A Morning Walk," by Hamilton Hamilton, "A Winter's Day, Windsor, Nova Scotia," by Stephen Parrish, "Ca Pince," by J. J. Calahan, after Bellcour, and "Christmas Eve," by W. H. Shelton; and "Etchings—Heads," comprising "Honeysuckle," by Frederick W. Freer, "Portrait of Rembrandt," by J. D. King, after Rembrandt, "The White Rose," by Frederick W. Freer, and "Ideal Head," by J. S. King. In photogravures there will be "Four Photogravures," a rich holiday offering containing four celebrated paintings "Saint Cecilia," by Carlo Dolce, "The Angel Choir," by Sir Joshua Reynolds, "Reading Magdalen," by Battoni, and "Madonna," by Gabriel Max; also "Photogravures—Cupids," giving four reproductions of the most celebrated of Jean Aubert's charming paintings of Cupids "Winter," "Cupid's Menu," "Cupid's Holiday," and "Aurora and Cupid." One of the most important art-works as yet undertaken in this country will be "Madonnas by Old Masters," ten photogravures after old masters' paintings, which give more accurate reproductions of the great originals than is possible in the case of any etching or engraving, however excellent. The text, including an important new essay on "The Madonna in Art" is by Ripley Hitchcock, author of "Etching in America," etc., published by this house. The size of the page is 17½ by 13 inches. The photogravures are neatly matted, and, together with the leaves of the text, are placed loosely in handsome folios, from which they can readily be removed for framing. There will be de luxe editions on satin and thin, silky Japan paper, and regular editions on plate paper, in two styles of binding and casing. The Madonnas selected are Raphael's "Madonna di San Sisto," "Madonna della Sedia," "La Belle Jardinière," "Madonna del Granduca," and "Madonna of the Diadem;" Murillo's "Holy Family" and "The Immaculate Conception;" "Mater Dolorosa," by Guido Reni; "Burgomeister Meyer Madonna," by Holbein;

and "Madonna della Scala," by Corregio. There are several volumes of poetry announced: "Wood-Blooms," by John Vance Cheney, containing some of his best verses and many new poems; "Old and New World Lyrics," by Clinton Scollard; in the Duodecimo Poets "The Complete Poems of George Eliot," "The Complete Poems of John Milton," and "The Golden Treasury," by Francis Turner Palgrave. In the Handy Volume editions of standard and popular works there will be put "The Life of George Eliot," "Novels of Jane Austen;" "Friends in Council," by Sir Arthur Helps; "The Lives of English Poets," by Samuel Johnson; "Speeches of the Right Honorable T. B. Macaulay;" "Lays of Ancient Rome;" Carlyle's "Sartor Resartus," "Heroes and Hero Worship," "Life of Schiller," and "Frederick the Great;" "Select Poems of Felicia Hemans," of "Alexander Pope," and of "Shelley;" and the select series of five volumes comprising selections from Mrs. Browning, Mrs. Craik, Mrs. Hemans, Pope, and Shelley, which are only sold in sets in a box; and several others which will be found in our classified list under Literature and Collected Works. There will be a set of German Classics in six volumes, comprising Lessing's "Nathan the Wise," "Schiller's Poems and Ballads," "Hauff's Tales," and Goethe's "Wilhelm Meister." In their very pretty and deservedly popular Artist's Series of Hymns will be included "Softly Now the Light of Day" and "Just As I Am, Without One Plea." A new volume will appear in the Bridges and Goodale Bird Song series which is number seven, and will be entitled "A Birthday-Book of Birds," with illustrations of doves and peach blossoms, humming-birds and wisteria, robin-redbreasts and snow, etc. All the seven volumes this year have a new illuminated parchment-paper binding, with large design of birds on telegraph wires, embossed in bright metal across the top, title in color, tied with silk and metal cord. "Bugle Echoes," formerly sold by subscription, is now to be handled by the trade and has made a new appearance in handsome cover. It is one of the best collections of the Northern and Southern poetry of the Civil War. A very charming holiday gift, especially to some one who has travelled and seen many sights in many lands, will be "Sea Vistas in Many Lands" and "Bits of Distant Land and Sea," each an oblong quarto richly bound in an entirely new style, back and half sides of the front cover covered with graceful designs of shells, grasses, etc., outlined with gold and filled in with pink and blue. Miss Louise Skelding and Mr. Harry Fenn have made the sketches which show shores of the Sea of Galilee, Venice, Naples, Holland, and the Golden Gate, San Francisco, and bits of land from Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Mount of Olives, etc. There are also several new calendars for 1889: "The Hand-Painted Calendar," with pad containing separate leaf for each day of the month, "The Ivory Calendar;" "The Floral Calendar;" the "Ring Out Wild Bells Calendar;" "The Tennyson Photogravure Calendar;" "The Humphrey Calendar," giving a water-color drawing for each month of the year, each representing a little child, in its face, dress, etc., appropriate to the month for which it stands; "The Brass Calendar;" and "The Photograph-Framed Calendar." All these are very pretty and some quite original in design. In humorous and satirical squibs the house will offer "The Golden Age of Patents," by Wallace Peck, a most amusing satire on Yankee inventiveness, made up of pictures which have appeared in Life; and a new edition of "College Cuts" is selected from our brightest college papers, uniform in size with "Good Things of Life." There seem still to be many unmentioned books, but lack of space forbids us going more into detail, and we finish the books for grown readers by making special mention of a remarkable novelty which has received the most careful attention in every detail. It is an attempt to reproduce with all possible exactness a Roman book of the Classic period. "Eight Songs of Horace" have been edited by George E. Vincent and gotten up in a fac-simile of an old Latin manuscript, in the shape of a scroll of heavy parchment paper wound about a wooden cylinder with a white enamelled knob at each end and tied with leather thong. The verses are printed in facing pages in Latin and English most artistically finished. In order to insure accuracy professors in our greatest American university have been consulted and the British Museum has been visited. This work of ancient art comes in a cylindrical box. Two of the most attractive among the long array of exquisite volumes for children the later years have brought us will be "Babes of the Year," a dainty volume in pale covers, with bright designs of many children's faces, each accompanied by a page of Miss Thomas' graceful verses and many delicate monotints by Maud Humphrey; and Children of the Seasons series, made up of four volumes by the same ladies, called "Children of Spring," "Children of Summer," "Children of Autumn," and "Children of Winter," made up of little ones representing the various months, confined in ivory covers decorated with designs of little children kissing their hands. "Millard Fillmore" is the new volume in the Lives of the Presidents series.

TICKNOR & Co. will issue "Marching Through Georgia," "Nellie Was a Lady," and "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground" uniform with their last year's holiday editions of "The Swannee River" and "My Old Kentucky Home." The Southern scenes described in these poems with so much eloquence and pathos have been reproduced in pictures drawn on the spot by George Copeland, who has spent a long period of time in the South making these telling sketches of scenes on old plantations. He has also collected a great number of uniforms, weapons, standards, etc., of the time of the late war to insure correctness in his scenes from the march of the Union army "from Atlanta to the sea." These books are gotten up in cloth, ivory finish, imitation wood, seal, flexible calf, etc., and have a specially attractive costume, quite new for the season of 1888-9, to be known as "bronzed arabesque." Kate Sanborn, whose "Year of Sunshine" has held its own for ten years among the constantly growing list of Calendars, has compiled something quite new and fully as pleasing under the title of "The Rainbow Calendar for 1889." A new edition of Tennyson's "Dream of Fair Women," the successful holiday-book of the season of 1880, for which there has been a steady demand during succeeding years, will this year be issued in a cheaper edition. Four interesting and valuable works will deal with the Civil War. "Four Years with the Army of the Potomac" is by Regis De Trobriand, a distinguished French nobleman and officer who served as Brevet Major-General in the United States Volunteers and was actively engaged in the heaviest fighting in Virginia. His work is not as elaborate as that of the Comte de Paris, but fully as interesting, as his manner is less technical. The book is well translated by George K. Dauchy, and furnished with maps and a steel portrait of the author. "The Other Side of the War" consists of letters from headquarters of the United States Sanitary Commission with the Army of the Potomac written by Miss Katherine Prescott Wormley, the talented translator of Balzac's novels, who was a prominent worker in the Sanitary Commission and on the spot prepared these vivid accounts of soldier life in camp and hospital and on the battlefield. "Pen and Powder," by Frank B. Wilkie, of the Chicago Times, is a series of chapters about the Secession War in the West, also based on the personal observation and experience of the writer; and "A Short History of the Secession War" will give a plain, consecutive record of the Rebellion, exhibiting the daily life and conduct of soldiers as well as the fortunes of great campaigns and famous battles, written by Rossiter Johnson, who has already done much good work on histories of American wars. The deeply interesting Mendelssohn-Moscheles letters, from which many extracts and translations have been made and published by various magazines and publishers, have now been exhaustively edited and translated by Felix Moscheles, the son of the recipients, and will be issued in the sumptuous style of the "Final Memorials of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow." The illustrations are numerous and include several fine portraits of the great composer, of his father, mother, wife, and his friend and teacher Moscheles; pictures of his home and study, fac-similes of some of the original drafts of the "Songs Without Words," and many of Mendelssohn's humorous drawings as droll as Thackeray's caricatures. The Rev. Virgil C. Hart, the devoted missionary, has prepared a description of his explorations under the title of "Western China," in which he gives the account of a singular region, almost unknown to travellers and full of strange things. His report takes one to the heart of the Buddhist centre of Mount Omei and explains many habits and customs by means of a rich vocabulary. Twelve full-page illustrations and a good map reproduce and make clear the most interesting scenes. A new volume of essays made up from the papers of E. P. Whipple is promised, of which the title is not yet decided. "Ancient and Modern Light-Houses," by Major D. P. Heap, will be a fully illustrated scientific and historical treatise, exhaustively treating its important subject; and "Safe Building" will be a practical and valuable work by Louis De Coppet Berg, a well-known practising architect. The collection of quaint negro dialect songs with their weird refrains, by Joel Chandler Harris and Eli Shepherd, announced last season, will be gotten out this year, and also a volume of "Stories and Sketches," by John Boyle O'Reilly. In American fiction, as always, this house makes rich promises: "Better Times" will be a series of short stories by the successful author of "The Story of Margaret Kent;" "Young Maids and Old" will be Clara Louise Burnham's new book; Arlo Bates will complete his scheme of social illustration begun in "The Pagans" in a novel entitled "The Philistines;" E. W. Howe will tell a story of double identity to be known as "The Story of a Man;" and Rose Terry Cooke will bring out a long novel under the title "Steadfast," which is said by critics to whom it has been submitted to be equal to "The Sphinx's Children," "The Deacon's Week," etc. For children there will be a revised and enlarged edition of Harry M. Kiefer's "Recollections of a Drummer-Boy," "The Dead Doll and Other Verses;" and "Little Helpers," by Margaret Vandegrift; "The Youngest Miss Lorton," by Dora Perry; and "Faggots for the Fireside," by Lucretia P. Hale, a real home book, consisting of a bright story which connects descriptions and directions for upwards of a hundred games and amusements, which can be undertaken in the home in winter and summer.

D. VAN NOSTRAND will issue almost immediately "The Elements of Electric Lighting," including electric generation, measurement, storage, and distribution, by Philip Atkinson, author of "Elements of Static Electricity." His new work is said to be the most complete treatise on electric lighting that has appeared until now, giving the latest practical facts with the minimum amount of technicality and mathematical formulæ, and also full treatment of the dynamo, the storage battery, and the principles of direct and alternate current lighting. They will also issue shortly "Sewerage and Land Drainage," by George E. Waring, Jr., member of various institutions of engineers in various countries, and consulting engineer for works of sanitary and agricultural drainage, whose comprehensive work will be sold by subscription. It may be said to exhaust the important subject of sewerage, and makes its statements clear by many wood cuts through the text, showing the construction of manholes, inspection pipes, and flush-tanks, and sixteen large plates giving the plans of various systems of sewerage in many countries of the world.

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. announce that they will keep in stock in their Chandos Poets a selection of about ten volumes intended for presentation, choicely printed with red line, effective illustrations and steel portraits, and bound richly in full tree calf. Scott, Moore, Byron, Milton, Hood, Shakespeare, Burns, Wordsworth, Charles Mackay, and "Poets of the XIXth Century" will be ready in this style. Burns and Shelley will be added to their Albion Poets. Among their recent issues they call especial attention to Edward Lear's "Book of Nonsense," "More Nonsense," "Nonsense Songs and Stories," and "Nonsense Alphabets and Botany;" "That Sister-in-Law of Mine," consisting of a humorous story profusely illustrated with twenty-seven pen-and-ink sketches in the same style as "The Man Who Would Like to Marry" and "The Girl Who Wouldn't Mind Getting Married," and by the same artist; and "Zyte," by Hector Malot, and "Cousin Pons," by Balzac, two new volumes in the Continental Library. Their announcements are mostly for children and include some good holiday books in pretty covers. "Over the Hills" is composed of pictures of child life by Jessie Watkins, with rhymes by E. L. Shute, all executed in fine color printing and monotints instinct with the gaiety and poetry of child-life, a book of which the publishers are justly proud. "Young America's Nursery Rhymes" will give 80 pages of pictures in colors after water-color designs by Constance Haslewood with letter-press consisting of nursery rhymes and songs; "A Merry Round" is devoted to children's games and play, with 96 pages of colored illustrations with accompanying rhymes and jingles; "The Royal Military Tournament," a new children's picture toy-book of horses and soldiers in large varnished lithographed covers back and front and 14 pages of colored pictures of soldiers going through their drill and off duty; "At the Christmas Pantomime," a picture toy-book and a new Presentation series, each having sixteen colored illustrations, in which they include editions of "Hans Christian Andersen's Fairy Tales," "Arabian Nights," "Grimm's Fairy Tales," "Robinson Crusoe," and "The Swiss Family Robinson." "Gulliver's Travels" is also promised in quarto size with twelve illustrations in lithographed covers. "The Pictorial Natural History Library" will be issued in three volumes, boxed, comprising animals, birds, fish, and insects, with one thousand illustrations in colors and simple letter-press descriptions. Under the title of "The Best of Everything," there will be brought out a handbook of domestic economy, uniform with the new "Modern Hoyle" and "Modern Etiquette."

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & Co. will bring out very shortly the "Personal Memoirs of Gen. P. H. Sheridan," upon the proofs of which he was engaged at the time of his death. It will be in two volumes, profusely illustrated with portraits, fac-similes of letters, and twenty-six maps prepared specially for the work by the War Department at Washington. The publishers intend to have every township in the Union canvassed carefully, and expect an immense sale, from which it is hoped the General's family will reap a telling benefit. Volumes V. and VI. of the Library of American Literature, edited by E. C. Stedman, will be made ready; and late in the season they will issue "The Myths and Moths of the Hawaiian Islands," containing the fables and folk-lore of a strange people, written by His Royal Highness Kalakua, and edited with an introduction by Roland M. Daggett, formerly United States Minister to the Sandwich Islands. A volume of Gen. Grant's war stories is also spoken of, but nothing definite is known.

WHITE & ALLEN have shown discriminating literary taste in the choice of books they have made for the coming season, and have spared neither expense nor trouble to make their selections appear in mechanical perfection. The Westminster edition of "British Poets" includes Byron, Border Ballads, Cowper, Goldsmith, Herbert, Herrick, Keats, Milton, Moore, Poe, Shelley, Shakespeare, Scott, and Wordsworth, and probably attracted by the pretty get-up, Hugo and Heine have been content to appear among British poets. There will be Empyreal editions of "The Life and Works of Charlotte, Emily, and Anne Brontë;" of the most popular works of Thomas Carlyle; of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales;" of De Quincey's "Confessions of an Opium-Eater;" Gay's Fables; Gaskell's "Life of Charlotte Brontë;" Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield;" Poe's "Poetical Works;" Scott's "Poetical Works," etc. The Chiswick editions of classics in the original tongues are printed from type and include Homer's "Iliad," "Odyssey," a Kempis' "De Imitatione Christi," and Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome;" and the Windsor series is composed of "Poetical Anthologies," printed on antique paper with emblematic design on cover, and includes some very valuable books: "Women's Voices," an anthology of the most characteristic poems by English, Scotch, and Irish women, edited by Mrs. William Sharp;

"Sonnets of this Century," with an exhaustive critical essay on the sonnet by William Sharp; "The Children of the Poets," an anthology from English and American writers of three centuries, edited by Eric S. Robertson; "Sacred Song," selected by Samuel Waddington; "A Century of Australian Song," selected by Douglas B. W. Sladen; "Jacobite Songs and Ballads," selected with notes by G. S. Macquoid; "Irish Minstrelsy," edited with notes and introduction by H. H. Sparling; "The Sonnets of Europe," a volume of translations by Samuel Waddington; "Early English Poetry," edited H. Macaulay Fitzgibbon; "Ballads of the North Country," edited by Graham R. Tomson; and "Songs and Poems of the Sea," edited by Mrs. William Sharp. The Ballad series will include the favorite folk-ballads of America, Scotland, Ireland, and Germany, will be profusely illustrated by American artists, and printed in tinted monochromes. As far as announced it will this season furnish "The Old Folks at Home," "Annie Laurie," "Kathleen Mavourneen," and "When the Swallows Homeward Fly." Each of these gives the music and from eighteen to twenty-six pages of illustrations, tied with ribbon with gilt edges and neatly boxed. The Racket series of handbooks of popular games of cards is bound to represent packs of playing-cards, is in 32mo, and really suitable for the vest-pocket. Many of these liliputian books are in preparation, but those to be out this season are "Draw Poker for Poker Players," "American Whist," and "The Game of Euchre." The publishers have under way a most exquisite edition of Goethe's "Faust," translated by John Anster, with an introduction by Burdette Mason, illustrated by Frank M. Gregory, Secretary of the Salmagundi Club, with ten full-page designs in water-colors made among the scenes in Germany that are so strongly linked with the story of Faust. These water-colors are reproduced in fac-simile by the photo-aquarelle process, and the work is further beautified by eighteen large black and white sketches in wash, with numerous charming head and tail pieces. A handsome holiday book will be Robert Max's "Twenty-five Etchings by the Principal Modern Masters," which will be gotten up in satin portfolio in an edition limited to 400 copies. Another illustrated work will be "Count Lucanor, or, the fifty pleasant stories of Petronius," written by Don Juan Manuel in 1335-1347, which was first translated into English by James York, M.D. It will have thirty-two illustrations and handsome bindings. A pretty calendar will be "The Life of Christ Calendar," a series of exquisite designs, appropriate for the twelve months of the year, illustrating famous events in the life of the Saviour. These are printed in thirteen colors in fac-simile of the original aquarelles painted by G. W. Brenneman. Another book that awaits holiday sales will be "Log-Book Notes Through Life," by Mrs. Elizabeth L. Little, who has done the same careful work shown in "Beacon Lights," etc., in these illustrations to the text of Helen Hunt, Lucy Larcom, J. W. Chadwick, and others. In humorous publications two or three remarkably funny hits will be made. "The Spice of Life," by Alfred Trumble is an amusing book of satire, illustrated by Schlittgen, Albrecht, Floschar, Wehle, Reinicke, and many others; and Seyppel's extravaganza this year is "The Hottentot Blue-Book, or, Smith and Schmidt in Africa," said to be fully up to his former successes. Lewis Sergeant's "Government Year-Book," a record of forms and methods of government in all countries, and Davidson's "Entrées and Table Dainties for the Epicure" are two useful books that complete a most varied and uniformly excellent list of announcements for adults. In illustrated juvenile literature the house this year offers some specially attractive things. "Barnum's Circus Menagerie, and Museum" is an instructive and amusing book for the very little ones, prepared and arranged with text by P. T. Barnum and Sarah J. Burke, elaborately illustrated in colors from actual scenes at Barnum's Circus. This is a very large quarto, bound in illuminated boards. It can also be had with English or German text; and the three parts of the "Circus," "Menagerie," and "Museum" are also bound as separate books with text as desired in three languages. "Cinderella." Clement C. Moore's ever fresh "A Visit from St. Nicholas," "Beauty and the Beast," and "Little Bo-Peep" are beautifully illustrated in colors and bound in tasteful illuminated covers. A new series of books for girls, the Eaglehurst series, in four volumes, profusely illustrated with wood-engravings, is sold in a neat box or separately. The titles are "Eaglehurst Towers," by Emma Marshall; "The Strait Gate," by Annie S. Swan; "Clovie and Madge" by Mrs. G. S. Reaney; and "The Gypsy Queen," by Emma Leslie. Boys will be glad to know that there are still four stories by Captain Mayne Reid that they have not yet had: "No Quarter," "The Naturalist in Siluria," "The Child Wife," and "The Free Lances," all to be published with many illustrations. "Daddy's Boy," by L. T. Meade, the author of "David's Little Lad," with nine illustrations, is suitable for boys and girls alike, and even more so for their papas and mammas.

THOMAS WHITTAKER announces four booklets, printed in monochrome and colors, which are not merely fancy cards made into booklets, but are especially prepared for the American market, artistic, attractive, and very cheap. "Golden Showers" is made up of poems from Shakespeare to Longfellow, selected by Christine Forrest, illustrated by A. Hanlip,  $6\frac{1}{4} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$  inches in size, with illuminated covers, round corners, and tinted edges; "The Better Land," by Mrs. Hemans, is illustrated in chromo-lithography, and chastely gotten up; "Angel Voices on Life's Pathway" gives texts and counsels for the month, illustrated by J. F. Weedon; and "At Eventide" is also a text-book for quiet moments, illustrated by the same artist. The publisher makes a welcome announcement of a cheap edition of "Cruden's Concordance," edited by John Eadie, and a new Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," printed from a new font of English pica type. Among the new theological works published are: "The Psalms, or, the book of the praises of Israel," translated with a commentary by Rev. T. K. Cheyne; "A History of Scotland Chiefly in Its Ecclesiastical Aspect," by M. G. J. Kinloch; "Family Prayers for the Christian Year," compiled by Wm. A. Snively, rubricated and handsomely bound; and "Studies in the Book of Acts," by Rt. Rev. John Williams. By arrangement with Walter Scott, of London, Mr. Whittaker continues to represent that publisher in the United States. His various monthly volumes in the Camelot series, Great Writers, Canterbury Poets, etc., will be kept in stock and supplied promptly and at the best rates. The new issues will have Mr. Whittaker's imprint on the title-page as well as that of the English publisher. For the young separate one of all these holiday books would only confuse. All the titles are given in the classified list under Birthday-Books, Bible Text-Books, etc. We call especial attention to a fine edition of Keble's "Christian Year," illustrated by Alice Price and F. Corbyn Price, with seventy-two pages in monochrome. "The Jackdaw of Rheims" and "The Witches' Frolic," from the "Ingoldsby Legends," are published uniform with the volumes already issued. In theological and miscellaneous literature many volumes are forthcoming. "The Letter and the Spirit," by the Rev. R. E. Bartlett, is the title of the volume in the Bampton Lectures for 1888. "The Annotated Book of Common Prayer," being an historical, ritual, and theological commentary on the devotional system of the Church of England, is by Rev. J. H. Blunt, a compendious edition with a monograph on the American Book of Common Prayer by the Rev. Samuel Hart; "Three Counsels of the Divine Master for the Conduct of Spiritual Life" come from Rev. E. M. Goulburn; Mrs. H. L. Sidney Lear is preparing a "Life of St. Francis of Assisi;" "The Light of Life" gives sermons preached on various occasions by the Rev. J. W. Knox-Little, who is soon to visit this country; "The Saviour King" gives instructions for children by Rev. E. Osborne; Rev. Augustus Short has written the "Life of the Late Bishop of Adelaide;" Dr. John Harvey Treat has written on "The Catholic Faith," with an introduction by the Rev. J. A. Bolles; and a third edition of "Treasury of the Psalter" is in preparation. And when we come to books preparing for children we are really puzzled to make an intelligent choice among the great variety of excellent things. "Hymns for Children" have been selected or written by Sarah Wilson and set to music by Arthur Sullivan, and gotten up in monochrome with every attraction of gold and silver cord, colored edges, etc. "Old Friends with New Faces" are nursery rhymes. Miss Yonge has written a series of juvenile stories called "Nurse's Memories," which have been illustrated by Florence Maplestone and Fred Marriott. A collection of "Five-Minute Stories" is from Mrs. Molesworth's graceful pen, and is beautified by illustrations in color; "The Zoo" is a collection of stories and pictures of natural history by Rev. J. G. Wood, with illustrations in color by Harrison Weir; and "Bryda" is a story of the Indian Mutiny by Mrs. Field, with illustrations by A. Forrester. A new edition of Jean Ingelow's "Studies for Stories" and "A Sister's Bye-Hours" is in preparation, and the volume of Sunday for 1889 is a specially handsome one. For further titles see classified list under Juvenile Literature.

INFECTION IN BOOKS.

INVESTIGATIONS conducted at Dresden tend to show that there is very little danger of the spread of infection by means of books. Much-thumbed volumes from the town library were found to contain no microbes of infectious character. At the same time the investigators advised (and the moral is excellent) that readers should refrain from damping their fingers in turning over leaves, as this is the sure way to attract any stray bacilli that may be lurking around. So far as it goes, the report is reassuring, but it does not convince us that a three-volume novel fresh from the hands of a scarlet-fever convalescent in active progress of desquamation, is the book to choose for family reading. Those of Mr. Mudie's clients who are still nervous on the subject may allay their tremors by soaking their books for two days in a bath of spirit containing 10 per cent. of carbolic acid. This, we are assured, destroys the bacilli without injuring the book.

A BIBLIOGRAPHICAL HOAX.

W. Shepard in Lippincott's Magazine, September.

OF bibliographical hoaxes the most complete and artistic was the Fortsas Catalogue. In 1840 bibliographers were electrified by the appearance of a pamphlet purporting to be a catalogue of the library of the late Count J. N. A. de Fortsas, of Binche, Belgium. It contained only fourteen pages, to be sure, and described only fifty-two books; but each of these was unique; no book mentioned by any bibliographer was to be found in the collection. The count, it was represented, "pitilessly expelled from his shelves books for which he had paid their weight in gold—volumes which would have been the pride of the most fastidious amateurs—as soon as he learned that a work up to that time unknown had been noticed in any catalogue." The publication of the "Nouvelles Recherches" of Brunet had caused the destruction of one-third of the count's library and broken the collector's spirit. From that time he made no further acquisitions; but the bulletin of Techener "from time to time still further thinned the already decimated ranks of his sacred battalion." Weary of books and of life, he had died, September 1, 1839, and his library was now offered for sale. The bibliographical world was fairly agog. The titles in the catalogue were of the most tantalizing description. Orders poured in from all parts of Europe. The most expert bibliographers were deceived. Charles Nodier, indeed, suspected a hoax, but Techener laughed at his doubts, and ordered No. 36—"Evangile du citoyen Jésus, purgé des idées aristocrates et royalistes, et ramené aux vrais principes de la raison, par un bon sans-culotte." Van de Weyer and Crozat ordered the same book. The Princesse de Ligne, for the honor of her family, ordered No. 48 at any price—"a catalogue more than curious of the bonnes fortunes of the Prince de Ligne," with a title that is hardly quotable. The director of the Royal Library of Brussels obtained an appropriation to purchase all the Fortsas treasures except seven, which were considered a little too free for a public library. A number of Parisian bibliophiles met in the stage for Brussels, and there discovered that they were all possessed with the same intention of stealing away unnoticed, each hoping by this means to have the game all to himself. In the course of the affair there were the usual illustrations of human mendacity and self-deception. Men remembered seeing books that had never existed. The foreman in Casteman's printing-office, at Tournay, had distinct recollection of a bogus volume credited to his press, and recalled its mythical author "perfectly."

On the 9th of August, 1810, the day before the sale, an announcement appeared in the Brussels papers that the Library of the Count de Fortsas would not be sold—that the people of Binche, in honor of its collector, had determined to buy it entire. Eventually it transpired that catalogue, library, and Count de Fortsas himself were all the invention of one René Chalons, a humorist living in Belgium. His ingenious catalogue began quite a literature of its own, which was collected and published in a volume entitled "Documents et Particularités historiques sur le Catalogue du Comte de Fortsas," Mons, 1850.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

T. B. PETERSON & BROTHERS are continuing the publication of some of their best and most popular $1.50 novels at the unprecedented low price of 25 cents each. They publish this week: "Marcus Warland, or, the Long Moss Spring," by Mrs. Caroline Lee Hentz, and "Lord Hope's Choice," by Mrs. Ann S. Stephens.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish at once in the series of Questions of the Day: "The Relation of the Tariff to Wages, a short and simple catechism," by David A. Wells; "Tariff Chats," by Henry J. Philpott; the second edition of "The Economic Fact Book and Free-Trade's Guide," compiled by R. R. Bowker, revised and enlarged, with tabular statistics brought down to date; "The Tariff and its Evils, or, protection which does not protect," by John H. Allen; "True or False Finance: the issue of 1888," by a Taxpayer; and "American Prisons in the Tenth U. S. Census," by Frederick H. Wines, editor of The International Record of Charities and Correction.

MR. G. O. SEILHAMER will begin on the 1st of November the publication through the Globe Printing House, of Philadelphia, of a folio edition limited to one hundred copies of his "History of the American Theatre Before the Revolution." This publication will be in twelve monthly parts, at three dollars per part, each part containing two etchings by G. Ferris, which will be furnished in two states—before and after letter. The first part will contain a striking reproduction of a fragment of a New York playbill of 1750 preserved on the back of an old looking glass and a view of Plumstead's warehouse in Philadelphia, the first building used as a theatre in America. After these proofs and prints are struck off the plates will be destroyed.

SENATOR SHERMAN, in his recent speech on the fishery treaty, quoting from Washington's Farewell Address, said that this address "ought to be circulated, like the Declaration of Independence, the Ordinance of 1787, and the Constitution of the United States," among the American people. The directors of the Old South Studies in History and Politics have incorporated all these documents in their new general series of Old South Leaflets, published by D. C. Heath & Co., of Boston, so that everybody can now have them for a few cents, and they should be much more extensively circulated through our schools and otherwise. The Constitution of Ohio has also just been added to this series of Old South Leaflets, as of interest not only particularly to the citizens of Ohio in this centennial year, but generally to students of our State organizations. These Leaflets are all enriched by historical and bibliographical notes.

MRS. BURVEIT'S "Little Lord Fauntleroy" has been translated into German by Emmy Becher, and published by J. Engelhorn, Stuttgart, under the title of "Der kleine Lord."

READERS of Mr. C. H. Hinton's "Scientific Romances" will be interested in a new book by that author, which Messrs. Swan Sonnenschein announce for the fall, entitled "A New Era of Thought."

THE statement that no book has been burnt publicly for over a hundred years is contradicted by a contributor to the London Star, who says: "Not perhaps by legal authority, but plenty of books have been burnt in popular fervor of one kind or another. If I am not mistaken, Mr. Froude's 'Nemesis of Faith' was so burnt by High Church students at Oxford in 1848."

OLLENDORFF, Paris, has recently published a volume of considerable interest entitled "Balzac et ses amies," by Gabriel Ferry. From this it appears that Madame de Berry was the original of Madame de Morsauf in "Les Lys dans la vallée;" Madame Carraud was the heroine of "Une femme supérieure;" the Duchesse de Castries is "La Duchesse de Langeais;" and George Sand lives in "Beatrice" as Camille Mauphin.

F. A. BROCKHAUS, Leipzig, announces the twenty-second volume of the new series of "Der neue Pitaval"—a collection of the most interesting criminal histories of all ages and countries—which contains articles on Johann von Wesel and his Times; A Case of Witchcraft in the 15th Century; Remarkable Criminal Cases in England; Vendetta in Kentucky, 1877-'87; The Attempted Assassination of Bazaine, etc. There is also announced the German-Portuguese part of Michaelis' "New Dictionary of the German and Portuguese Languages;" and the sixth series of the "Historisches Taschenbuch."

A SECOND collection of "Americanisms" is announced, to be issued only for private circulation, in a limited edition. The compiler is Mr. John S. Farmer, author of "Ex Oriente Lux." The character of the work may be gathered from the full title, which is as follows: "Americanisms—Old and New: a dictionary of words, phrases, and colloquialisms used in the United States, British America, the West Indies, etc., their meanings, derivation, and applications, together with anecdotal, historical, and explanatory notes, and a literary introduction." Subscribers should apply to Poulter & Sons, 6 Arthur Street, West, London, E. C.

"LONGMANS, GREEN & Co.," says the Athenaeum, "announce a scheme for a series of manuals of philosophy by Jesuit Fathers for the use of Catholics. These volumes are specially directed to modern wants, and to the questions of philosophy most disputed in the present day. Though they are primarily didactic, the refutation of current errors has been steadily kept in view. Their object, in a word, is to carry out the desire of Leo XIII. for a restoration of philosophy on the principles of scholasticism, and especially of the Angelic Doctor, with an adaptation to the wants of our own age. Among them are 'Logic,' by Father Clarke, formerly Fellow and Tutor of St. John's College, Oxford; 'First Principles of Knowledge,' by Prof. Rickaby, of Stonyhurst; 'Natural Theology,' by Prof. Boedder, of Stonyhurst; 'Psychology,' by Prof. Maher, of Stonyhurst; and 'General Metaphysics,' by Prof. Rickaby. Messrs. Longman also promise Lady Brassey's 'Last Journal' with illustrations in monotone, and two books by Mr. Andrew Lang, 'Grass of Parnassus,' a volume of verses by Mr. Lang selected from various sources, and 'Letters on Literature,' which will consist of reprints of letters contributed to the St. James' Gazette in the style of the author's 'Letters to Dead Authors.'"

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address, in each issue. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

BOOKS WANTED.

 In answering, please state edition, condition, and price.

 It is desirable to receive copy in shape ready for the printer, viz.: first, headline—name and address—then titles in separate lines (see below), all written on a separate sheet, or at the bottom of letter, or on postal card. Compliance with this request will secure accurate and prompt insertion.

FREDERICK A. STOKES.

MORACE S. STOKES.

"For hym was lovers have at his beddes heed
Twenty bookes, clad in blak or red,

Frederick A. Stokes & Brother,

182 Fifth Avenue, New York City,

HAVE READY ENTIRELY NEW VENTURES IN ABOUT DOUBLE THE NUMBER USUALLY ISSUED IN FORMER YEARS BY THIS HOUSE OR WHITE, STOKES & ALLEN, ITS PREDECESSORS. THEY OFFER A VASTLY MORE ATTRACTIVE AND IMPORTANT LIST THAN EVER BEFORE.

Two notable art-works of the highest grade.

I. MADONNAS BY OLD MASTERS.

One of the most important art-works ever undertaken in this country.

Ten photogravures after old masters' paintings of Madonnas which have received universal recognition and admiration. Photogravures have been made because they give vastly more accurate reproductions of the great originals than is possible in the case of any etchings or engravings, however excellent. With only one or two exceptions, where it was impossible to procure the necessary material, no personalities but those of the painters appear in the photogravures here presented.

They are as EXACT FAC-SIMILES of the originals as it is possible to make by any process resulting in a copper or steel plate. The publishers know of nothing of their general nature which copy the same paintings and can compare with these valuable plates.

Text, including an important new essay on "THE MADONNA IN ART," by RIPLEY HITCHCOCK, author of "Etching in America," "Important New Etchings," etc.

Titles of Madonnas and Names of Painters

THE MADONNA DI SAN SITO, by Raphael. THE HOLY FAMILY, by Murillo; THE MADONNA DELLA SEDIA, by Raphael. THE MATER DOLOROSA, by Guido Reni. THE IMMACULATE CONCEPTION, by Murillo. LA BELLE JARDINIÈRE, by Raphael. THE BURGOMASTER MEYER MADONNA, by Holbein. THE MADONNA DEL GRANDUCA, by Raphael. THE MADONNA DELLA SCALA, by Correggio. THE MADONNA OF THE DIADEM, by Raphael.

DE LUXE EDITIONS

- I. IMPRESSIONS ON SATIN, . . . . . $30.00
II. IMPRESSIONS ON THIN, SILKY JAPAN PAPER, . . . . . 20.00

The photogravures contained in the above are neatly matted, and, together with the leaves of text, are placed loosely in handsome folios, so that they can readily be removed for framing, if desired.

Both editions I and II are inclosed in portfolios of a rich, embossed, white-and-brown material, with wide backs of cardinal red, rough-grained morocco.

Both have ornamental lettering in gold in panels of the same leather on the side, and are tied with silk floss.

REGULAR EDITIONS.

III. Regular impressions on plate paper, bound in covers of white-and-brown material, embossed in "basket-pattern," and having white vellum cloth back entirely covered with tracery in gold.

Title in suitable gold lettering in a panel of white vellum cloth on side.

Each, in a box, . . . . . $10.00

IV. Same as III., but loosely in portfolio of same materials and designs, tied with pale brown ribbon.

II. IMPORTANT NEW ETCHINGS.

A New Collection of Etched Plates by well-known American Artists.

All the plates are original. The work of Messrs. PLATT, SMILLIE, MITCHELL, WELDON, BACHER, and KEMBLE, does not appear in any previous collection of etchings published by this firm.

Text, including an important new essay upon "THE FUTURE OF ETCHING," by RIPLEY HITCHCOCK, author of "Etching in America," etc.

Size of page  $17 \times 12$  inches.

List of Etchers and Titles of Plates:

- JAMES D. SMILLIE, What o'clock is it?
C. A. PLATT, The East River from Brooklyn.
W. ST. JOHN HARPER, Lucile.
E. W. KEMBLE, Uncle Remus and the Little Boy.
C. D. WELDON, Tokens.
J. A. MITCHELL, A Political Marriage.

ARTIST-PROOF EDITIONS.

I. VELLUM PROOFS, Limited to Two Copies, Signed and Numbered. Remarque proofs on vellum, accompanied by proofs on Japan paper.

Price per copy, . . . . . $75.00

II. SATIN PROOFS, Limited to 25 Copies, Signed and Numbered. Proofs on satin.

Price per copy, . . . . . $30.00

III. JAPAN PROOFS, Limited to 100 Copies, Signed and Numbered. Proofs on Japan paper.

Price per copy, . . . . . $20.00

All etchings contained in the above copies are Remarque Proofs, Signed by the Etchers.

All styles of the Artist-Proof editions are inclosed in handsome portfolios of a rich embossed white-and-brown material, with embossed leather backs. All have ornamental lettering in dark brown panels on the side, and are tied with silk floss.

REGULAR EDITIONS.

IV Regular impressions on etching paper, bound in covers of embossed and bronzed material, with dark green vellum-cloth backs and corners, covered with gold ornamentation. Limited to 600 copies.

Each, . . . . . $7.50

V Same as IV., but in portfolio of embossed and bronzed material, with dark brown vellum-cloth backs and corners, covered with gold ornamentation, tied with ribbons. Limited to 75 copies.

Each, . . . . . $10.00

THESE PRICES WILL BE INCREASED WITHOUT NOTICE AS SOON AS FEW COPIES REMAIN UNSOLD. AN ADVANCE IN PRICE HAS BEEN MADE IN THE CASE OF EVERY COLLECTION OF ETCHINGS PREVIOUSLY PUBLISHED UNIFORM WITH THIS COLLECTION.

Remarkably attractive children's books:

I. BABES OF THE YEAR.

A dainty volume in pale blue covers with bright designs of many children's faces, and tasteful lettering in gold. Contains a full-page design by MAUD HUMPHREY in many colors for each month of the year.

A little child with some appropriate flower, costume, and pose represents each month. Each is accompanied by a separate page having EDITH M. THOMAS' original verses beautifully printed in connection with delicate monotints after MAUD HUMPHREY'S designs.

In both artistic and literary work this charming volume cannot be surpassed by any similar child's book yet published, and its price is remarkably low.

4to, boards, varnished covers front and back, cloth back, $1.50.

II. PATCH-WORK IN PICTURES AND PRINT.

A hodge podge, or "patch-work," of all sorts of humorous and entertaining pictures and verses for little ones.

Pictures by the well-known humorous artist, F. OFFER, of Puck. Verses by EMMA OFFER.

With especially attractive cover in bright colors and gold, representing patch-work squares with small designs in them.

Large 4to, boards, cloth back, $1.00.

An entirely new departure in every detail.

THE LAND AND SEA SERIES.

Illustrated by HARRY FENN and SUSIE BARSTOW SKELDING.

The illustrations are fac-similes of water-color drawings, and are printed with the utmost care, on "water-color" paper. The subjects comprise interesting bits of land and sea in various parts of the world, and are treated in the best manner.

THE BINDINGS HAVE RECEIVED SPECIAL ATTENTION, AND ARE ENTIRELY NEW IN EFFECT.

I. Glimpses of the Shore.

Fac-similes of water-color drawings by SUSIE BARSTOW SKELDING, of "The Golden Gate, San Francisco;" "Fort Marion, St. Augustine;" "Sunset, Marblehead;" "Bass Harbor Light, Mt. Desert."

With poems of the sea by well-known authors.

II. Sea-coast Views Here and There.

Fac-similes of water-color drawings, by SUSIE BARSTOW SKELDING, of "Dutch Pincks, off Scheveningen;" "On the Cornice Road near Nice;" "Alexandria;" "Off the Coast of Holland."

With poems of the sea by well-known authors.

III. Under Italian Skies.

With fac-similes of water-color drawings, by SUSIE BARSTOW SKELDING, of "In the Bay of Naples;" "Morning, Venice;" "Naples and Vesuvius;" "Venetian Fishing Boats."

With poems of the sea by well-known authors.

Each one of volumes I., II., and III. is in THE NEW "SEA-SHELL" BINDING.

Originated by Frederick A. Stokes & Brother.

The cover of heavy "water-color" paper is entirely overspread by a delicately tinted design of sea-weed in pale greens and pinks, and outlined in gold. In the centre of this cover is a panel of sea-shell color, made of ivory (especially manufactured in the likeness of the pink sea-shell), and this is attached by silk-floss to the cover of the book. The cover itself is roughened at the edges, and is tied with silk and metal cord.

IV. Bethlehem to Jerusalem.

A new poem by GEORGE KLINGLE, author of "Make Thy Way Mine." Written especially for the publishers. With fac-similes of water-color designs from studies made in the Holy Land by HARRY FENN, of:

The Church of the Nativity, Bethlehem; Sea of Galilee, from Tiberias; Mount of Olives, from Jerusalem; and Jerusalem, from Mount Scopus.

Parchment-paper covers, with lettering and decoration in purple and gold. In a box, $1.50.

MILTON. ELIOT.

Uniform with Family Editions of LUCILE and BURNS previously published with similar borders. The most SALEABLE editions. Borders after designs by Harper, Geo. Wharton Edwards, Vanderhoff, and J. D. Woodward.

Each, large 8vo, cloth, gilt edges, $2.00. Imitation "seal," padded covers, gilt edges, $3.50.

A striking new-old publication—a fac-simile of an old Roman book or ms.

EIGHT SONGS OF HORACE.

This fac-simile of an old Latin ms. is in the shape of a scroll of heavy parchment-paper, wound about a wooden cylinder, with a white enamelled knob at each end, and tied with a thong. The first eight pages are lithographed and consist of a title-page in Latin, together with one of the rude colored portraits of Horace, such as adorned the more pretentious volumes of the Roman bookseller, and followed by eight characteristic songs of the genial society poet of the time of Augustus. These are printed side by side in the Latin, in an alphabet gleaned from old coins, inscriptions, and mss., an artist having made a full drawing for each page.

Following this Latin part are a title-page and translations of all the verses in English. These translations are from the best sources, and are artistically printed.

The whole strip of parchment-paper when unrolled is many feet in length, but can be kept in small compass.

The result is a most striking likeness of a Roman ms. of centuries ago, which is most interesting to any one, but especially to those of classical tastes or education, and instructors who know the value of models based on careful research and study.

Each in a cylindrical box, . . . . . $2.00

CHILDREN OF THE SEASONS SERIES.

Dainty volumes with the new verses by EDITH M. THOMAS and the fac-similes of water-color designs by MAUD HUMPHREY described above under "Babes of the Year," but made up into four parts, each of which is bound in covers of tinted "Whatman" paper, with a different tint for each.

Each has a panel of ivory, with a design of a little child "kissing his hand."

This design is so executed that the panel resembles and produces a beautiful and novel effect upon the tinted Whatman, with lettering in color above and below the panel.

1. Children of Spring.

Colored plates of little ones representing March, April, and May. With a poem for each.

2. Children of Summer.

Colored plates of little ones representing June, July, and August. With a poem for each.

3. Children of Autumn.

4. Children of Winter.

Colored plates of little ones representing December, January, and February. With a poem for each.

Each volume has roughened edges, is tied with silk-and-metal cord, and is in a neat box.

Price, each, $1.25.

The only books from "LIFE" which actually represent that brightest of American humorous publications and are not intended to deceive the trade and the public are those published by FREDERICK A. STOKES & BROTHER.

THE GOOD THINGS OF LIFE. 5TH SERIES.

Now ready. Equals or surpasses any of the previous volumes.

1 volume, oblong quarto, with highly ornamental and humorous design on cover in color and gold.

Cloth, bevelled boards, gilt edges, $2.50.

"These yearly publications have a popularity unrivalled of its kind."—N. Y. Star.

I. GROVER CLEVELAND.

Owing to the present great interest in this volume it is offered in the following two styles, in addition to the regular binding of the series mentioned below. This is the only volume to be had in any but the regular binding.

Plain, wine-colored, vellum-cloth, neat lettering in gold, $1.25. Paper, 50 cents.

III. ABRAHAM LINCOLN AND ANDREW JOHNSON.

The nine volumes of the set are bound uniformly in red cloth with attractive design in black and gold on covers, showing portraits of Washington, Lincoln, Grant, and Garfield. Each, $1.25.

"This series ought to be in the hands of every American boy."—Philadelphia Times.

"This series of 'Lives of the Presidents' is written in so sprightly and entertaining a vein as to prove a sharp competitor with works of fiction in power to interest young people."—New Haven Palladium.

"Whether at home or at school, Mr. Stoddard's series is to be considered one of the best of its kind."—New York Star.

STORIES FOR GIRLS.

Uncle Rutherford's Nieces.

By JOANNA H. MATHEWS, author of "UNCLE RUTHERFORD'S ATTIC," "THE BESSIE BOOKS," etc.
A new volume just completed.

Breakfast for Two.

New Edition.

By JOANNA H. MATHEWS.

Frederick A. Stokes & Brother have purchased all rights in this volume and will be its publishers in the future.

The above two books and "UNCLE RUTHERFORD'S ATTIC" are all by the same popular writer for girls, and the same characters appear in all three. All are wholesome and yet thoroughly interesting stories, written especially for girls. Each illustrated by new wood-engravings made especially for it.

Uniformly bound in sage-green covers, with very tasteful design in ink and gold.

Each volume, $1.25.

The Mary Jane Papers.

By MISS A. G. PLYMPTON.

A new edition of this clever and entertaining book for girls, with numerous illustrations by the author.

"Some of the chapters have already found delighted readers in St. Nicholas, and new ones, no less entertaining are added. The story is one that parents may safely give their children, and the book is written with that rare grace and charm so essential to a book of that kind, but so seldom found."—Boston Times.

Bound uniformly with the Mathews books. Price, 75 cents.

Four rich holiday books, with fac-similes of water-color designs by our best artists.

FIFTEEN CALENDARS FOR 1889

at prices ranging from 25 cents to $1.00. For full list, send for catalogue.

The most important are.

XII. The Tennyson, Photogravure Calendar. A companion to "THE SHAKESPEARE, PHOTOGRAVURE CALENDAR."

An original design for each month has been made by W. ST. JOHN HANER, and each design has been beautifully engraved by the photogravure process.

The designs are printed in various colors, and each illustrates a quotation from Tennyson, appropriate to the month.

Each photogravure is printed on a separate leaf, and the twelve are tied together with white ribbon and have roughened edges.

XIII. The Humphrey Calendar.

A new water-color drawing has been made for each month, by MAUD HUMPHREY. Each represents a little child, in its dress, face, etc., appropriate to the month for which it stands.

Fac-similes of these charming drawings have been made in colors, on heavy water-color paper, and the twelve leaves have roughened edges and are tied with white ribbon. The whole is in a neat box, and makes one of the most beautiful calendars ever offered.

The dates for each month are printed in connection with the design.

Each, in a box, $1.50.

25-CENT LEAFLETS

The Brontë Novels.

Handy Edition. Seven volumes. Uniform with the Handy Editions of Thackeray and Dickens. Half cloth, 50 cents per volume; half morocco, $1.00 per volume.

Marriage of Shadows, and Other Poems.

By MARGARET VELEY. With Biographical Preface by Lester Stephen. One volume. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

With the Camel Corps Up the Nile.

By COUNT GLEICHEN, nephew of Queen Victoria. With numerous illustrations. One volume. Small 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

International Statesman Series.

Edited by LLOYD C. SANDERS.

Under this title we beg to announce a series of biographical studies of the great men who have influenced the social and political history of the world. Its scope will be comprehensive, embracing the ancients and the moderns, and including not only the creators of the English Commonwealth, but also the makers of European and American politics, and the founders of the Indian and Colonial Empires. The list of subjects again will comprise not only those who are statesmen in the narrower sense of the term, that is, Ministers of State and members of legislative assemblies, but those who, in the capacity of temporal or spiritual autocrats, have acted as their own prime ministers, as well as constitutional sovereigns and presidents, who, though in theory they are deprived of governmental prerogatives, continue nevertheless to exercise a very appreciable influence on the fortunes of the dominions over which they rule.

LORD BEACONSFIELD. By T. E. KEBBEL, author of "A History of Toryism." (Nearly ready.)

"Of the Statesmen Series . . . the first volume is Mr. T. E. Kebbel's 'Life of Lord Beaconsfield,' and an excellent beginning it makes. . . . A meritorious volume."—St. James's Gazette.

"The portrayal we need hardly say is thoroughly sympathetic, and in fact the reader who desires to know what Lord Beaconsfield was, both as man and statesman, could not do better than to take Mr. Kebbel as his guide."—Globe.

"His book contains useful information well arranged, and a defence or apology which, though a little too persistent for the rules of art, is moderate, honest, and intelligent."—Saturday Review.

VISCOUNT PALMERSTON. By LLOYD C. SANDERS. (Nearly ready.)

"Readers will find here a very clear, well-informed, and orderly account of the life of the last English statesman whose career can be regarded with almost entire satisfaction by all good Englishmen. . . . A true and well-intentioned book about Palmerston must always be among the most delightful of political biographies for an Englishman, who is an Englishman, to read."—Saturday Review.

"It appears to us to be most admirably executed."—Athenæum.

O'CONNELL. By J. A. HAMILTON, Fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford. (Nearly ready.)

The following volumes are in a state of active preparation and the date of their appearance will be duly announced: "Prince Metternich," by Col. G. B. Malleson, C.S.I.; "Peel," by F. C. Montague, Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford; "Lord Bolingbroke," "William Pitt," "Charles James Fox," "The Marquis Wellesley," "The Prince Consort," "Lord Dalhousie," "Earl Russell," "Lord Derby," "Prince Gortschakoff," "Gambetta," and others.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY'S NEW BOOKS AND NEW EDITIONS.—Continued.

New Monotint Books and Booklets.

J. B. Lippincott Company have published this season, in connection with Messrs. Griffith, Farran & Co., of London, a series of artistic gift-books and booklets, illustrated by English artists of repute, under the editorship of Mr. Geo. C. Haité (Member of Council of the Society for the Encouragement of the Fine Arts). They beg to draw special attention to the fact that these books are printed in England, on English-made paper, and will in every way equal, where they do not excel, their artistic publications of the past two years.

The market has of late been flooded with books and booklets, many of them made up of designs which have done service as Christmas, birthday, and other cards, printed abroad, mainly by German houses, and the publishers have much pleasure in bringing forward a new series that will compare favorably in every way with the best and most beautiful books of the kind which have appeared in recent years.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY'S NEW BOOKS AND NEW EDITIONS.—Continued.VALUABLE MEDICAL WORKS.Wood's Therapeutics.

Therapeutics: Its Principles and Practice. By H. C. WOOD, M.D., LL.D. A work on medical agencies, drugs and poisons, with especial reference to the relations between physiology and clinical medicine. 8vo, cloth, $6.00; sheep, $6.50.

In announcing the Seventh Edition of Dr. Wood's well-known classic, the publishers beg leave to call the attention of the profession to the fact that it has been so thoroughly revised and so carefully rewritten, so altered in form as well as in matter, that it is a new book with little apparent resemblance to its former self.

The general scope of the work and the classification of remedies have been changed. At present the book is composed of two parts. Part I. treats of remedies which are not drugs, and considers, besides, various miscellaneous remedial measures. The second part of the work is devoted to the study of drugs, and has been entirely rearranged in accordance with a new classification.

It is not surpassed by any treatise extant, and still remains, as stated by the London Practitioner, "the only complete treatise on the physiological action of drugs in the English language."

controlled by Messrs. WHITE & ALLEN, besides many large Black and White Illustrations reproduced by a new process by Messrs. Angerer & Göschl, of Vienna.

Large folio, appropriately bound, $20.00.

Artist's proof edition, consisting of 150 copies only, will be issued. Printed on extra large paper with the black and white illustrations on china paper and mounted in the text, and the Photo-Aquarelle reproductions signed by Mr. Gregory. $50.00.

✱✱ Until now no effort has ever been made to introduce the powerful element of color in portraying the scenes of Faust. In the plates accompanying the text of this edition the element of life that enters into the subject, and the thoughtful coloring will throw a new light upon the reading of this famous work.

An exceedingly happy feature of the Photo-Aquarelle process here employed is that it has enabled the artist's individuality to be perfectly reflected. In this manner his method appears to be perfectly plain, and each nuance of color is most carefully preserved.

Realizing the exceeding great value of accuracy in the details of so important a book, Messrs. WHITE & ALLEN have sent the artist to the places and scenes in Germany which are so strongly linked with the story of Faust. With a knowledge of the subject thus acquired, the illustrations adequately express the true spirit of Goethe's lines, and the relations of the characters have been so presented that each has the prominence which is its due.

Partial Fall Announcement.

EX-SECRETARY McCULLOCH'S REMINISCENCES.

Men and Measures of Half a Century :

REMINISCENCES, SKETCHES, AND COMMENTS. By HUGH McCULLOCH, Secretary of the Treasury in the Administrations of Lincoln, Johnson, and Arthur. 1 vol., 8vo, $4.00.

No book published in this country for many years contains so much of interest to the general reader as does this work from the pen of one whose public career extends back for fifty years. The great political measures and the famous men associated with them, are all treated in a most entertaining manner, while beneath the fund of reminiscences and anecdotes with which the book is delightfully crowded, there is that historical quality which gives a standard value to the work. The book is thoroughly American, and its importance will command for it immediate and the widest attention.

PAUL B. DU CHAILLU'S NEW WORK.

The Viking Age.

The Early History, Manners, and Customs of the Ancestors of the English-Speaking Nations. By PAUL B. DU CHAILLU. With 1200 illustrations. 2 vols., 8vo. In Press.

A wonderfully graphic and vivid picture of the manners, customs, and laws of a by-gone age is given in this work, which will be ranked as the author's greatest literary achievement. To its completion he has devoted years of research and study, and few works have been made so thorough, and possessed of so many hitherto unknown facts. To the English-speaking race, which now extends the world over, no work published for years will have so marked a degree of interest and importance.

The Diary and Letters of Gouverneur Morris.

Member of the Constitutional Convention, Minister to France, etc. Edited by ANNE CARY MORRIS. 2 vols., 8vo, $7.50.

The journal and letters of a man so active and conspicuous in the events of his time as Gouverneur Morris have naturally an interest that is both fascinating and absorbing. The greatest men of our young Republic and the most brilliant men and women of France were his chosen friends, and pen-portraits of these are embellished in the pages of this work. The material is as fresh and interesting to-day as when it was written, and is destined to establish the book at once in the front rank of works of its kind.

COMPLETION OF THOMAS STEVENS' GREAT WORK. SECOND VOLUME NOW READY.

Around the World on a Bicycle.

By THOMAS STEVENS. With over 200 illustrations and colored frontispiece of author in Vol. I. In two volumes, 8vo, $8.00; single volumes, $4.00.

With the publication of the second volume, this unique and the most fascinating work of its kind ever published is completed. It is a work that should be placed foremost in the library of every bicyclist, or any one interested in a journey never before equalled for its daring exploits and heroic courage. The work constitutes a library in itself, and has been conceded to be the most remarkable book published for many years.

The second volume carries the plucky rider through Persia, India, China, and Japan, and the humor and vivacity of his narrative make the book thoroughly readable. The illustrations are numerous and spirited. Few works ever published have received such unqualified indorsement from press and public as did Volume I. of Mr. Stevens' work immediately upon its appearance.

A NEW BOOK OF STORIES BY FRANK R. STOCKTON.

Amos Kilbright:

HIS ADSCITITIOUS EXPERIENCES. With other stories. By FRANK R. STOCKTON. 12mo, in paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.25.

Mr. Stockton's latest work is contained in this collection of his inimitable short stories, and their delightful humor is as fresh as that displayed in any of his most famous tales.

A Collection of Letters of Thackeray.

A New Edition with Portrait of Thackeray, and reproduction in fac-simile of a characteristic letter. 1 vol., 12mo, gilt top, $1.25.

In this dainty and popular edition, these famous letters will again be sought for by thousands to whom the other editions were inaccessible. The letters have already been accepted as one of Thackeray's most characteristic books, without which no set of his works can be regarded complete.

The Five Talents of Woman.

A Book for Girls and Women. By the author of "How to be Happy Though Married," "Manners Maketh Man," etc. 1 vol., 12mo, $1.25.

A delightful succession of witty stories, bits of wisdom, and stories touching those questions of love, marriage, motherhood, and home, which interest every girl and woman in the land, makes this book entertaining from first page to last. The book contains all the elements of a popular sale, and will be found fascinating reading everywhere.

Stuff and Nonsense.

By A. B. FROST. New edition, with new cover and additional drawings and sketches. 8vo. In Press.

Mr. Frost has almost made his successful book a new work by the many new drawings and sketches he has added. These new pictures are equally as good as those which originally gave the book such great popularity two years ago. In its new form, "Stuff and Nonsense" will doubtless repeat its first success.

Corea: The Hermit Nation.

By WILLIAM ELLIOT GRIFFIS. New edition, with numerous maps and illustrations, and additional matter. 8vo, $2.50.

In this new and revised edition, the author brings his great work down to date, increasing its previous value, and creating renewed interest in what is recognized to be the most authoritative work on the country of which it treats.

First Harvests.

By F. J. SIMMONS. 12mo. In Press.

After its wide success as a serial in Scribner's Magazine, this novel by the author of "Guernade" will command a still greater audience in book-form. The story is worthy of its author, and will prove one of the most notable fiction successes of the year.

History of the Christian Church, Vol. VI.

By PHILIP SCHAFF, D.D. The German Reformation, A.D. 1517-1530. Vol. I. of "The History of the Reformation." 8vo, $1.00.

Brilliant and vigorous, this volume will add much to the author's great work which now reaches its sixth volume. It covers the most interesting period in the history of the Christian Church, and will make an independent work of the very highest value.

Dogmatic Theology.

By WILLIAM G. T. SHREDD, D.D. 2 vols., 8vo, $7.00.

The fruits of forty years of profound study are embodied in this great work, completing a task which must prove to be a literary monument to the fame of this eminent scholar and theologian.

Little People:

AND THEIR HOMES IN MEADOWS, WOODS, AND WATERS. By STELLA LOUISE HOOK. Beautifully illustrated by Dan. Beard and Harry Beard. One volume, square 8vo, $1.50.

The boy or girl who reads this book will be astonished at the amount of curious and entertaining information which it contains about little insects. The author writes with affectionate fondness and with a charmingly simple and winning style that will fascinate every young reader. It is a book that takes the young into a veritable fairy-land; holds their unflagging attention to the last page.

Heroes of the Olden Time.

By JAMES BALDWIN. 3 vols., 12mo, each beautifully illustrated, singly, $1.50; the set, $4.50.

As a library for the young, which will prove entertaining and at the same time instructive, no better series than this by Mr. Baldwin has been placed on the market for years. He takes heroic figures and weaves their great deeds in a narrative so strong and fascinating as to stir in the young reader the desire to emulate their noblest traits.

A Story of the Golden Age.

With a series of superb full-page illustrations by HOWARD PYLE. 1 vol., 12mo, $1.50.

The Story of Roland.

With a series of full-page illustrations. 12mo, $1.50.

The Story of Siegfried.

With full-page illustrations by HOWARD PYLE. 12mo, $1.50.

A Tale of the Indian Mutiny;

OR, THE SERPENT-CHARMER. By LOUIS ROUSSELET. Translated from the French by Mary De Hauteville. With 68 engravings on wood by A. Marie. New edition, 1 vol., 12mo, $1.50.

Exciting adventures and an entertaining thread of romance make this book of stirring interest for boys.

Wild Men and Wild Beasts;

OR, SCENES IN CAMP AND JUNGLE. By Lieut.-Col. GORDON CUMMING. With 18 spirited illustrations. New edition, 1 vol., 12mo, $1.50.

A narrative of some of the most marvellous stories of adventure ever published. It will stir the blood in the veins of every boy who reads it.

The American Girl's Handy Book;

OR, HOW TO AMUSE YOURSELF AND OTHERS. By LINA and ADELIA B. BEARD. With over 500 illustrations by the authors. 1 vol., square 8vo, $3.00.

A book that is crammed with just the practical information that girls want about their amusements and work, both in and out of doors, through all the seasons of the year, profusely illustrated by helpful design. Pronounced by Marion Harland, Miss Alcott, Grace Greenwood, Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, and other famous women to be the best book for girls ever published.

OR, WHAT TO DO AND HOW TO DO IT. By DANIEL C. BEARD. With over 500 illustrations. $2.00.

LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY'S COMPANION PIECE.

Sara Crewe;

OR, WHAT HAPPENED AT MISS MINCHIN'S. By FRANCIS HODGSON BURNETT. Richly and fully illustrated by R. B. Birch. 1 vol., square 8vo, $1.00.

As a beautiful story filled with an exquisite pathos and sweetness, "Sara Crewe" took rank at once with the author's famous "Little Lord Fauntleroy," now in its forty-eighth thousand. As her former story had a boy for its hero, so this has a girl for its heroine.

"Sara Crewe" will join company with "Lord Fauntleroy," and the two together will take their place among the classic children of literature."—The Christian Union

"Everybody was in love with 'Little Lord Fauntleroy,' and I think all the world and the rest of mankind will be in love with 'Sara Crewe.' I wish every girl in America could read it."—Louise Chandler Moulton

1 vol., small quarto, cloth, bevelled and gilt ..... 2 25

The Boys of 1812.

By Prof. J. RUSSELL SOLEY, author of "Blockaders and Cruisers," "The Sailor Boys of '61," etc., etc. This "most successful war book for the young, issued last year," is now made in boards with an illustrated cover designed by GEORGE FOSTER BARNES.

This large and handsome volume is a companion volume to Charles Carleton Coffin's "Boys of '61," and rivals it in point of interest. Its author, Professor J. Russell Soley, collected his materials from the archives of the Navy Department at Washington. He traces the development of the American Navy from Revolutionary times down to and through the war of 1812. As all boys know, or should know, the great battles of that war were fought upon the water.

Great-Grandmother's Girls in New France.

By ELIZABETH W. CHAMPNEY, author of "Three Vassar Girls," series. This volume had such a cordial reception last season that it is now put forth in an attractive illuminated cover.

1 vol., 8vo, chromo-lithographed board covers..... $1 75

"Mrs. Champney has used a very thrilling episode in New England history as a foundation for a delightful story for girls. The capture, by Indians, of the two little girls, Eunice and Submit, their residence with Indians and with the Jesuits, who converted them to the Roman Catholic religion, their pretty love stories, and strange adventures, are all told in Mrs. Champney's best style, veiled in old-fashioned language, as related by Submit Dare. There is a great deal of sound history in the story, and it may lead many girls to discover that the history of their own land is not all Congressional debates and distressing wars. There are many fine illustrations, original ones, by 'Champ,' and good selections."—Press.

Three Vassar Girls in France.
